Black Exposé Widens Bitter Democratic Party Breach

7 Who Voted for Him 'Would Not' If He Were Klansman.

Friends of Justice Rally to Help Him

Republicans Join in Decrying K. K. K. Man on Court.

By Russell Smith

Allegations of Ku Klux Klan life membership on the part of Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black have driven deeper the wedge of discord in the Democratic Party, it appeared yesterday as four more Democratic Senators who voted to confirm Black said they would not do so now, if the Klan charges are proved.

They are Senators Bennett Champ Clark, of Missouri; Frederick Van Nuys, of Indiana; William G. McAdoo, of California, and A. Harry Moore, of New Jersey. They brought to seven the number taking such a position. The others are Senators Robert E. Wagner, of New York; Prentiss M. Brown, of Michigan, and Clyde L. Herring, of Iowa.

First intimation that an attempt might be made to start impeachment proceedings in the House aimed at Black came with receipt by Representative James F. O'Connor (Democrat), of Montana, of a wire from Representative John O'Connor (Democrat), of New York, asking his attitude "on possible impeachment."

A Matter of Custom.

The telegram was sent, the Associated Press said, on behalf of a New York newspaper. The report, which elicited from the Montanan no definite statement, was regarded as of high interest in view of John O'Connor's position as chairman of the House Rules Committee. A brother of John O'Connor, Basil is a former law partner of President Roosevelt.

As the seven Senators expressed themselves, it became known last night Black already has complied with the legal requirement that he take two oaths, one a simple oath of office, the other the so-called "judicial" oath.

This was disclosed by Charles Elmore Cropley, clerk of the Supreme Court, who said:

"Legally, I suppose Mr. Black would not be required to take the oath of office in open court and thus complete the ceremony of installation. But I assume he will take such oath in open court, for it is always done. It is not a question of legal compliance but of custom."

Cropley said that when Black took the oath of office from C. F. Pace, financial clerk of the Senate, last month, he subscribed to a printed Department of Justice form for use of Federal judges which contains both oaths.

Doubts Confirmation.

Clark, latest Senator to declare he would switch his vote on confirmation if Klan affiliations of Black were proved and a vote taken again, said he "certainly would not have voted to confirm Justice Black, if I had been aware of his Klan affiliations."

"In my judgment, he could not have been confirmed, if these facts had been known," he added. "The prejudice and intolerance of the Klan are contrary to the Bill of Rights of the Constitution, which must be construed and enforced by the Supreme Court."

His statement was telegraphed to Senator Clark's St. Louis head-

MAYOR LAGUARDIA. JEREMIAH MAHONEY. SENATOR COPELAND.

Attacks Roosevelt Policies But Calls Copeland's Support of President Irrelevant; Chief Executive 'Deceived' About Black, Says Senator.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 15.—The forces of Senator Royal S. Copeland, mayoralty choice of Tammany chieftains hostile to President Roosevelt's party leadership, tonight sought to minimize the New Deal as a campaign issue, on the eve of primaries expected to bring out 1,000,000 voters. Fifty-one other municipal contests are involved in the voting.

Speaking for Copeland, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith said the relative support given Mr. Roosevelt by Copeland and by his Democratic opponent was not properly at issue "in this campaign."

At the same time, Smith, the 1928 Presidential candidate of the Democrats, went on sharply to attack the New Deal personally.

But, so far as the mayoralty was concerned, he summed up his view thus, after quoting Jeremiah T. Mahoney, Copeland's Democratic opponent, as saying he should have the nomination because "he was for the President, and Copeland was against the President."

"I don't know how that becomes an issue in this campaign. I've had no experience to convince me that Senator Copeland is against the President. He supported the President, but he was against some of the things the President wanted to do. And don't fool yourself—he had plenty of company."

Copeland himself in his speech took an approach to the President greatly softened in comparison to previous utterances, specifically those in connection with Mr. Roosevelt's appointment to the Supreme Court of Hugo L. Black.

Previously the Senator had denounced this choice vehemently, and had sought to suggest that Ma-

Arthur G. Brinkley, Washington painting contractor, was missing from his home at 5514 First street northwest last night under circumstances that authorities believed strongly indicated foul play.

A search for him was being made by police of Washington and Arlington County after his abandoned auto was found on lonely Kirkwood road near Clarendon, Va.

In the rear of the car were found Brinkley's glasses, their lenses broken, and a combination card case and billfold. Members of the missing man's family declared last night Brinkley was helpless without his spectacles.

The billfold was considered the strongest indication that the contractor had met with foul play. It was empty of money, though a few hours before the car was found, Brinkley was known to have cashed a check for about $300 at the bank at Arlington, Va. The money was to have been used, members of the family saiy, to pay off employes working for him on construction projects in Arlington County.

The car was found at 11 a. m. yesterday by James B. Lockwood, 1600 North Kenmore street, Arlington County, a building contractor. Kirkwood road is a narrow, winding stretch connecting Lee highway and Washington boulevard. It is lined on both sides by dense woods with few homes and most of these obscured from the road by trees.

15 Hurt, Girls Flee Explosion At Drug Plant

New Jersey School Is Fired After Principal Clears Out 290.

By the Associated Press.

Weehawken, N. J., Sept. 15.—Fifteen persons were injured today when a series of explosions and fire wrecked part of a crude drugs factory and set fire to four adjoining tenement houses and a grammar school building after it had been cleared of its 290 pupils and teachers. Cause of the explosions was unknown.

A strike caused by a jurisdictional dispute between C. I. O. and A. F. of L. unions was settled a week ago, and 16 girls and 150 men were at work in the factory when the explosion occurred. All were believed to have escaped.

Fire Chief William O'Neill, who arrived shortly after the first explosion, said he heard six more explosions in the northern section of the S. B. Penick & Co. plant, where alcohol and ether were stored.

When the first explosion was heard, Principal Irving Chase hurried from room to room in public school No. 1 and instructed the teachers to lead the children out. They left in orderly fashion.

Mural, Indians Scalping Nudes, Mystifies Postoffice Workers

Scalping nude women is the subject of a new Postoffice mural unveiled before gasping employes yesterday. Some of the employes expressed disapproval of the study. Others admired it.

Postmaster General James A. Farley was out of the city, engaged with the mayoralty campaign in New York, so no official statement on the propriety or impropriety of the canvas could be obtained.

A spokesman said: "Mr. Farley knows nothing about these murals. They're sent over to us by the Treasury Procurement Division, and they're a headache. I suppose there'll be an army of sightseers swarming in here now to see this one. Good gosh."

The painting shows Indians pillaging a stage coach. The women aboard the coach have apparently been stripped of their clothing by the redskins, who are scalping some of the ladies and murdering the men.

Painted by F. Mechau, of Redstone, Colo., the picture reveals some of the hardships of early American mail delivery. An explanatory note beside the painting says: "The nudes are justified by historical facts. The daughter of the Governor of New Mexico and two friends were captured by Indians, later being rescued while herding sheep in a snowstorm completely unclothed."

Workers said they were more baffled after reading the explanation than before.

Reminds Officials That His Group Predicted Revenue Excess.

The Board of Trade and a group of 30 representative small businessmen yesterday demanded that District taxes be reduced.

The Trade Board condemned the proposed $2,000,000 increase in the 1939 municipal budget. The small businessman bitterly assailed the gross receipts tax, declaring that in many cases it meant ruination.

Demands from the Board of Trade came in a letter to the Commissioners from E. F. Colladay, president of the organization. Colladay declared his group "will vigorously oppose any increase over a budget of $46,000,000 for the year 1939."

The other group met at the Hamilton Hotel last night to form the "Business Men's Protective Tax League." They failed to form the new organization but they did put their weight whole-heartedly behind the movement to abolish the gross receipts tax and voted to meet tonight with the Federation of Business Men's Associations to take further action.

Commissioners Invite Aid.

Representatives of small business men in many fields and in every section of the city were present at the meeting, which was originally called by Fairfax Oyster, New Center Market butter merchant. Through some misunderstanding, Oyster was not present when the business men gathered and the meeting adjourned to the offices of Hugh V. Keiser, president of the Central Business Men's Association. Keiser presided at the session.

The Commissioners earlier in the day invited eight civic organizations to aid officials in devising a new tax program.

The District heads had previously announced their intention of keeping the city within its income, but this income, as calculated by Auditor Daniel J. Donovan, included the continuation or replacement of $6,000,000 in new taxes due to expire June 30, next.

This policy would allow a $50,000,000 budget, an increase of $4,000,000 over current appropriations. Only half of this, however, comes out of the general revenue fund.

District officials were quick to point out that, even though the $2,000,000 is not appropriated, the other $2,000,000 in the gasoline tax and water funds is part of the permanent tax program.

"When the new tax bill was pending in Congress, the Board of Trade insisted that it would raise more revenue than was needed to meet the emergency," Colladay said, "but the auditor for the District insisted that it would not and that the rates must be as they were enacted.

Eight Helpers Listed.

"The contention of the board seems to be confirmed by the statement of the auditor in estimating a revenue of $50,000,000. If such is the case, the Commissioners should forthwith look to plans for the reduction of the tax burden rather than the finding of new ways to spend money or to accumulate surpluses."

The eight civic and trade bodies invited to assist the special tax committee of District officials in an advisory capacity were announced by the Commissioners as follows:

Board of Trade, Federation of Citizens Associations, Real Estate Board, Merchants and Manufacturers Association, Washington Taxpayers Association, Federation of Civic Associations, General Federation of Women's Clubs and District League of Women Voters.

Coast Guard Sent To Hunt Endeavor, Adrift in Atlantic

Boston, Sept. 15 (U.P.).—The Coast Guard cutters Cayuga and Chelan late tonight were ordered to search for Endeavor I, T. O. M. Sopwith's unsuccessful 1934 America's Cup challenger, adrift in the North Atlantic after her tow line parted from the motor yacht Viva II.

Coast Guard officials ordered the search at the request of Capt. Wallace Grint, of the Viva, who returned to Newport tonight. He telephoned headquarters here that the tow line snapped during a 105-mile gale 130 miles east of Nantucket Island at midnight Monday.

Chinese Swords Retake Lotien; Japanese Driving on Hankow; Cotton Embargo Plan Denied

'Dynamite' Issue Rocks Whole U. S.

Roosevelt and Maritime Board Are Silent on Neutrality Action.

By Sidney Olson.

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper last night vigorously denied his department was making or planned surveys of American cotton exports to China and Japan with a view to barring transport of cotton to the war area in Government-owned vessels.

The Secretary insisted he had been misquoted in earlier stories to that effect.

He stated he had said merely that the department was keeping in touch with the situation; that if the subject of a ban on cotton exports to China or Japan arose, his attaches in both countries could quickly gather figures showing what part cotton is playing in the Oriental struggle.

Officials Disturbed

Washington reverberations were general at the publication of dispatches indicating Roper, a member of the Munitions Control Board, was making preliminary studies toward a ban on cotton exports.

The State Department declined to comment, but there were indications officials were disturbed. Agriculture Department officials commented copiously, but entirely off the record.

Cotton is much used in the manufacture of munitions. Japan is the best customer the United States has for raw cotton, having bought $54,826,000 of this product during the first seven months of 1937 and a total of $88,000,000 worth in 1936.

China, however, bought but $570,000 worth of cotton in the first seven months of this year and $1,051,000 last year.

Subject Is "Dynamite."

The Secretary's quick repudiation of what he termed "exaggerated" deductions from a statement made at his weekly press conference headed off an expected instantaneous reaction from the South, where a booming cotton crop has been estimated at 16,098,000 bales for this year. The subject of cotton, always political dynamite in Washington, has been scrupulously avoided by most officials concerned in the delicate maneuvers now necessary in the present tense Far East situation.

A cotton ban, neutrality students hold, could come about only through full application by the President of the neutrality act. The President first would have to make a finding that war exists between China and Japan—a move likely to arouse Japanese indignation—and then proclaim a specific ban on cotton exports in American vessels to either country.

This latter action would arouse Chinese indignation, since cotton importers could still come to the United States, buy cotton and take it away in their own vessels. China has no merchant marine of any size, and the Japanese blockade has further stifled her shipping.

Only five American Government-owned vessels are now engaged in trade with the Far East.

The President, meanwhile, took no action yesterday to supplement his order of Tuesday forbidding Government-owned ships to carry munitions to the Orient. He conferred at length with Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Ambassador-at-Large Norman H. Davis, but made no announcement.

Virginia Bandits Get $15,000 Mine Pay Roll in Hills

By the Associated Press.

Norton, Va., Sept. 15.—A mine pay roll holdup on a lonely southwest Virginia mountain road netted three masked bandits more than $15,000 today.

The robbers, armed with shotguns, used their car to block an automobile carrying two employes of the Blackwood Coal & Coke Co. and a deputy sheriff guard to the company's Pardee mine, 11 miles from here, and escaped with the weekly pay roll.

C. W. McNutt, the deputy sheriff, said the robbers took the keys to the pay roll car with them, thus delaying a report of the robbery.

Duce Threatens To Aid Franco; Defies Patrols

150,000 Reported Sent to Spain; Britain, France Strengthen Fleets.

By the Associated Press.

London, Sept. 15.—Britain and France, disregarding Italy's objections to the Nyon accord, mustered the most powerful naval and air armada set in motion since the World War today to begin their hunt for pirate submarines in the Mediterranean.

[Fascist Italy, supported by Nazi Germany, warned she might renounce her Spanish neutrality pledge because Italian warships were not given a role equal to those of Britain and France in the Mediterranean "piracy" patrol, the United Press reported. British and French newspapers published unverified reports that Premier Mussolini is preparing to send 150,000 Italian troops to Spain.—Editor's note:]

British and French warships already were patrolling the main Mediterranean sea lanes, without waiting for their own reinforcements steaming from other seas.

It was estimated the units already on patrol in the Mediterranean and the additional vessels under orders to speed there would bring the Anglo-French armada up to more

Nippon Warns League Against Heeding China

By the United Press.

Geneva, Sept. 15.—Japan will withdraw from all League of Nations collaboration and will strengthen her ties with Italy and Germany if the League takes any "positive action" on China's appeal for intervention in the Far East conflict, a Japanese spokesman said tonight.

The Japanese announcement was made shortly after Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, China's Geneva delegate, told the League Assembly Japan is not only trying to conquer China but intends to expel the United States and European nations from the Far East.

"Japan would be forced to cease all co-operation with the League's various non-political activities if the League took any positive action regarding China's appeal," the spokesman said.

"Feelings throughout Japan would be so stirred up that the country would be forced to withdraw from the economic, social and opium mandates work, and would discontinue the League of Nations union.

"The net result would be an anti-Communist bloc by Germany, Italy and Japan, and any other nations

Greatest Offensive Since Russian War

BULLETIN.

Shanghai (Thursday), Sept. 16 (U.P.).—Chinese troops, wielding their big swords with deadly effect in fierce hand-to-hand fighting, today recaptured the strategic town of Lotien, 14 miles northwest of the International Settlement, a Chinese military spokesman announced. The savage Chinese attack in a section from which they were supposed to be retiring stunned the Japanese.

Meanwhile, as Japanese continued naval and aerial bombardment of coastal cities and military concentrations in the south, the Chinese sent a "do-or-die" corps of 12 huge bombers to Canton with orders to drive out the Japanese naval forces which seized Pratas Shoals, about 150 miles southeast of Hongkong. Families of any fliers killed in the attempt will receive $10,000.

By the Associated Press.

Peiping, Sept. 15. — Japanese headquarters announced tonight the greatest offensive undertaken by the Japanese army since the Russo-Japanese War was driving the Chinese back on a broad front south and southeast of Peiping.

It was said to be outflanking the Chinese and weakening their stubborn resistance, which has defeated all Japanese efforts to advance down the Peiping-Hankow Railway since early in the conflict, now nine weeks old.

The Japanese hoped to drive back the right flank of the Chinese defense lines in central Hopei Province and open the way into southern Hopei, perhaps even into Shansi and Shantung Provinces.

Twenty thousand Japanese cavalry formed the spearhead of the drive below Peiping, in which some 60,000 Japanese were said to have routed eight Chinese divisions, about 100,000 men, along a 70-mile front.

Co-ordinated Drives.

This operation was independent of, but co-ordinated with, Japan's drive down the Tientsin-Pukow Railway, which reached a point 10 miles north of the Chinese base at Tsangchow, 60 miles south of Tientsin.

Japan's new North China commander-in-chief, Gen. Count Juichi Terauchi, former minister of war, was directing the entire huge operation. His command was estimated at 125,000 officers and men.

The drive below Peiping, Japanese said, resulted in the capture of Kuanhsien, below the Yungting River some 30 miles south of Peiping. This is an important town on the Peiping-Paotingfu highway and its fall opened the way to a wide wheeling movement which threatened the Chinese base at Paotingfu, 80 miles southwest of Peiping.

The Chinese fought a desperate rear-guard action, but finally had to fall back to the Kiama River, five to 10 miles west of the Yungting.

Powerful tank units were taken across the Yungting for the Kuanhsien drive, and a formidable fleet of air bombers roared out of Nanyuan airbase south of Peiping before dawn today to support the ground forces. Terrible punishment was meted to the Chinese,

Feng, the 'Christian General,' Named Shanghai Commander

Chiang's Once Bitter Foe Made Marshal of Chinese Armies.

By Mark J. Ginsbourg,
Special Correspondent to The Post

Shanghai, Sept. 15.—Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang, famed "Christian general," whose armies compose the most efficient military force in China, today was appointed by Nanking as commander of the entire Shanghai front.

Once a bitter foe of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, Marshal Feng hurried to Nanking soon after the outbreak of hostilities with Japan, made peace with Chiang and offered to merge his highly-trained troops with the central government armies for a unified drive against the invaders.

His offer was readily accepted and he was dispatched to Shanghai, where his forces have played a leading part in the heroic Shanghai defense. Until now Marshal Feng has divided the command here with several other generals in the Chinese high command. The Chinese defense policy has been to fight in relays so

State Experts Accept Administration's Farm Plan

120 Delegates Argue Changes In Soil Control

Ask Bigger Allotments; to Consider Owner-Tenant Benefits Today.

State agriculture committeemen, gathered here 120 strong, yesterday accepted with minor modifications the frame-work of a 1938 crop curtailment program, then prepared to wrestle today with a problem which at times has rent the farm wing of the New Deal, the division between landlord an tenant of Federal benefits.

The visiting agricultural experts spent all day going over with fine-tooth combs the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's proposal to reverse its soil conservation policy of paying farmers to take land out of production in favor of the old AAA method of allotting acreage limits to be planted.

They finally proposed but one major change, an increase from 285,000,000 to 290,000,000 acres in the maximum acreage which could be planted to soil-depleting crops in 1938, AAA officials said.

Other Proposals Minor.

Other changes were confined to procedural matters, rewording, suggestions as to education of farmers for participation in the new method, and similar technical details, these officials added. No changes were suggested in the classification of crops which are soil-depleting, in the acreage to be planted to specific crops, or in rates of payments, it was said.

The AAA then announced the new program will be made public formally next week. It is possible, but unlikely, there will be additional changes before that time. It is generally expected, however, the proposals as revised by the visiting experts will be promulgated.

To Enlist Farmers.

Of particular interest in the 1938 program are sections which will enlist all participating farmers in the county agricultural conservation associations of which Under Secretary of Agriculture M. L. Wilson says:

"Such districts can be efficient social machinery for land use regulation and at the same time carry out to the full the principles of economic democracy in action."

Every farmer shall become a member of a county association "whenever any form or information required" in connection with the 1938 program is submitted for his farm, the regulations assert.

"There shall be deducted pro rata from the payments made to members of each county . . . association all or such part as the Secretary (of Agriculture) may prescribe of the estimated administrative expenses (of the) association in carrying out the program."

Benefit Agreement Forecast.

There is no anticipation the assembled experts will attempt to upset the tentative program's provision for division of Federal benefit payments "among interested persons in the proportion that the principal crop on the farm is divided and in proportion to the acreage of cropland owned or operated by each."

This is the present method of distribution. In the past, however, some members of the Administration have said they believed benefit payments should be made in the South, as elsewhere, on a flat percentage basis. If such a proposal were revived, spirited discussion would ensue.

Quotas Aid Calculation.

The program now before the assembled State leaders is simply a reversal of previous methods of payment under the soil conservation act. Hitherto a farmer who participated in the program has added up, at the close of each crop season, the land which he took out of soil-depleting crops and put into soil-building, or on which he practiced other types of soil conservation. He then told the county committees and the Government and received pay, after approval of his claim, on that basis.

Under the new program he will be given a quota, just as he was under the AAA benefit system outlawed by the Sureme Court. This plan enables the Government, after it knows how many farmers will participate, to approach the surplus problem beforehand.

Politics and People

By Franklyn Waltman

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—President Roosevelt, it seems, outsmarted himself on the appointment of Hugo L. Black to the Supreme Court, just as he was too slick in first presenting his judiciary reorganization plan. Slickness, it is now evident, no more pays in politics than in any other field of endeavor.

WALTMAN.

The appointment of Senator Black to the Supreme Court was slick. Nothing that Mr. Roosevelt has done in months gave him and his friends more pleasure. The Presidential laugh resounded through the Executive offices, it is reported, when his scouts reported to him the consternation and dismay which the Black nomination caused in the Senate. Mr. Roosevelt is not laughing now. As evidenced by his press conference Tuesday, he appears to be squirming.

* * *

President Roosevelt named Senator Black apparently for one reason, and that was to make the Senate swallow the appointment and like it. He wanted to make the Senate gag in retaliation for its humiliating defeat of his court plan. He had on his desk the names of half a dozen or more men who, beyond argument, are better qualified for the Supreme Court than Senator Black—men whose careers and lives were without a blot.

Had the President named any one of these—such as Bratton, Sibley, Hutchinson, Richberg, Reed, Jackson—the Senate in all probability would have confirmed the nomination. Even if it were necessary to name a Senator to get the appointment through that body, there were such men as Robert F. Wagner, Henry F. Ashhurst and Walter George, to name only three, far better qualified for the Supreme Court than Senator Black.

But, no, the President did not wish to honor the Senate. He wished to make it squirm—and right now, incidentally, he has succeeded far better in that aim than he anticipated. The identity of the person who first thought of Senator Black for the court remains unknown. Perhaps Mr. Roosevelt himself thought of it. Anyway, he kept his purpose a secret.

The Justice Department should not be blamed for failing to reveal Mr. Black's Ku Klux Klan affiliations. The officials of the department had no advance knowledge he was to be appointed. Neither, apparently, did anyone else, aside from the President and the Senator. Mr. Roosevelt did not even tell Stephen T. Early, his press secretary. He permitted Mr. Early an hour before the nomination was sent to Capitol Hill to make himself ridiculous by telling the White House correspondents it would be some days before an appointment would be made—that it was necessary to investigate a list of 60 names!

As the papers in the Senate files will show, Mr. Roosevelt did not even intrust his secret to his private secretary or typist. He personally wrote in Mr. Black's name on the printed nomination form—and omitted to write it on the two carbon copies, or even to date it. He personally sealed the nomination in an envelope and instructed that it be sent to the Senate. Even then the name of the nominee was withheld from the White House correspondents. They were only told that a nomination had gone forth and that the name would be known when it was read to the Senate.

In his glee over the surprise which he was dropping on the Senate and the country, Mr. Roosevelt, in all probability, gave no thought to Senator Black's unsavory Ku Klux Klan reputation—if he knew about it. Mr. Roosevelt was out of touch with Washington from 1920 until 1933. When he came back in the latter year, the depression held the center of the stage and none was talking about Senator Black's Klan relationships. Mr. Roosevelt might not have known.

But he probably was the only person in political Washington who did not know that the Alabama Senator was regarded at least as a beneficiary of the Klan. When this writer first came to Washington in 1928, many of those liberals who recently have regarded Mr. Black as a great progressive then hissingly denounced him as "that Kluxer."

As this writer pointed out in this place two days after the Black nomination was made, it was difficult to find biographical material on the Alabaman which did not refer to his association with the Ku Klux Klan. Most of the newspaper correspondents in Washington knew of this aspect of Mr. Black's career. So did the political leaders.

If the President had consulted Democratic Publicity Director Charles Michelson, he would have found out about it—because Mr. Michelson in 1926 wrote a column for the New York World denouncing Mr. Black as a Kluxer and as a man unworthy to fill the shoes of the late Oscar W. Underwood. Members of the Roosevelt Cabinet knew Mr. Black was tarred with the Ku Klux Klan.

* * *

But Mr. Roosevelt could not seek advice; he could not share his precious secret. He consulted neither his Cabinet nor his political advisers. For that reason he must assume responsibility for Mr. Black's appointment, with all its implications. Moreover, even if the President had not known of the K. K. K. angle in Mr. Black's life, he was informed of it—had he read this column and had he read the Senate speeches—before the appointment was confirmed. Did he send word to the Senate Judiciary Committee or to his Senate floor leader that he had made the appointment under a misapprehension and that he would welcome a thorough inquiry into these Ku Klux Klan allegations? He did not. No, Mr. Roosevelt cannot dodge responsibility for the Black appointment by pleading ignorance.

But he is not the only one who is squirming and seeking to alibi his actions. The most amusing—yet nauseating—political incident of the year is the haste with which Democratic members of the Senate are rushing into print with statements that if they had known Mr. Black was a Klansman they never would have voted for his confirmation. They had an opportunity to find out—and they voted down a motion made by Senator H. Styles Bridges to recommit the nomination to the Judiciary Committee so that hearings could be held.

They did so after Senator Royal S. Copeland had pointed out Mr. Black's reputed Klan associations and after Senator Edward R. Burke had asserted an Alabaman had come to him and said he was present when Mr. Black had been admitted to the Klan and would so testify under oath. But the Senate majority, like the three little monkeys, refused to hear, see or speak any evil. Now Samuel Untermeyer, an ardent Roosevelt supporter, seeks to place the full responsibility on the Senate for failing to do its duty.

Yes, Mr. Roosevelt certainly has made a monkey out of the Senate, and "Justice" Black, fleeing from hotel to hotel in Europe in order to avoid inquiries, has severely embarrassed the President. You will pardon me, I know, if I just grin and laugh!

'Confiscation' Rate On Power Debated

By the United Press.

Charges that the Philadelphia Electric Co. gives preferential rates to the Delaware Power Co., cutting the Delaware firm's power costs $2,000,000 a year at the expense of the Philadelphia Electric, were argued before the Federal Power Commission yesterday.

The complaint was filed by H. Jerome Jaspan, a consumer of Philadelphia Electric Power, who asserted he was forced to pay 5 cents per kilowatt hour.

On the other hand, he charged, the Philadelphia power sells to the Delaware company at 4.9 mills per kilowatt hour, when it actually costs 1.5 to 2 cents per kilowatt hour to produce the current.

This, he charged, was "confiscatory" of Philadelphia Electric property and an "undue preferential" given to a related company in violation of the Federal power act. Both companies are subsidiaries of the United Gas Improvement Co.

Miller Challenges Bailey Nomination

The State committee nominated Bailey after rejecting petitions for a primary on grounds of excessive expense. One party faction assembled a convention and nominated Miller. The Congressman's name then was certified to the special election ballot as an independent by electoral petition.

Hurricane Still 'Anchored.'

School Board Attacks Liquor Trade on 2 Fronts

Fight Is Voted On Two Stores Asking Permits

Children to Be Taught Influence of Alcohol on System.

The Board of Education moved against the traffic of liquor on two fronts yesterday, continuing to protest, on one hand, the issuing of liquor dispensing licenses in the vicinity of public schools, and receiving, on the other hand, proposals of school officers for tightening instruction on the use of alcohol and narcotics.

Repeating its performance of a week ago, the board devoted a large part of its meeting to debating its attitude toward liquor license applications. Under the law, school trustees may protest to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board any application which, if granted, might have a detrimental influence on boys and girls going to school.

The board voted to protest two applications and delayed action on another when a member, Charles D. Drayton, asked for the opportunity of visiting the premises and seeing for himself conditions which might arise should a liquor store be opened.

Two Protests Voiced.

A protest was voted in the case of Mrs. Mildred A. Martien, who has applied for an "on sale" license to sell liquor at 1851 Seventh street northwest. The board said the location was too close to the Cleveland School, which is at Eighth and T streets northwest. The other protest was against construction of a liquor store at 2401 Benning road northeast. In this vicinity are the Browne Junior High, the Young Elementary and Phelps Vocational schools.

Both protests were recommended by Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, who acted on reports from school officers. Voting against the protest in the case of the proposed Benning road establishment, John H. Wilson, board member, declared the site was "not close enough to any of the schools to have any effect on the children."

"But many of them would pass the store, and if that place is operated like those in the vicinity of the Franklin Building (the school administration building) there will be discarded bottles laying around on the sidewalk for children to see," answered Dr. Ballou.

Inconsistency Charged.

After Dr. Ballou had submitted a protest that a liquor license for an establishment at 341 Fifteenth street southeast be protested on grounds that it was too close to Payne School, Drayton asked for further investigation.

"I don't want the board to dissipate its influence with the ABC Board by making futile protests," he declared. "We are not responsible for the law permitting liquor to be sold. The superintendent's protest has nothing to do with the functioning of the law."

Wilson told the board that across the street from the site in dispute there was already a dealer, licensed to sell liquor in connection with a grocery store. J. C. Bruce, supervising principal of the Thirteenth Division, pleaded for the protest, while H. Clay Espey, attorney for the applicant, charged the board would be acting inconsistently if it carries a protest to the ABC Board.

First Grade Students Taught.

Reporting on courses of instruction in the effects of alcohol and narcotics, Dr. Ballou told the board he was acting in response to the investigation made a year ago by a special board committee on the subject. There will be several reports, he said, covering instruction to be given boys and girls in the first grade, as well as students in the teachers' colleges.

If the board approves the plan (it will take action next meeting) children of the first grade will be taught to observe such visible effects of the use of alcohol as it has on the individual's "appearance," "control of bodily movements" and "emotional control." Also to be observed by the youngsters will be alcohol's effect on "relationships in the home," "loss of time from work" and "waste of funds."

The effects of the use of tobacco will be similarly studied. Children being asked to look into the effects this narcotic has on "cleanliness of person," "cleanliness of home and neighborhood," and "cost of purchase."

"Because of the immaturity of the children in those grades, the instruction given in the first and second grades will be more incidental than direct," the superintendent pointed out. More direct instruction will be applied to the more advanced groups.

Organized under Robert A. Maurer, chairman, the board's special committee last year heard the protests of several groups that charged the board of education with failing to observe the law requiring public schools to educate children in the effects of the use of alcohol and narcotics.

Colored Juryman Helps Indict Three In Virginia Killing

Leesburg, Va., Sept. 15 (AP).—A special grand jury, including a colored juror, the first since reconstruction days, today indicted three colored men for first degree murder in the hold-up slaying of Henry Saffel, aged Loudoun merchant, last month.

The men indicted were John Windsor, Lester Eddes and Charles Osborne. They were not present, but were held in the Arlington County jail, where they were placed after their arrest in their homes near Ashburn the day after the shooting.

Saffel was killed as he tended his store at Unison alone. The shooting occurred in the day time.

Ask Bigger Allotments; to Consider Owner-Tenant Benefits Today.

State agriculture committeemen, gathered here 120 strong, yesterday accepted with minor modifications the frame-work of a 1938 crop curtailment program, then prepared to wrestle today with a problem which at times has rent the farm wing of the New Deal, the division between landlord an tenant of Federal benefits.

The visiting agricultural experts spent all day going over with fine-tooth combs the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's proposal to reverse its soil conservation policy of paying farmers to take land out of production in favor of the old AAA method of allotting acreage limits to be planted.

They finally proposed but one major change, an increase from 285,000,000 to 290,000,000 acres in the maximum acreage which could be planted to soil-depleting crops in 1938, AAA officials said.

Other Proposals Minor.

Other changes were confined to procedural matters, rewording, suggestions as to education of farmers for participation in the new method, and similar technical details, these officials added. No changes were suggested in the classincation of crops which are soil-depleting, in the acreage to be planted to specific crops, or in rates of payments, it was said.

The AAA then announced the new program will be made public formally next week. It is possible, but unlikely, there will be additional changes before that time. It is generally expected, however, the proposals as revised by the visiting experts will be promulgated.

To Enlist Farmers.

Of particular interest in the 1938 program are sections which will enlist all participating farmers in the county agricultural conservation associations of which Under Secretary of Agriculture M. L. Wilson says:

"Such districts can be efficient social machinery for land use regulation and at the same time carry out to the full the principles of economic democracy in action."

Every farmer shall become a member of a county association "whenever any form or information required" in connection with the 1938 program is submitted for his farm, the regulations assert.

"There shall be deducted pro rata from the payments made to members of each county . . . association all or such part as the Secretary (of Agriculture) may prescribe of the estimated administrative expenses (of the) association in carrying out the program."

Benefit Agreement Forecast.

There is no anticipation the assembled experts will attempt to upset the tentative program's provision for division of Federal benefit payments "among interested persons in the proportion that the principal crop on the farm is divided and in proportion to the acreage of cropland owned or operated by each."

This is the present method of distribution. In the past, however, some members of the Administration have said they believed benefit payments should be made in the South, as elsewhere, on a flat percentage basis. If such a proposal were revived, spirited discussion would ensue.

Quotas Aid Calculation.

The program now before the assembled State leaders is simply a reversal of previous methods of payment under the soil conservation act. Hitherto a farmer who participated in the program has added up, at the close of each crop season, the land which he took out of soil-depleting crops and put into soil-building, or on which he practiced other types of soil conservation. He then told the county committees and the Government and received pay, after approval of his claim, on that basis.

Under the new program he will be given a quota, just as he was under the AAA benefit system outlawed by the Sureme Court. This plan enables the Government, after it knows how many farmers will participate, to approach the surplus problem beforehand.

Politics and People

By Franklyn Waltman

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—President Roosevelt, it seems, outsmarted himself on the appointment of Hugo L. Black to the Supreme Court, just as he was too slick in first presenting his judiciary reorganization plan. Slickness, it is now evident, no more pays in politics than in any other field of endeavor.

WALTMAN.

The appointment of Senator Black to the Supreme Court was slick. Nothing that Mr. Roosevelt has done in months gave him and his friends more pleasure. The Presidential laugh resounded through the Executive offices, it is reported, when his scouts reported to him the consternation and dismay which the Black nomination caused in the Senate. Mr. Roosevelt is not laughing now. As evidenced by his press conference Tuesday, he appears to be squirming.

* * *

President Roosevelt named Senator Black apparently for one reason, and that was to make the Senate swallow the appointment and like it. He wanted to make the Senate gag in retaliation for its humiliating defeat of his court plan. He had on his desk the names of half a dozen or more men who, beyond argument, are better qualified for the Supreme Court than Senator Black—men whose careers and lives were without a blot.

Had the President named any one of these—such as Bratton, Sibley, Hutchinson, Richberg, Reed, Jackson—the Senate in all probability would have confirmed the nomination. Even if it were necessary to name a Senator to get the appointment through that body, there were such men as Robert F. Wagner, Henry F. Ashhurst and Walter George, to name only three, far better qualified for the Supreme Court than Senator Black.

But, no, the President did not wish to honor the Senate. He wished to make it squirm—and right now, incidentally, he has succeeded far better in that aim than he anticipated. The identity of the person who first thought of Senator Black for the court remains unknown. Perhaps Mr. Roosevelt himself thought of it. Anyway, he kept his purpose a secret.

The Justice Department should not be blamed for failing to reveal Mr. Black's Ku Klux Klan affiliations. The officials of the department had no advance knowledge he was to be appointed. Neither, apparently, did anyone else, aside from the President and the Senator. Mr. Roosevelt did not even tell Stephen T. Early, his press secretary. He permitted Mr. Early an hour before the nomination was sent to Capitol Hill to make himself ridiculous by telling the White House correspondents it would be some days before an appointment would be made—that it was necessary to investigate a list of 60 names!

As the papers in the Senate files will show, Mr. Roosevelt did not even intrust his secret to his private secretary or typist. He personally wrote in Mr. Black's name on the printed nomination form—and omitted to write it on the two carbon copies, or even to date it. He personally sealed the nomination in an envelope and instructed that it be sent to the Senate. Even then the name of the nominee was withheld from the White House correspondents. They were only told that a nomination had gone forth and that the name would be known when it was read to the Senate.

In his glee over the surprise which he was dropping on the Senate and the country, Mr. Roosevelt, in all probability, gave no thought to Senator Black's unsavory Ku Klux Klan reputation—if he knew about it. Mr. Roosevelt was out of touch with Washington from 1920 until 1933. When he came back in the latter year, the depression held the center of the stage and none was talking about Senator Black's Klan relationships. Mr. Roosevelt might not have known.

But he probably was the only person in political Washington who did not know that the Alabama Senator was regarded at least as a beneficiary of the Klan. When this writer first came to Washington in 1928, many of those liberals who recently have regarded Mr. Black as a great progressive then hissingly denounced him as "that Kluxer."

As this writer pointed out in this place two days after the Black nomination was made, it was difficult to find biographical material on the Alabaman which did not refer to his association with the Ku Klux Klan. Most of the newspaper correspondents in Washington knew of this aspect of Mr. Black's career. So did the political leaders.

If the President had consulted Democratic Publicity Director Charles Michelson, he would have found out about it—because Mr. Michelson in 1926 wrote a column for the New York World denouncing Mr. Black as a Kluxer and as a man unworthy to fill the shoes of the late Oscar W. Underwood. Members of the Roosevelt Cabinet knew Mr. Black was tarred with the Ku Klux Klan.

* * *

But Mr. Roosevelt could not seek advice; he could not share his precious secret. He consulted neither his Cabinet nor his political advisers. For that reason he must assume responsibility for Mr. Black's appointment, with all its implications. Moreover, even if the President had not known of the K. K. K. angle in Mr. Black's life, he was informed of it—had he read this column and had he read the Senate speeches—before the appointment was confirmed. Did he send word to the Senate Judiciary Committee or to his Senate floor leader that he had made the appointment under a misapprehension and that he would welcome a thorough inquiry into these Ku Klux Klan allegations? He did not. No, Mr. Roosevelt cannot dodge responsibility for the Black appointment by pleading ignorance.

But he is not the only one who is squirming and seeking to alibi his actions. The most amusing—yet nauseating—political incident of the year is the haste with which Democratic members of the Senate are rushing into print with statements that if they had known Mr. Black was a Klansman they never would have voted for his confirmation. They had an opportunity to find out—and they voted down a motion made by Senator H. Styles Bridges to recommit the nomination to the Judiciary Committee so that hearings could be held.

They did so after Senator Royal S. Copeland had pointed out Mr. Black's reputed Klan associations and after Senator Edward R. Burke had asserted an Alabaman had come to him and said he was present when Mr. Black had been admitted to the Klan and would so testify under oath. But the Senate majority, like the three little monkeys, refused to hear, see or speak any evil. Now Samuel Untermeyer, an ardent Roosevelt supporter, seeks to place the full responsibility on the Senate for failing to do its duty.

Yes, Mr. Roosevelt certainly has made a monkey out of the Senate, and "Justice" Black, fleeing from hotel to hotel in Europe in order to avoid inquiries, has severely embarrassed the President. You will pardon me, I know, if I just grin and laugh!

'Confiscation' Rate On Power Debated

By the United Press.

Charges that the Philadelphia Electric Co. gives preferential rates to the Delaware Power Co., cutting the Delaware firm's power costs $2,000,000 a year at the expense of the Philadelphia Electric, were argued before the Federal Power Commission yesterday.

The complaint was filed by H. Jerome Jaspan, a consumer of Philadelphia Electric Power, who asserted he was forced to pay 5 cents per kilowatt hour.

On the other hand, he charged, the Philadelphia power sells to the Delaware company at 4.9 mills per kilowatt hour, when it actually costs 1.5 to 2 cents per kilowatt hour to produce the current.

This, he charged, was "confiscatory" of Philadelphia Electric property and an "undue preferential" given to a related company in violation of the Federal power act. Both companies are subsidiaries of the United Gas Improvement Co.

Detroit, Sept. 15 (AP).—Col. Roscoe Turner, noted speed flier, will seek to break the American and possibly the world records for 100 kilometers Saturday, in the Detroit national air show at the Wayne County airport here, it was announced today by Hugh Thomasson, director of the show.

Miller Challenges Bailey Nomination

The State committee nominated Bailey after rejecting petitions for a primary on grounds of excessive expense. One party faction assembled a convention and nominated Miller. The Congressman's name then was certified to the special election ballot as an independent by electoral petition.

School Board Attacks Liquor Trade on 2 Fronts

Fight Is Voted On Two Stores Asking Permits

Children to Be Taught Influence of Alcohol on System.

The Board of Education moved against the traffic of liquor on two fronts yesterday, continuing to protest, on one hand, the issuing of liquor dispensing licenses in the vicinity of public schools, and receiving, on the other hand, proposals of school officers for tightening instruction on the use of alcohol and narcotics.

Repeating its performance of a week ago, the board devoted a large part of its meeting to debating its attitude toward liquor license applications. Under the law, school trustees may protest to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board any application which, if granted, might have a detrimental influence on boys and girls going to school.

The board voted to protest two applications and delayed action on another when a member, Charles D. Drayton, asked for the opportunity of visiting the premises and seeing for himself conditions which might arise should a liquor store be opened.

Two Protests Voiced.

A protest was voted in the case of Mrs. Mildred A. Martien, who has applied for an "on sale" license to sell liquor at 1851 Seventh street northwest. The board said the location was too close to the Cleveland School, which is at Eighth and T streets northwest. The other protest was against construction of a liquor store at 2401 Benning road northeast. In this vicinity are the Browne Junior High, the Young Elementary and Phelps Vocational schools.

Both protests were recommended by Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, who acted on reports from school officers. Voting against the protest in the case of the proposed Benning road establishment, John H. Wilson, board member, declared the site was "not close enough to any of the schools to have any effect on the children."

"But many of them would pass the store, and if that place is operated like those in the vicinity of the Franklin Building (the school administration building) there will be discarded bottles laying around on the sidewalk for children to see," answered Dr. Ballou.

Inconsistency Charged.

After Dr. Ballou had submitted a protest that a liquor license for an establishment at 341 Fifteenth street southeast be protested on grounds that it was too close to Payne School, Drayton asked for further investigation.

"I don't want the board to dissipate its influence with the ABC Board by making futile protests," he declared. "We are not responsible for the law permitting liquor to be sold. The superintendent's protest has nothing to do with the functioning of the law."

Wilson told the board that across the street from the site in dispute there was already a dealer, licensed to sell liquor in connection with a grocery store. J. C. Bruce, supervising principal of the Thirteenth Division, pleaded for the protest, while H. Clay Espey, attorney for the applicant, charged the board would be acting inconsistently if it carries a protest to the ABC Board.

First Grade Students Taught.

Reporting on courses of instruction in the effects of alcohol and narcotics, Dr. Ballou told the board he was acting in response to the investigation made a year ago by a special board committee on the subject. There will be several reports, he said, covering instruction to be given boys and girls in the first grade, as well as students in the teachers' colleges.

If the board approves the plan (it will take action next meeting) children of the first grade will be taught to observe such visible effects of the use of alcohol as it has on the individual's "appearance," "control of bodily movements" and "emotional control." Also to be observed by the youngsters will be alcohol's effect on "relationships in the home," "loss of time from work" and "waste of funds."

The effects of the use of tobacco will be similarly studied. Children being asked to look into the effects this narcotic has on "cleanliness of person," "cleanliness of home and neighborhood," and "cost of purchase."

"Because of the immaturity of the children in those grades, the instruction given in the first and second grades will be more incidental than direct," the superintendent pointed out. More direct instruction will be applied to the more advanced groups.

Organized under Robert A. Maurer, chairman, the board's special committee last year heard the protests of several groups that charged the board of education with failing to observe the law requiring public schools to educate children in the effects of the use of alcohol and narcotics.

Colored Juryman Helps Indict Three In Virginia Killing

Leesburg, Va., Sept. 15 (AP).—A special grand jury, including a colored juror, the first since reconstruction days, today indicted three colored men for first degree murder in the hold-up slaying of Henry Saffel, aged Loudoun merchant, last month.

The men indicted were John Windsor, Lester Eddes and Charles Osborne. They were not present, but were held in the Arlington County jail, where they were placed after their arrest in their homes near Ashburn the day after the shooting.

Saffel was killed as he tended his store at Unison alone. The shooting occurred in the day time.

Schley Chosen As Army's New Engineer Chief

President Roosevelt yesterday announced four changes in the Army high command.

Succeeding Maj. Gen. Edward B. Markham, whose four-year term as chief of Army Engineers expires October 17, is Col. Julian B. Schley, commandant of the Engineer School, Fort Belvoir, Va., and a distant relative of the Spanish War admiral.

Col. Joseph O. Mauborgne, director of the Signal Aircraft Radio Laboratory at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, was designated chief signal officer, succeeding Maj. Gen. James B. Allison, who retires on September 30, and Col. Allen W. Gullion, acting judge advocate general, has been appointed judge advocate general, in succession to Maj. Gen. Arthur W. Brown, whose regular tour of duty ends November 30.

These officers, the War Department said, will have the rank of major general.

Prosser Made General.

To fill the vacancy created by the retirement October 31 of Brig. Gen. Perry L. Miles, Col. Walter E. Prosser, now serving as signal officer of the Third Corps Area, has been made a brigadier general of the line.

After graduating from West Point in 1903, Col. Schley entered the Engineer Corps and was ordered to the Philippines. He returned to the United States in 1904 and two years later was on duty with engineer troops at Washington Barracks here.

In 1907 Col. Schley was sent to Cuba and served as assistant to the chief engineer, Army of Cuban Pacification. He returned to Washington the same year and graduated from the Engineer School in 1908.

For the next four years Col. Schley was on duty at West Point as instructor in the Department of Civil and Military Engineering. In 1912 he came to Washington again for duty as assistant to the Engineer Commissioner and executive officer of the Public Utilities Commission.

During the World War, Col. Schley served overseas in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives. After returning to this country in 1919 he was on duty as assistant director of purchase of the Purchase, Storage and Traffic Division, and the following year served as a member of the War Claims Board.

Governed Canal Zone.

In 1932 Col. Schley was appointed Governor of the Panama Canal Zone, and served in that post until October 1, 1936, when he became commandant, Engineer School, Fort Belvoir, Va.

Col. Mauborgne, after graduating from St. Francis Xavier College, New York City, entered the Army as a second lieutenant of infantry in 1903, and served at various posts in the United States and the Philippine Islands.

In 1910 he was graduated from the Signal School, Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and since that time most of his service has been in the Signal Corps. Much of the modern development of Signal Corps technical equipment has resulted from the engineering and research work.

During the World War he was chief of the Engineering and Research Division in the office of the chief signal officer, and during his tour of duty made an inspection trip to Europe, and served in Paris with the Inter-Allied Radio Conference.

Since the war he has continued his research work and has been director of the signal aircraft radio laboratory at Wright Field for the past sixteen months. He is a graduate of the Army War College and is on the General Staff Corps eligible list.

Col. Gullion, the new judge advocate general, graduated from West Point in 1905. He completed a course in law and received the degree of bachelor of laws from the University of Kentucky in 1914.

Gullion NRA Aide.

On the entrance of the United States into the World War, he was ordered to duty in the office of the provost marshal general, serving as chief of the mobilization division, in connection with the selective service law. In 1918 he went to France and served as judge advocate general of the Third Corps.

From 1933 until 1935, Col. Gullion was deputy administrator for the National Recovery Administration in the Territory of Hawaii. He is a graduate of the Command and General Staff School, the Army War College, the Naval War College and is on the General Staff Corps eligible list.

Col. Prosser was graduated from West Point in 1905. His early service was as a field artillery officer. He was graduated from the Signal School in 1910 and was a member of the Vera Cruz Expedition in 1914.

During the World War he served in France as commander of the 350th Field Artillery of the Ninety-second Division, and participated in the occupation of the Marbache sector. Upon his return he attended the Field Artillery School at Fort Sill, Okla., and after graduation remained as assistant director of the school.

Col. Prosser transferred to the Signal Corps in 1920, and since that time has served at various stations in the United States and the Philippines. He is a graduate of the School of the Line, the General Staff College and the Army War College. He is on the General Staff Corps eligible list and has served as assistant chief of staff for military intelligence in the Philippines.

Black Expose Widens Bitter Party Breach

3 More Senators 'Would Not Vote for Him' If Charges Were Proved.

Only two of these seven Senators were active leaders in the fight on the President's court bill, the fight which forced the cleavage within the party. Many Democrats here are now apprehensive lest development of the Klan charges against Black reopen old wounds and cause new ones.

Bitterness Evident.

Adding to this fear was the bitterness evident in the charge yesterday of Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, that "Senator Black's friends tricked the Senate" into voting his confirmation.

At his Clinton, Mass., home, Walsh added that among many messages he has received congratulating him on his statement relative to Black and the Klan were several from colleagues in the Senate "who voted for Senator Black's confirmation, but who would never have done so if it had not been for the representations made upon the floor of the Senate by his colleague, and others, that Black was not a member of the Ku Klux Klan."

In senatorial terminology, Black's "colleague" is Senator John H. Bankhead. Walsh's statement thus was interpreted as a reflection upon the latter which will not promote party harmony.

To those Democratic charges was added yesterday a similar allegation from Republican sources. The Associated Press quoted Senator H. Styles Bridges, of New Hampshire, as asserting in a speech at Concord, N. H., that Black's nomination was "steam-rollered through by the Administration."

Friends Rally to Aid.

Friends of the justice began to rally in greater numbers to his support yesterday, however, offsetting for the first time, to any considerable degree, the stream of adverse criticism.

Six members of the Alabama delegation in the House joined in deploring the revival of the Klan question, Representative Joe Starnes calling this revival "a matter of cheap city politics in New York" and Representative Sam Hobbs calling it "just a straw man fed up as a political issue," according to the United Press.

W. Cooper Green, Birmingham postmaster who managed Black's Senatorial campaign in 1932, made public a list of nine Catholics and three Jews he said Black has recommended for Federal positions during the time he was in the Senate.

Senators coming to the defense of Black included George L. Berry, of Tennessee, and W. J. Bulow, of South Dakota. The former, at Pressmen's Home, Tenn., said, the Associated Press declared:

"If all that is being said is true, what are you going to do about it? I have known Justice Black for 20 years and I don't know of a finer character in America. A lot of people have joined an organization in periods of enthusiasm to withdraw later when they knew more about it.

"That is the worst that can be said about Justice Black."

From Beresford, S. Dak., the same press service quoted Bulow as saying that the controversy is "a bit surprising."

"I know Black personally and he's a pretty nice fellow," Bulow commented. "Senator Bankhead, his colleague, assured me that Black had never been a member of the Klan."

Other expressions of opinion, the Associated Press said, came yesterday from Senators Gibson (Republican), of Vermont; Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, as follows:

Ernest W. Gibson (Republican), of Vermont, said he "could not have supported" confirmation of Black "if I had known he was a member of the Ku Klux Klan." Gibson was in France at the time the vote was taken. He was unrecorded on the specific question, although had a general pair with Senator F. Ryan Duffy (Democrat), of Wisconsin.

Key Pittman (Democrat), of Nevada, said he "knew nothing about" the reports and had "no comment to make."

Millard Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, referred questioners to a Senate speech he made before Black was confirmed. In this speech he said: "I frankly doubt very much that Senator Black has been or is a member of the Klan. Obviously, if Mr. Black had been a member of the Klan I should very seriously question his eligibility . . . . If we do have . . . . information, who knows but that after Senator Black is confirmed, and takes his place on the bench, these affidavits or statements may be printed in the press, and we may never have a chance to find out about their falsity or their truth?"

Edward R. Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, said: "I think I told all my reasons for opposing the confirmation of Mr. Black when I had the floor before the Senate Confirmation Committee.

"At that time I offered to bring in witnesses to testify that Mr. Black had belonged to the Ku Klux Klan. All I wanted to do was to get Mr. Black before the committee. Then I would have asked him if he had belonged to the Klan. I am sure there would have been no denial."

Burke also said in Omaha that he had attempted to telephone Black at the latter's London hotel to give him "the same chance to answer the charge that I wanted to give him in Washington," but the call was halted at the hotel switchboard with the explanation all calls for the justice were being refused.

The Administration soon will seek reconciliation with all Senators who opposed the court bill, Burke also predicted.

In Anniston, Ala., the Associated Press said, former Gov. Thomas E. Kilby made public a copy of what he said was purported to be a sketch of the "grand passport" of Associate Justice Hugo L. Black of the Supreme Court in the Ku Klux Klan.

Kilby said sketch copies were distributed several years ago, and he dug up one from his old files. He said he was not familiar with the origin of the sketch and copies.

Pamphlets Urge C. I. O. On Treasury Employes

Twenty thousand pamphlets entitled "C. I. O. Organizes for American Standard of Living" were distributed to employes in 15 Treasury Department buildings yesterday by the United Federal Workers of America.

Culminating a week's membership campaign, a rally will be held at 8:30 p. m. today at the old Interior Building, to which all Federal employes have been invited. Principal speakers will be Jacob Baker, national president of the U. F. W. A., and Len DeCaux, C. I. O. publicity director.

500 Occupational Students to Get Special Classes

Experimental classes for approximately 500 occupational students, those occupied primarily outside of academic courses, will be set up in Washington's public school system this winter.

The school board authorized Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent, to set up several special classes as a means of improving instruction methods in the occupational subjects.

Classes, he said, will be set up separately for boys and girls. The board approved Dr. Ballou's recommendation that funds for further experimenting be included in next year's budget.

Appointment of Mrs. Benjamin M. McKelway as a member at large in the Community Center Council was approved by the board on a recommendation from Dr. Ballou.

Distribution among elementary school children of buttons and certificates to promote membership in the Capital Safety Club of Washington was also approved.

HOW OFTEN CAN YOU KISS AND MAKE UP?

FEW husbands can understand why a wife should turn from a pleasant companion into a shrew for one whole week in every month.

You can say "I'm sorry" and kiss and make up easier before marriage than after. If you're wise and if you want to hold your husband, you won't be a three-quarter wife.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

Philadelphia, Sept. 15.—The A. F. G. E. national convention banquet—featured by turkey, a floor show and admirably short informal speeches—produced such sentiments as these:

"I have been a Congressman, an official in the Government otherwise, but my proudest thought is that I am head of the finest organization in the world."—Charles J. Stengle, president.

"I am always glad to be with the A. F. G. E.; even the individual members have gone out of their way to show me a good time, day and night."—Representative Ramspeck.

They all seem to be having a good time—day and night. But business is moving on schedule.

Comment of a Philadelphia reporter: "The Washington picture is too close to Washington newspapermen's faces. Why don't they write a story that the government is the world's great employer of scab labor? I gather that it is from the tone of these resolution, deploring low pay and working conditions. The Government must be employing a lot of people who frustrate the union's efforts."

The Washington Post came in for the chief burst of applause from the convention today. It followed the reading of a Post editorial by Col. Stengle, who asked that it be included in the convention record. This was approved by unanimous vote.

The economy manifesto from the President affects even Yellowstone National Park, the Interior Department admits in announcing that the park—oldest of them all and one of the most popular—will be closed to all except Government officials on September 25. Ordinarily the gates remain open until snow blocks the roads; economy this year decrees a shorter season.

Lack of funds, the Interior Department elaborates, is due to two factors—"unavailability of 10 per cent of the appropriation made for administration of the park," and increased summer operating and protection costs due to a 15 per cent increase in travel. Economy already has necessitated the closing of park museums, discontinuance of the naturalist service, and in the calling in of all road maintenance camps.

Approximately half a million people will have visited the park by the close of the travel season, the Interior Department says. Revenues derived from tourist use of the park during the current season are expected to amount to $460,000.

Creation of an Employee Activities Council, to correlate the "welfare, educational, recreational and social activities of the personnel of the Department of Agriculture," has been announced by that department's Welfare Association. Membership consists of five board members, three selected by the Welfare Association's membership, and two from all other participating employe organizations.

The council's duties, says the association, include conferring with the proper officers of each employe group and lending counsel and advice concerning proposed activities; adjust controversies between employe activity groups; develop financial plans; prepare an annual budget for activities that cannot be financed by individual groups; see that employee activities conform to standards desired by the department.

Jacob Baker, president of the United Federal Workers of America, and Len DeCaux, C. I. O. publicity director, will be principal speakers at the Treasury Department local's meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in the Old Interior Building. All Treasury employes have been invited. The campaign, which began Tuesday, is to be climaxed with a gala beer and dancing party on September 22.

Rich Amnesia Victim Is Near Death Here

The condition of Herman Bode, 72-year-old amnesia victim found wandering in tattered clothing with $1,492 in his pockets several days ago, was reported grave at Gallinger Hospital last night.

Believed to be a native of Hoboken, N. J., Bode has been unable to give police the names of friends or relatives. It was learned yesterday he worked several weeks for a farmer near Laurel, Md. Papers in Bode's pockets revealed he had approximately $14,000 on deposit in New York and New Jersey banks.

Loyalists Blow Up Reservoir, Drowning Scores of Insurgents

Water Floods Into Trenches After Big Blast

By the United Press.

Madrid, Sept. 15.—Scores of rebels were drowned tonight when loyalists mined and blew up a reservoir on the Carabanchel sector of the Madrid front.

The mine destroyed three insurgent "pillboxes" and machinegun nests. Water from the shattered reservoir poured into rebel trenches, trapping soldiers before they were able to escape through communicating trenches.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Border, Sept. 15 (AP).—Spanish insurgents struck with new fury today on fronts from the Bay of Biscay to Madrid. Snow in the north and bitter cold in the east inspired efforts to take vital government points before winter sets in.

Valencia, Spain, Sept. 15 (AP).—Four persons were killed tonight in an insurgent air raid on the waterfront of this city, temporary seat of the Spanish government and its main port on the Mediterranean.

The Spanish government has authorized negotiations with American firms for settlement of claims for funds tied up in Spain by the civil war, and will name a commission to deal with foreigners who have suffered property damage.

This information was given to Secretary of State Hull yesterday by Miles M. Sherover, of the Hanover Trading Co., the Madrid government's commercial representative.

Sherover later said American export companies have possibly as much as $50,000,000 frozen in Spain by exchange restrictions. The firms included General Motors Acceptance Corporation, Ford Motor Co., Ingersoll-Rand, International Telephone & Telegraph Co. and the Singer Sewing Machine Co.

President Hoover Docks, 300 Aboard

San Francisco, Sept. 15 (AP).—The shrapnel-scarred liner President Hoover docked today, bearing the body of Lionel Haskell, steward's aide killed in the Shanghai bombing of the vessel August 30, and 300 passengers.

Haskell's body was brought down the gangplank in a casket draped with an American flag and covered with wreaths from his fellow crewmen. The body will be taken to his mother, Mrs. Mary Haskell, in Baltimore.

A hole in the boat deck, shattered windows and port side plates gashed by bomb fragments told the fury of the attack by four Chinese airmen. Among the passengers were: F. W. Reeves, of Washington, member of the staff of the Philippine High Commissioner Paul V. McNutt and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ashbrook, of Bethesda, Md.

'Young Duce' Enters Films, 'Hitler' Opens Tearoom.

Rome, Sept. 15 (AP).—Premier Mussolini again has wished his son Vittorio luck—this time in Hollywood—it was disclosed tonight.

Little more than a year ago Il Duce bade the young man godspeed to Ethiopia, where he was an ace with Italian air forces.

Hal Roach, American comedy producer, said tonight he and young Mussolini had been received by Il Duce, who wished them both look in a new film company which will be formed in Italy with Vittorio at the head.

Roach said he and Vittorio will leave tomorrow for Hollywood, where Vittorio will study at Roach's studio.

Berlin, Sept. 15 (U.P.).—Alois Hitler, half-brother of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, opened a restaurant and tearoom in downtown Berlin today. "I call my place the Alois because I do not want to advertise with the name," he said.

Every seat was taken for the opening, while Alois, who wears a mustache similar to Der Fuehrer's, greeted his guests with arm raised in Nazi salute and shouts of "Heil Hitler."

Japan Defies Flood in Drive From Peiping

100,000 Chinese Routed in Biggest Offensive Since Russian War.

said Japanese reports, while Japanese losses were only a few score.

The Japanese also claimed capture of Fengshan, a walled town west of the Peiping-Hankow Railway. Since little fighting was reported in that quarter, however, military observers believed Chinese Gen. Sun Lienchung, commanding 30,000 men of the Thirty-fifth Army, had managed to withdraw with his command intact. He had held up the Japanese for three weeks.

It was believed he was falling back to Chochow, Kaopeitien and Tunghsin, towns on the Peiping-Hankow line above Paotingfu.

The Japanese claimed their airplanes wrecked Chinese troop trains running southward on that railway and also inflicted great punishment on the Chinese retiring from the Yungting River front.

The Japanese offensive was divided into three sectors, with the right flank on the Peiping-Hankow Railway, the left flank extending some 10 miles east of Kuanhsien, and the center, consisting of the troops which swept into Kuanhsien, wheeling to the southwest, reportedly within 5 miles of the railway.

The crossing of the Yungting in Tuesday's rain-soaked dawn was one of the grimmest battles of the war. The river ran neck-high, and although pontoons were quickly thrown across by the Japanese many had to wade. Thousands of Chinese machine-gunners and riflemen hidden in the willow clumps on the southern bank are believed to have taken heavy toll, many of the Japanese dead being swirled away in the muddy waters.

Gen. Terauchi, whose appointment by the Emperor was announced in Tokyo, was minister of war until last winter.

Japanese air bombers made several raids today on Shihchiachuang, 160 miles by airline southwest of Peiping, and reported they had inflicted heavy damage. Shihchiachuang is the junction of the Peiping-Hankow Railway and the line westward to Taiyuanfu, capital of Shansi Province.

Already strong Japanese columns have entered northern Shansi, and the Japanese claim occupation of Tatung, vital railway center in that area.

In the eastern sector the Japanese reported they had advanced along the railway enbankment—the only route above water in a broad stretch of flooded territory—to Hsingchi, 50 miles southwest of Tientsin and only 10 miles north of Tsangchow, Chinese base in this sector.

The Japanese evidently were preparing for a huge sustained effort in their northern campaign, into which they have poured greater strength than into the fighting at Shanghai. Thousands of horses have been landed at Tangku, port of Tientsin. Rail centers are piled high with stores. Transports were reported unloading at Tangku and Taku, its sister port, at every high tide.

Japanese Checked at Shanghai.

Shanghai (Thursday), Sept. 16 (AP).—The Japanese Army, now firmly implanted in the Whangpoo-Yangtze triangle and commanded by one of Tokyo's highest generals, today hurled all its force against newly straightened Chinese lines north of Shanghai, but could report only minor gains.

After a day of bitter fighting in rain and mud, the Japanese announced advances near Lotien, 15 miles northwest of Shanghai, but elsewhere along the new 25-mile front from Shanghai to the Yangtze estuary the Chinese lines held firm.

Gen. Iwane Matsui, former member of the supreme war council and once commander of Japan's Formosa garrison, assumed supreme command of the Shanghai campaign, his appointment by the Emperor having been announced in Tokyo. His command was estimated at nearly 100,000 men.

Leading Chinese officials expressed disappointment over President Roosevelt's ban on shipment of arms and munitions to China and Japan in ships owned by the United States Government.

They said that while this would have little practical effect on China's war effort, it indicated a lack of American sympathy for China's cause.

mands to man the front lines. Feng, now a marshal in the Nationalist army, is expected to take over command of all the forces in the Shanghai area at once.

Will Raise Morale.

Feng's appointment promises to raise still higher the surprisingly strong morale of the Chinese troops in this area. Feng is most popular with the common soldiers, who admire him for his courage and his demonstrated willingness to merge personal ambition in the welfare of his country. Feng also is deeply religious, insisting that each soldier under his command be baptized in the Christian faith, thereby winning the name, "The Christian General."

The appointment of Marshal Feng is explained at Nanking as a move to co-ordinate further the unity and discipline of the army of approximately 300,000, which has been drawn from all parts of China to repel the Japanese invasion at this key point.

Launch Attack.

The first fruits of the new command are already apparent. Under cover of pitch darkness and a rainy, moonless night Chinese troops still holding the Shanghai district of Chapei last night launched a determined drive against the riverside section of Hongkew, occupied by Japanese marines.

The apparent objective is to force the Japanese troops from the water-front areas and wharves, where a major portion of their military supplies are stored and being unloaded. The Chinese hold the Pootung shore across the narrow Whangpoo River and are thus endeavoring to catch the Japanese forces in Shanghai proper within a pincer grip.

While the outcome of the street fighting now proceeding is uncertain, it shows that Chinese morale has been in no way affected by the recent orderly retirement to the north of Shanghai. The present advance, in fact, is an effort to retard the advance of Japanese armies already landed and, if possible, to cut off their main base of supplies.

with the same feelings regarding Moscow's intrigues."

Japan is not a member of the League. She and Germany have a two-power pact against communism, but it has been denied, despite many rumors, that Italy has subscribed to the anti-Bolshevik front.

Dr. Koo, in his speech before the League Assembly, urged the forum of 50 nations to take immediate action to halt Japan's invasion.

"If Japan ever obtains control of China's man power and national resources, she also will challenge European and United States rights in the South Seas and Pacific as well as on the Asiatic mainland," China's representative said.

"Today Japan still bemoans the fact that her national resources are unequal to her appetite for conquest, and a handicap to her ambition to be the warlord of Asia."

The Chinese delegate said China's appeal before the League was threefold, asking:

1. A denunciation of Japanese aggression.
2. A repudiation of Japan's illegal blockade of China's coast, which Koo called "the thin end of a wedge against freedom of the seas."
3. Condemnation of the allegedly deliberate bombing of Chinese and foreign noncombatants by Japanese warplanes.

"If the day should come, which God forbid, when Japan would be able to lay her hands even on a great part of what China possesses in manpower and natural resources, then she would feel herself so much stronger that she could challenge the treaty rights of territorial possession of Europe and the United States in the Far East," Dr. Koo said.

The reinforcements were pouring into the Mediterranean from Britain's home fleet and France's Atlantic bases to crush the submarine piracy, which has proved the most menacing to world peace of all the offshoots of the Spanish civil war.

The Anglo-French fleet virtually ringed Italy about in the waters Italians call "Mare Nostrum"—our sea.

German naval quarters said the patrol actually was a preliminary stage of a far-reaching plan to guard Britain's route to India and France's highway to north Africa against a possible Italian menace.

Chat Appeases Lewis' Wrath With Roosevelt

First Meeting Since Their Labor Day Exchange Reported 'Pleasant.'

By William V. Nessly.

President Roosevelt and John L. Lewis, scowling chief of the C. I. O. hosts, met yesterday for the first time since their Labor Day exchange of rebuffs to each other, and both sides said the conference was a pleasant one. Neither, however, would reveal what topics were discussed.

Meanwhile, Edwin S. Smith, member of the National Labor Relations Board, denied the board was partial to the C. I. O., as the rival American Federation of Labor has charged, and said "no proof of such partisanship has even been produced."

Lewis emerged from the President's office in as near an approach to a jovial mood as he ever manifests publicy, and told reporters he had nothing "of news value."

"Pleasant Talk."

"I had a very pleasant conference with the President," he said, "and we talked over a number of matters of mutual interest. I have no comment aside from whatever the White House may want to say about it."

Later a White House attache said the President's talk with Lewis was a pleasant one and had embodied a general discussion of topics of mutual interest.

Lewis on a number of occasions has indicated impatience toward the Administration for its failure to back his Committee for Industrial Organization as whole-heartedly as the C. I. O. chieftain desired. In his Labor Day speech Lewis replied to the President's exclamation "A plague on both your houses," uttered at the time of the strike in plants of independent steel companies.

'Rebuke' Recalled.

"It ill behooves one who has supped at Labor's table and who has been sheltered in Labor's house," the militant Lewis retorted, "to curse with equal fervor and fine impartiality both labor and its adversaries when they become locked in deadly embrace."

The President, in his own Labor Day message to the country, insisted that mistakes had been made on both sides. There the matter had rested until the meeting yesterday.

Smith, the labor board member, in an address at Toronto, Ontario, said federation criticism of the board was due to the fact that "a considerable number of employers have concluded, for one reason or another, that it is to their interest to deal with the A. F. of L., rather than with the C. I. O." Under the Wagner act, he said, the board must step in if the C. I. O. files a well-founded charge of discrimination by the employer.

Extreme Case Cited.

Citing an "extreme" case, "such as has been charged in several instances before the board," he pictured the A. F. of L. "persuading" an employer to sign a closed-shop contract with its union when it is alleged that a majority of the employes have already joined a C. I. O. union.

"The result of the board's inevitable entry into a number of such cases," he said, "has brought on its head a copious flow of criticism from the A. F. of L. This we greatly regret. The board is not partisan to the C. I. O., and no proof of such alleged partisanship has ever been produced."

Bus Election Ordered.

The labor board yesterday announced it had certified the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen as the exclusive bargaining agency for bus drivers of nine Greyhound bus lines, and ordered elections among all employes of three other Greyhound lines to select their bargaining unit.

At the same time, the first sit-down strike litigation was taken to the United States Supreme Court by union employes of the Apex Hosiery Co. Mills in Philadelphia. The American Federation of Full Fashioned Hosiery Workers asked the court to review a judgment of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals which ordered strikers to vacate the mills.

The Federal District court at philadelphia had refused to take jurisdiction in the case although it held the sit-down strike was "a continued trespass and flagrant violation of the law" of Pennsylvania. The union's petition declared the Circuit Court lacked jurisdiction to enjoin the strikers from occupying the mills.

honey, the choice of city Democratic Party heads committed to James A. Farley's leadership, was "tarred with the Ku Klux Klan because Mahoney, a "100 per cent" Roosevelt man, had not spoken out against the appointment.

Roosevelt "Deceived."

Tonight, however, he said Mr. Roosevelt had been "deceived" in connection with Black, and he added:

"I hope that this is the last time the Klan will be mentoined in this campaign."

The issues have been more numerous than clear-cut, ranging from the 5-cent fare to the Ku Klux Klan.

While Mayor LaGuardia has sat back, refusing, as he expressed it, to "get down on my knees and beg for votes," Mahoney and Copeland have carried on brisk campaigns, with the result the breach within the city's once-solid Democracy has been perceptibly widened.

In addition to the mayoralty contests, with their corollary fights for the comptrollership and council presidency nominations, there are battles for party designations in the assembly, minor judiciary and other offices.

Palma-Featherston Contest.

A contest which has attracted considerable local interest is the battle between Borough President Joseph A. Palma, of Richmond (Staten Island) and William T. Fetherston, Farley-indorsed Democratic leader, who seeks to displace him.

There are 2,702,740 enrolled voters in the city, 2,289,213 Democratic and 413,527 Republican, but less than 40 per cent are expected to turn out for the primary. The polls open at 2 p. m. and close at 9 p. m. (Eastern standard time).

On the eve of the balloting, predictions of victory came from Mahoney and LaGuardia.

Contests for nominations to the State Assembly and to next year's constitutional convention extended throughout the State, but the voting north of the Bronx was expected to be comparatively light.

Altogether there were 46 contests for the Assembly, 30 Democrats and 16 Republican, and 12 contests for constitutional delegates, 9 Democratic and 3 Republican.

Klan Support of Copeland.

Atlanta, Sept. 15 (AP).—Imperial Wizard Hiram Wesley Evans said today the Ku Klux Klan supported Royal S. Copeland's successful Senate candidacy in 1928 and added "if I were there I'd vote for him tomorrow in New York City's mayoralty primary.

Between transatlantic telephone calls and flurries of telegrams, Dr. Evans recalled the Klan's support of Senator Copeland in 1928, the same year it opposed Al Smith's presidential candidacy.

School Pair, 15, Allowed to Wed

San Francisco, Sept. 15 (U.P.).—Superior Judge George Steiger gave his consent today to the marriage of Cecilia Ramirez and Manuel Del Llano, 15-year-old high school students.

Although the girl said she was about to become a mother, authorities were reluctant to permit the marriage because of Del Llano's Juvenile Court record.

"My first consideration is for the unborn child," Judge Steiger said.

Boston Doctor Is Fined In Contraceptives Case

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 15 (AP).—A judge ruled today he had no right to judge the merits or demerits of birth control, and fined Dr. Ilia Galleani, fashionable Boston physician, $400 for "exhibiting and offering for sale articles intended to prevent conception."

Judge Philip S. Parker, in Brookline District Court, imposed the fine. Today's court action followed raids by police several weks ago on "mother's health offices" in the State.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES
This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills. Adv.

Come and See One of the Largest and Most Complete Displays Ever Presented
AUTOMATIC HEATING AND AIR-CONDITIONING EQUIPMENT

Here you will see spread out before your eyes an amazing and complete display of modern heating and air-conditioning equipment—and all in ACTUAL OPERATION.

Exhibits in full demonstration follow one another in huge array of one enormous platform almost as long as the building. Nothing to surpass it has ever been known in the heating industry.

Hot-water boilers, that generate heat from only the flame of a newspaper; steam boilers that heat both by radiators and air circulation; steel furnaces that filter air, adjust humidity and provide complete change of air six times an hour.

Here you can compare and choose the best equipment for your home at amazingly low costs on the easiest of terms. Come in at once—learn the full story of home comfort IMMEDIATELY.

AGNEW IS THE LOCAL HOME OF ABC BURNERS

Heating and air-conditioning units of this huge display are fired by the outstanding oil burner of the industry—the world-famous non-pressure atomizing rotary-flame ABC OIL BURNER.

Starting 17 years ago it now heats more homes and commercial buildings than any other oil burner in the world—there is a total investment in ABC installations of more than FIFTY MILLION DOLLARS.

ABC Oil Burners have the highest known rating of 85% overall efficiency; they have ONLY ONE moving part; they break oil into its finest particles for perfect combustion and do it WITHOUT PRESSURE.

Over 3,000 homes use them in and around Washington—many of them in use now for almost 16 years. Here in this big display you will see the reason why. Come in and learn the facts for yourself NOW.

ABC OIL BURNERS

OVER 200,000 IN USE—3,000 IN WASHINGTON AREA

Don't wait until cold weather is here—select your type of equipment from this amazing display and have it installed THIS WEEK.

You will be surprised to see how easily it can be installed in your present heating plant if you wish—or you can have it in one of the newest air-conditioning units for a small cost.

Present A B C Users
Those who already have their A B C Oil Burner installed can easily add domestic hot-water equipment. Phone us for details.

Why wait when already over half the homes here are heated with oil—and the largest number of those by ABC OIL BURNERS.

Come in now and bring the family. If you can't come during the day we are open until 9 o'clock every night. Get the facts. Compare different methods—then have your burner installed THIS WEEK.

An Admirable Record.

The resignation of James M. Landis from the chairmanship of the S. E. C. was announced some time ago. But his actual withdrawal, delayed at the request of the President until this week, affords opportunity again to express regret at the loss of this able and conscientious administrator. The success with which Mr. Landis has discharged his duties as head of a new regulatory commission exploring a particularly difficult field is rendered the more conspicuous because of the dismay with which news of his appointment to the commission was received in some conservative quarters.

Fears that a young, academically-trained administrator, without first-hand practical knowledge of speculative operations, might be a hard and doctrinaire taskmaster were natural. Mr. Landis, however, not only had well-defined ideas of what he wanted to accomplish, he also showed a willingness to modify his views, without once shifting his objective, as he gained a more intimate knowledge of the workings of the organized stock markets.

The most difficult task that confronts a Government official in administering regulatory laws is that of dealing fairly with regulated groups or individuals while fulfilling both the letter and the spirit of protective legislation. It is easy to play favorites and acquire a reputation as champion of the rights of the people at the expense of the rights of a few. Similarly it is not difficult to curry favor with powerful regulated groups by resolving all doubts in their favor at the expense of the public. To gain the confidence of those directly subject to regulation as well as to satisfy the public benefiting from such regulation is a truly statesmanlike achievement.

The fact that Mr. Landis has established a reputation of this character in so short a time, and under the handicap of an initial conviction that he would be prejudiced in his attitude, is universally admitted. This is the best possible tribute to the skill and wisdom with which he has discharged the responsibilities of his office. His departure from Government service is a matter for keen regret.

Vandalism On F Street.

Either wanton vandalism or simple degeneracy would seem to be the explanation why the display windows in many downtown stores were sprayed with a glass-corroding acid the other night. Apparently labor difficulties had no part in this particularly cowardly offense against the community. The police must work on the assumption that the spraying was done by one or more irresponsible hooligans, though the possibility of a fanatic of the Nazi type is not altogether excluded.

The abuse constituted no menace to an innocent public, as was the case when stench bombs were released last week in Manhattan movie houses. But this does not lessen an offense in which the injury affects many more than those whose property was actually damaged. Such insane disregard of the elemental decencies of civilized association calls for community protest. And in that protest the Police Department is the active agent.

Washington has been comparatively free from outrages of this general character. Therefore, it is the more desirable that every effort will be exerted to identify the culprits in this case. The police are confronted with a difficult problem of detection. But they have recently shown a skill in this line which holds high promise that the miscreants will in due course suffer the full penalty of their crime.

Laurels For Victory Post.

Members of Victory Post of the American Legion are to be applauded for their outright repudiation of the resolution, adopted at the last departmental convention, calling for mobilization of Legion members to supplement the authorities in vaguely-defined civic emergencies. The objection that under the terms of the resolution legionnaires might be called out as strikebreakers seems well founded. But there is an even greater and more embracing danger growing out of the possible employment of members as vigilantes to suppress lawless manifestations that should always be dealt with by regularly-constituted police or military agencies.

There is a vast difference between rendering help in a grave emergency affecting all classes of citizens and offering to do special duty at call to suppress what are so easily called "subversive and law-defying" agencies. The former kind of assistance is a recognized obligation of responsible citizens regardless of their affiliations with organized groups in the community. The latter activity is likely to degenerate into pernicious vigilante activity that has no place in civilized, freedom-loving societies.

Members of Victory Post have shown real civic leadership in taking a stand against a moyement that is fundamentally more subversive of orderly government than are any sporadic outbreaks that might occasionally threaten the peace of the community. The American people need only look across the seas to observe how easy it is for vigilante groups to become uniformed fascist units, employing brute force and terrorism to destroy the very basis of democratic government.

Fake Liberalism.

Humiliating and degrading as is the elevation of a Klan intimate to the Supreme Court of the United States, this shameful episode in American history may yet prove to have a constructive side.

That President Roosevelt will now have to abandon any ideas he may still cherish for packing the Supreme Court goes without saying. After the ghastly blunder of the Black appointment neither the country nor Congress will be in any mood to tolerate further preaching on this subject. But the possible benefits of the development do not stop with the preservation of judicial independence which is, paradoxically, assured thereby.

The real silver lining to the whole sordid affair is the hope it offers that the American people will not again be fooled by the fake liberalism so prodigally dished out in high quarters. By a shrewd propagandist appeal to such diverse human qualities as sympathy, aspiration, malice, covetousness, indolence and ignorance, this meretricious "liberalism" has made enormous progress in the United States during the past few years. It is too shallow and deceitful a doctrine for Americans to accept indefinitely. But because it is also specious some shock like the Black disclosures was needed to bring revelation.

A not inconsiderable number of self-styled "liberals" today are in fact thoroughly reactionary in their thinking. They are utterly out of sympathy with the truly liberal virtues of toleration, understanding and patient progressive effort to correct abuses. Claiming to believe in human perfectibility, they are at the same time eager to attribute the vilest of motives to all with whom they disagree. Emphasizing the tendency of individuals to abuse power, they nonetheless urge that untrammeled authority should be placed in the hands of venal and demagogic politicians.

Such "liberalism" is at bottom merely a bundle of irreconcilable contradictions. In practice the doctrine means simply that the state should assume an ever-increasing domination in all human affairs. Yet its devotees are inconsistently opposed to those Fascist and Nazi principles which are accomplishing in Italy and Germany exactly what the professional liberal wishes to see inaugurated here.

The professional liberals are frequently a highly emotional, if not neurotic, type. They are generally deficient in scholarship, in reasoning powers and in critical faculty. They accept what they hear and read if it comports with preconceived opinions. They reject any and all knowledge which is at variance with their prejudices. While bitterly critical of what is, they have the vaguest possible ideas of what should be. The state, they think confusedly, must by "planning" or other all-wise direction set things right. They fail to realize that this, to them, mystical instrumentality of government is and can be nothing more than a plodding bureaucratic machine composed of fallible human beings.

The merit of the Black fiasco is that it brings the emotional liberal, on whose heart-strings President Roosevelt so often plucks a rhapsodic diapason, squarely up against the grim realities of politics. It does so, fortunately, before any fundamental injury has been done to the reasoned structure of our Government. And, since the self-styled "liberal" is usually as well-meaning as he is unstable, the jolt is likely to be salutary.

For the Black episode stands out, and will go down in history, as a most sardonic commentary on fake liberalism. That a man who was prompted as idealistic, enlightened and forward-looking should now be shown up as hopelessly and secretively enmeshed in a snarl of moronic Kleagles, Klaverns and Klaliffs is something that none with liberal instincts can laugh off. Its psychological effect, indeed, is much the same as was the case when one hard-headed wing of the idealized Communists began butchering their colleagues in the Russian paradise. That wasn't easy to rationalize. And the Black disclosures will take even more explaining.

Being emotional, the professional liberal is usually a gullible fellow. But he is not so gullible as to be able to reconcile the essentially persecutionist nature of the Klu Klux Klan with his own humanitarian creed. Full well he realizes that the Klan membership, ignorant, bigoted and frankly persecutionist, is the nearest thing to an indigenous fascism to be found in this country. And the revelation that it is the Klan which profits by the President's moral exhortations should make those exhortations much more suspect from this time on.

It is well for the Nation that this is the probable reaction. For a fake liberalism which places Klansmen on the Supreme Court can only produce an indignant revulsion playing into hyperconservative hands. It can only serve to discredit real liberalism along with the meretricious brand. It can only result in a disastrous setback to permanent social advance. This is the moral of the Black appointment and its subsequent disclosures. If that moral sinks in, even the bitter humiliation of the moment may be forgotten.

A Problem Of Apportionment.

The difference between the total budgetary estimates of District departments for the coming fiscal year, and the estimated revenues for next year, is in the neighborhood of $17,000,000. Although this is a heavy increase over the $46,000,000 appropriated for the current year, much of the additional amount could no doubt be used to excellent advantage to take care of expanding needs and finance new services for a rapidly growing community.

Increased provision for relief of the destitute unemployed will be especially necessary as Federal support is curtailed. More adequate provision for safeguarding the health of the District is also vital. There is no doubt that Washington could spend many millions to great advantage during the next few years widening highways, constructing underpasses, and making the city a safer place for drivers and pedestrians. More schools, better policing, expanded library facilities and additional playgrounds are required. Indeed, the large increases in the budgetary estimates submitted by most of the District departments are justifiable, viewed independently and judged only on the basis of material needs.

Nevertheless, Washington, so long as it follows the pay-as-you-go policy, must limit its spending to the amount of its current income. Furthermore, the serious difficulties encountered in trying to tap new sources of revenue to cover the deficit of the present fiscal year plainly emphasize the impossibility of imposing additional burdens upon heavily-taxed residents.

The District Commissioners have, therefore, given assurances that the spending program will be pared to bring it within the 1939 revenue estimates, amounting to $50,000,000. This total is only $4,000,000 above the appropriations for the current year. Moreover, half the excess consists of water and highway funds, leaving only $2,000,000 available for other departments that have demanded increased appropriations of many times that amount. Even so there is immediate criticism of any increased expenditure, and a demand that every cent of revenue over the current budget should be applied to mitigate the new tax burden.

Under the circumstances, the Commissioners will have to be extremely careful in allocating any additional funds which may prove to be at their disposal. Commissioner Hazen, it is said, hopes to use part of the anticipated $2,000,000 increase for new police headquarters as a first unit of the long-proposed Municipal Center. Very likely this project deserves to rank first in order of preferment, but it certainly should not be hastily budgeted without preliminary weighing of the merits of all alternative methods of use.

To live within its income the District must obviously postpone work on many capital improvements that are urgently needed, and deny requests that are hard to refuse. But such sacrifices may be a lesser evil than deficit financing or taxation so onerous as to defeat the aim of revenue production.

The major problem for the coming fiscal year, therefore, is to practice discriminating economy. That means that the Commissioners are confronted by the delicate and difficult task of apportioning an inadequate sum, among the various departments of government, so as to give a maximum amount of service and cause a minimum amount of hardship.

"After listening to his wife's nagging for an hour Monday, a local farmer knocked her unconscious with a piece of stovewood, and she is still in a comatose condition."—Ohio weekly paper. Peace, it is wonderful!

Even granted that the majority is usually right, that right doesn't embrace the privilege of oppressing a minority.

"Men are far more expert in parking cars than are women," according to the American Automobile Association. This sweeping statement should be modified. Given a nice half-acre space, a women can park a car as well as a man can.

England's Garden Cities.

From the Dallas Morning News.

City planners in this country are giving increased attention to England's successful garden cities, of which Letchworth and Welwyn are the most outstanding. In these communities all the land is held in trust by the city corporation and is leased to the occupants. In Letchworth, leases are for 999 years. This arrangement gives the municipality unquestioned zoning control and keeps property values stable. Letchworth and Welwyn have never had a real depression.

These garden cities have an orderly arrangement of home, store and factory areas, and nearly everyone lives within walking distance of his work. Ample recreational facilities are provided, and the cities have no blighted areas and no traffic congestion. Each community is surrounded by an agricultural belt instead of defunct or partly built subdivisions.

The nearest American approach to England's garden cities is in the three green-belt towns built by the Resettlement Administration in open country near Washington, Cincinnati and Milwaukee and in a few suburban communities near New York, built by private enterprise prior to the depression. Further development in this field is expected soon, however, to meet the growing demand of American homeowners for planned communities and more stringent protection by zoning.

Why Clerks Go Home.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The incomparable answer that Jack Kay Burness furnished to Sylvia Weinberg's "Government Clerk" was as fitting as a boss's reiteration to a worker's complaint by praising the beautiful 'sweat shop.' Sylvia followed one line of development that attempted to solve the riddle of why Government clerks leave the service to renew their life's activity at home. Jack, on the other hand, without trying to understand Sylvia's reasons, implied that a person who left the service to go home was very foolish.

I don't think the case would be any different if a person held a small position in any large firm. The recreational and social life of the low salaried government clerk is by far the most important for it tends to distinguish the automaton from the individual. What this city needs is a more civilized gesture by its citizens to those people who out of necessity alone must make it their home. A clerk can't indulge in Washington's social life if he can barely exist on his low salary with all the hands stretched out toward him whichever direction he may turn.

I think my criticism may be made more forcible by letting you form your own opinion on the recent gesture by local theaters. If the price increases had followed wholesale increases in salary instead of drastic department economies the increases might have been justified.

Washington, without having the Federal Government as a local resident, would be as interesting as the Sahara Desert without water. The low-salaried clerk is called from the far corners of the country and in return I believe the Government should step in to make this city as hospitable as it would be if the Government wasn't centralized here.

Because practically all its inhabitants are working is no reason for an "All the traffic will hold" attitude as shown by Washington's business men. The average government clerk can't afford a strenuous life on his salary as it is. But with the added burdens he must carry because of unfair advantages taken against him he is justified in leaving the city of beauty and plenty and returning to a civilized life whether it be Brooklyn, N. Y., or Oshkosh, Wis.

HAROLD E. SILBERMAN.

In Praise Of Pegler.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Westbrook Pegler's column in The Post of September 14 is a most eloquent and convincing arraignment of a deplorable characteristic of modern journalism. For one, I applaud this brave and honest criticism of the press in the matter of nude or seminude women, the beauty contests etc., and the effect of such publications upon abnormal or twisted minds, thus inflamed and made more degenerate by these lascivious and sex-appealing pictures.

The injury that the press is doing in this regard can hardly be overestimated, and surely the better class of journalists should heed this deserved stricture by one of its most accomplished and sincere members. The power of suggestion is perhaps the greatest force operating upon the low and sordid and perverted mentalities of this era, for suggestion in the final analysis is but the power of example. And we all know that example is the controlling force in all moral education.

All honor to Pegler! May his penetrating intellect keep up this fight for a pure and clean and elevated journalism.

JOHN A. PHILLIPS.

Puntive Actions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Japan's excuse for the attack on China is that China winced when she kicked her shins! Japan construes the wince as antagonism toward her. There is a familiar ring in this sort of reasoning.

When the victims of Mr. Roosevelt's attacks wince he exclaims, "I welcome the hatred of my enemies!" M. I. NORITY.
Washington, Sept. 14.

Black Reactions.

To The Editor of The Post—Sir: In the light of all that has happened it seems fit to suggest to Drew Pearson and his right bower, Mr. Allen, that they revise their book entitled "Nine Old Men."

First, the title would need to be amended into "Nine Old Men and a Third-Rate Politician." Then they would need to omit the chapter on Justice Vandevanter, and insert a new one on Hugo Black.

And what a task it would be to square the animus of the rest of the book with the new associate justice! It would be refreshing to see how the spirit of propaganda could be maintained yet do exact justice to the abilities—or lack of abilities—of the new incumbent of the judicial chair.

By all means everybody should encourage the boys to get to work and fix up that remarkable, not to say immortal, work of literature.

JOHN C. RANSOM.
Washington, Sept. 14.

To The Editor of The Post—Sir: Let it be remembered that Justice Black's appointment was made without consultation, on the part of the President, with Southern Senators, Mr. Reynolds excepted. The appointment was credited, at the time, to Mr. Roosevelt's antagonism to so-called Southern conservatism and was also credited to the controllers of Southern patronage, Senator La-Follette and James A. Farley.

Also, it might be recalled that Justice Hughes is the product of the most horrible organization ever to the fore in the political life of Nation, i. e. the Republican Party. That party was the fruit of a rebellion, alleging a false issue, to secure tariffs, subsidies, high utility rates, Federal jobs and Federal pensions, which had cost agriculture $1,000,000,000 a year for the past 75 years.

Let it also be remembered that Mr. Roosevelt rose to power, first, because of the degeneration in character and intelligence of the Republicans and, secondly, by his championing the Latin and Celtic cultural attack on that of the Saxon-Scotch culture of the Nation.

Also, it is self-evident that there are many other servile opportunists, of which Royal S. Copeland is one.

But the real question is what is the purpose, other than self advancement of individuals, of the attack on Judge Black today? Will something happen in Germany, in Ethiopia, in America under the cloud of attack on Judge Black? And will such be an attempt to serve some composite minority?

GEORGE W. JONES.
Washington, Sept. 14.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The cartoon in your issue of September 14 is the most stinging indictment of current politics I have ever seen. JOHN T. HALLSEL.
Washington, Sept. 14.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I note there is still raging in the minds of some people the question of the affiliation of Mr. Justice Black with the Ku Klux Klan. I am not now nor have I ever been affiliated with the group here in Virginia. However, in 1928, I was, as now, a member of the Democratic executive committee of Arlington County, Va. At that time there was no question raised of the loyalty of the then Senator Black, of Alabama, to the Democratic Party nominee for President in that year—1928. Had he not been loyal, I am confident it would have been heralded from the campaign headquarters of both the Democratic and Republican parties.

I ask this question in all fairness to Justice Black. Has not prejudice produced this outburst against him?

It must be recalled that back in 1928 Herbert Hoover had the support of the Ku Klux Klan as a candidate for President of the United States. The same minds that condemn Justice Black accepted the Klan support for Mr. Hoover as being good politics; in fact the South was organized with the hope the Klan support would offset any losses in the industrial North and East. If Mr. Hoover could occupy the position of President of the United States for four years after having been supported by the Klan, just why is Judge Black singled out and a demand made he retire as a justice of the United States Supreme Court?

THOMAS R. MECHEM.
Arlington, Va., Sept. 14.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Senator Black's opponents are fighting to the last ditch because he was not in favor of five-men decisions in the Supreme Court. The Senator was for the unfortunate, for justice and the masses. He is a lawyer of ability. Think of the fat fee he could get in a holding company case.

What if he did belong to the Klan? It was a fad at that time down South. Since the Lord was crucified men have fought over religion and neither side in any country has improved from fighting. If one reads of the murders, rackets, crimes, of all sorts, and visits some of our night clubs and beer parlors they would wonder what became of the good religious people of long ago.

President Roosevelt knew he could not please all but believed that Senator Black would please the majority, who want only just decisions from the Supreme Court. Why stir up strife at this time, when the whole world is torn asunder with war and rumors of war?

JOHN RIGGLES.
Seabrook, Md., Sept. 15.

A Grand Constellation.

Once again, this time in the annual report of the Borough Library of St. Pancras, London, it is noted that Dickens maintains his great popularity with the public. It is a constant phenomenon. Other lights in the literary firmament wax and wane: Scott undergoes a temporary eclipse; the "best seller" flares across the horizon like a meteor, and is gone, and though the morning star of Defoe still shines "like a good deed in a naughty world," it is pale beside the grand constellation that is Dickens.

The lesson to be deduced from his success is obvious, yet it is one that writers of the present day choose, for the most part, to ignore. His humor is old-fashioned, his plots cumbersome and fatiguing in their ramifications, his style is patched with "tricks of the trade"—his handling of all these components of the novel can be surpassed by the moderns, but not one of these latter can show a portrait gallery to compare with his. Nor, indeed, can any novelist of the past claim as many characters who have become familiar in the mouth as household words. The moderns, however, make little attempt to emulate him. They do not exhibit portraits, so much as X-ray photographs, and where he was a master of ceremonies, they prefer to be professors of psychology.

The great "character," laughable, lovable, sinister, or bizarre, but always of heroic proportions, and of unforgettable presence, has stepped off the stage, and when he attempts to return, he comes without the buskin and the mask, to show us ourselves as others see us. Then, of course, he can enlighten and amuse, but he can never quite enchant us, and carry us away, as he did before. He may add to our vocabulary of experience, but seldom is it that he becomes a household word.

Connecticut Poetess

ANNA HEMPSTEAD BRANCH.

What better memory to leave with those who liked her as a friend or knew her through her poetry than to print "The Monk in the Kitchen," considered her most typical poem.

I.

Order is a lovely thing;
On disarray it lays its wing,
Teaching simplicity to sing.
It has a meek and lowly grace,
Quiet as a nun's face.
Lo—I will have thee in this place!
Tranquil well of deep delight,
All things that shine through thee appear
As stone through water, sweetly clear.
Thou clarity,
That with angelic charity
Revealest beauty where thou art,
Spread thyself like a clean pool
Then all things that in thee are,
Shall seem more spiritual and fair,
Reflection from serener air—
Sunken shapes of many a star
In the high heavens set afar.

II.

Ye stolid, homely, visible things,
Above you all brood glorious wings
Of your deep entities, set high,
Like slow moons in a hidden sky.
But you their likenesses, are spent
Upon another element.
Truly ye are but seemings—
The shadowy cast-off gleamings
Of bright solidicies. Ye seem
Soft as water, vague as dream;
Image, cast in a shifting stream.

III.

What are ye?
I know not.
Brazen pan and iron pot,
Yellow brick and gray flagstone
That my feet have trod upon—
Ye seem to me
Vessels of bright mystery
For ye do bear a shape, and so
Though ye were made by man. I know
An inner Spirit also made,
And ye his breachings have obeyed.

IV.

Shape, the strong and lawful Spirit,
Laid his ancient hand on you.
He waste chaos doth inherit;
He can alter and subdue.
Verily, he doth lift up
Matter, like a sacred cup.
Into deep substance he reached, and lo
Where ye were not, ye were; and so
Out of useless nothing, ye
Groaned and laughed and came to be
And I use you, as I can,
Wonderful uses, made for man.
Iron pot and brazen pan.

V.

What are ye?
I know not;
Nor what I really do
When I move and govern you
There is no small work unto God
He required of us greatness;
Of his last creature
A high angelic nature.
Stature superb and bright completeness.
He sets to us no humble duty.
Each act that he would have us do
Is haloed round with strangest beauty;
Terrific deeds and cosmic tasks
Of his plainest child he asks.
When I polish the brazen pan
I hear a creature laugh afar
In the gardens of a star.
And from his burning presence rua
Flaming wheels of man a sun,
Whoever makes a thing more bright,
He is an angel of all light.
When I cleanse this earthen floor
My spirit leaps to see
Bright garments trailing over it
A cleanness made by me.
Purger of all men's thoughts and ways,
With labor do I sound Thy praise,
My work is done for Thee.
Whoever makes a thing more bright,
He is an angel of all light.
Therefore let me spread abroad
The beautiful cleanness of my God.

VI.

One time in the cool of dawn
Angels came and worked with me.
The air was soft with many a wing,
They laughed amid my solitude
And cast bright look on everything.
Sweetly of me did they ask
That they might do my common task.
And all were beautiful—but one
With garments whiter than the sun
Had such a face
Of deep remembered grace;
That when I saw I cried—"Thou art
The great Blood-Brother of my heart,
Where have I seen thee?"—And he said,
"When we were dancing round God's throne,
How often thou art there.
Beauties from thy hands have flown
Like white doves wheeling in mid-air.
Nay—thy soul remembers not?

VII.

What are we? I know not.

Ku Klux Vs. C. I. O.

Imperial Wizard Hiram W. Evans says his Ku Klux are going for the C. I. O. They probably would; they probably would. That is, if 40 Kluckers could catch one C. I. O. fellow alone in the woods at night. That is, if there are 40 Kluckers left.

Fair Enough

Justice Black.

PARDON ME, FRIENDS, while I bust a few ribs laughing at our earnest, intellectual pals over there on the left, the ideology blokes who dusted off a spot on the floor and threw themselves a fit of jubilation over the appointment of Hugo Black to the United States Supreme Court as a great progressive victory.

Hugo, you may remember, was one of those progressive statesmen of the New South like Senator Ellender, who helped Huey Long create his armed dictatorship; Bibb Graves, the old Kluxer who named his own wife to Black's seat in the Senate; Theodore Bilbo, who was given a $6,000 Federal job clipping papers and magazines because his need of money was more urgent than that of the Forgotten Man, and Maj. George Berry, the millionaire labor leader and industrialist from Tennessee.

Hugo was going to liberalize the Big Court. Hugo had a broad mind and great intelligence, and it was a dirty outrage, by and large, that a little passel of willful traitors to the mandate of the last election made it impossible for Mr. Roosevelt to turn over five more rocks and discover five more like him to outvote the ornery old reactionaries left over from the dark and ignorant past.

• • • •

WELL, MAYBE HUGO himself was a little bit crude around the edges, but he was Mr. Roosevelt's own selection and thus covered the mandate, and, anyway, his innate progressiveness would more than compensate for any professional judiciary lack.

But now what's all this talk about Hugo Black's having been a member of the Ku Klux Klan in Alabama and his refusal, in the face of a plain accusation printed all over the country to say aye, yes or no or go to hell?

If he was a member of the Ku Klux Klan, pledged by an oath elaborated from the bloodcurdling vows that little boys take on joining the Secret Six in a cave to persecute minorities for religious and racial reasons, is he still the great progressive that he was a few weeks ago and does the mandate wash away the bigotry?

True, that would have been ten years ago, but Hugo was no child even then, and the character that was capable of joining such a conspiracy against the rights of other citizens, if Hugo did join, was set and hardened beyond change. And, granting that if he did join the Klan it was done only as a political ruse, how do you like having a man on the highest court in the country who was capable of taking the Ku Klux oath, with all its talk of God, in a spirit of expediency, just to win a lousy political job? If a man can take one oath with his fingers crossed might it not be wise precaution to make him keep his hands in plain sight when he takes another to uphold the Constitution and administer justice impartially, and did anyone see to that when Hugo was sworn into the court?

AND, AGAIN, if he did join, a possibility which may reasonably be considered in view of his refusal to deny or admit that he did, what kind of character is this that put other Senators and perhaps even the President himself on the spot by withholding this information from them, knowing that his membership, past or present, would affect their judgment as to his fitness?

So this is one of the new progressives whom the millions demanded in the mandate and whom our heavy-duty thinkers for the butchers'-paper magazines would like to see multiplied by six, so that labor will get a square shake in the Big Court and the Scottsboro boys of some future time may be protected against local passion and prejudice.

BUT I AM thinking of the juvenile nonsense to which the great progressive Justice was a party, if he did join the Ku Klux Klan, and the embarrassment of our somber and throaty pals over on the left as they refresh their memory of the Ku Klux jargon. If their great progressive was a Kluxer, then he moved in a set which believes in imperial wizards, grand dragons, great titans, exalted cyclopses, grand klaliffs, imperial klonvokations, kludds, kladds, kleagles, kloreros and kleepers—a mess of nonsense so preposterous and silly that no mature person can recite or even read it in cold print without an inward crawling and a blush that anyone beyond Mother Goose could give it a thought, much less take it seriously.

Is this the gauge of the character and mentality of the great progressive Justice who is going to liberalize the court? If it isn't Hugo Black owes it to all of us, and especially to his troubled little friends who thought he was the man the mandate called for, to deny it all for a dirty lie and then prove up.

Say it ain't so, Hugo; say it ain't so!

Mayor Of Boston

James M. Curley Enters Race For Familiar Office; Chief Plank Will Be Reduction Of City Civil Service Working Hours.

By Joel Underwood.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Boston.

THE BAY STATE'S most spectacular figure has felt another one of those drafts which have served him so well in the past in campaigning for public office. James M. Curley, defeated Democratic candidate for the United States Senate in last November's elections, has already begun a campaign for his fourth term as Mayor of Boston. Current quotations indicate that twelve other persons will compete for this office. On the surface, Curley's chances of success would appear to be about 12 to 1. Less superficially, however, Mr. Curley's chances of yielding to a popular clamor for his election seem to be about 3 to 1 in his favor.

Defeated last November in what appeared to many observers as a fairly hopeless candidacy for the Senate, Curley made it clear that he expected, at no distant future time, to offer himself again for public office. It was evident then that this could only mean the office of mayor of the city of Boston. Its mayors are elected for a four-year period and cannot succeed themselves. There is no bar, however, to another election after four years have elapsed. Curley was mayor of Boston from 1930 to 1934. His place was taken by Democratic Frederick W. Mansfield. Curley, of course, is again eligible for the term which begins January 1, 1938.

That the groundwork for the campaign has been well laid is evident. Mr. Curley has been wooing the conventions of such organizations as the A. F. of L. and the American Legion. Invited in one case but unexpected in both, he made appearances in which he suggested in his own bland way that they hold their conventions next year in Boston where he would greet them as mayor.

Promises Uncut Pay Despite Reduced Hours.

IN PUBLIC STATEMENTS he has indicated that his major reform, when elected, would be to reduce the working hours of city employes without cutting their salaries. This is expected to create about 4,000 new jobs. If Boston's population is up to statistical averages, this would mean that for each job there would be four family relations who might be expected to feel grateful to Mr. Curley for expected rewards. The time tested formula which has won many a political battle for genial Jim has been streamlined for this occasion. In 1934 it was "Work and Wages" now it is just "Wages."

The present mayor, Mr. Mansfield, bears no love for Mr. Curley. As the head of the city he might have been an obstacle to Mr. Curley's chances of succeeding to that office. But Mr. Mansfield's influence has been almost completely nullified in the last six weeks by an investigation of his supervision of certain trust funds by the Boston Finance Commission which was staffed by Curley appointees when he was Governor. Mr. Mansfield will probably spend his time until election day answering innuendos from his enemies. As an obstruction to Curley's progress he has been whittled down to a splinter.

Curley can expect little or no help from the orthodox wing of the State Democratic Party, headed by Senator Walsh and Gov. Hurley. Former Gov. Ely and Walsh steam rollered him out of the convention nomination for governor in 1934. Curley, however, was resourceful enough to run in the subsequent primaries and wrest the nomination from the machine-tailored candidate, Gen. Cole.

Gov. Hurley and Curley were conspicuously nonco-operative during last November's campaign, and when the new governor assumed office, the political carnage which he wielded among Curley-appointed office holders was devastating. As a champion of political orthodoxy he cannot be expected to give his former running mate much aid and comfort particularly as he has taken the trouble to express publicly his admiration for Mayor Mansfield in his recent difficulties with the Finance Commission.

Roosevelt Relation Lends Candidacy Interest.

ONE OTHER FACTOR makes the Curley candidacy an interesting one. He has, ever since 1932, represented himself to be an ally of Mr. Roosevelt. To an outsider, however, it would appear that this admiration is not mutual. When the President made a tour through Massachusetts last November, Mr. Curley was not accorded any of those signal marks of esteem which help to win hotly contested elections. Even before this, the rewards which supporters of Mr. Curley thought he might obtain for his courageous indorsement of Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 when the Democratic affections of the State were attached to Mr. Smith, of New York, were not forthcoming.

If Mr. Curley wins in November, he will be mayor until 1942 and as such may have an important influence in swinging the vote of Boston in the Presidential election of 1940.

The leading contenders, besides Mr. Curley, are former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols and Maurice Tobin, a Boston school committeeman. Mr. Nichols, Republican, was mayor from 1926 to 1930. Mr. Tobin has recently distinguished himself by taking an uncompromisingly righteous stand against the reading of the "Merchant of Venice" in the public schools. Mr. Nichols will probably campaign on the slogan that "it is time to turn the rascals out." Mr. Tobin may be expected to expose Shakespeare as a beast who had no regard for the feelings of Boston's voting population.

All 12 Candidates Adequately Indorsed.

ALTHOUGH the filing date for nomination papers is as yet sometime away, all of these candidates have received the required number of indorsements.

At this point only one serious obstacle to Curley's success can be observed. Both he and his former secretary of state were made respondents in an action brought by the city of Boston to recover certain money alleged to have been misused during Curley's last term as mayor.

The action was begun last winter and has not been heard of since. If it is revived while the campaign is in progress, it may seriously obstruct the success of that campaign. Otherwise the situation looks hopeful from Mr. Curley's viewpoint.

In any case, Boston is probably in for another of those scandalous political battles with which it has been long familiar.

6 Yards of Cloth Price of 'Loyalty' Of Modern Indian Six yards of cloth—probably calico—is the price the Government shortly will pay for the friendship of Miss Evelyn Pierce, 1101 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

The payment is part of an old treaty, signed in the 1790s with the Seneca Indians, from which Miss Pierce is descended. And despite the fact her loyalty to the Government is demonstrated daily in her work in the Bureau of Indian Affairs here, each year she receives her 6 yards of cloth, as do 2,000 other descendants of the Senecas of 150 years ago.

Last night she admitted she probably wouldn't see the cloth, that she would have little use for it anyway. She explained it is distributed at the New York reservation of the Senecas, and her 6 yards will be given to her family there.

Miss Stein Is Head For Liberty Group

Other officers are Mabel Hawkins, Natick, Mass., national associate councilor; Lloyd Sakers, Baltimore, vice councilor: Anna Filer, Philadelphia, associate vice councilor; Matthew Kenney, Philadelphia, secretary.

Adele Wacker, Philadelphia, associate secretary; George W. MacFarland, treasurer; Flossie Adams, Danbury, Conn., associate secretary; Gertrude Romary, Ridgeway, N. J., guide; Libbie Swart, Brooklyn, inside guard; Mabel Faddis, Philadelphia, outside guard.

The council adopted a resolution urging the coming Congress to adopt legislation strengthening restrictions on the immigration of aliens and requiring all aliens to register and apply for citizenship within a specified time.

Half A League

Fogbound At Geneva.

THE LATEST "Report on the Work of the League" issued by the Secretary General of the organization makes interesting but melancholy reading.

Containing in its 240 pages a summarized account of the activities of the organization from September, 1936, to June, 1937, it bears eloquent testimony to the unavoidable fact that the League as a war-preventing agency is in a sorry state. But it also reveals, what is all too little known, that the League continues to be in an extraordinary number of ways the heart and center of international life.

It is this latter circumstance which gives the League the unquestioned vitality it continues to have despite the terrible blows it has suffered during recent years. The flame of life is, to be a sure, a low one. But it continues to shed no small amount of light. The need of a co-ordinating body for a vast variety of non-political and noncontroversial international activities is so great that if the League did not exist it would be necessary, for this reason alone, to create it.

• • • •

IN THE COURSE of these ten months these non-political activities centering around the League covered a large area. One League committee delved exhaustively into the problem of raw materials. Another one, composed of agricultural, economic and health experts, examined the problem of nutrition. Still a third, with the help of a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation, was engaged in a comprehensive research into business cycles.

The Transit Organization succeeded in getting 12 nations to accept the agreement it had drawn up for a uniform system of maritime buoyage. The question of calendar reform was examined. The Health Organization, a flourishing subsidiary body of the League, managed during the period in question to extend its very useful labors in keeping the nations of the world speedily and accurately informed regarding the spread of communicable diseases. It undertook important researches in the fields of malaria control, rural hygiene and similar problems.

Other League bodies took up such problems as the protection and welfare of children and young people, the white-slave traffic, the plight of the refugees from totalitarian states, the traffic in opium and other dangerous drugs.

In this latter connection it is interesting to note that tribute is paid in the report to the progress made by the Chinese government in carrying out its six-year plan to reduce the cultivation and use of opium and narcotics with a view to their entire suppression by 1940. But, the report adds, "the situation in the parts of China under Japanese influence had in the year 1936-37 become increasingly serious."

• • • •

IT IS CLEAR from all this that a considerable amount of very useful work is being done by the League. That half of the League remains in a relatively flourishing state. But the other half, the League of peace, is unquestionably ailing.

The report shows that between last September and June of this year a number of highly important questions were on the League agenda. Among these were the still unsettled Bolivian-Paraguayan dispute over the Chaco, the shattered Locarno pact and its replacement, the Ethiopian and Spanish problems, the status of the Free City of Danzig and the dispute between France and Turkey over Alexandretta and Antioch.

Only with respect to the last of these did the League take it upon itself to find a solution and do so successfully. So far as the others were concerned the League simply recognized the circumstance that other bodies were handling the problems and contented itself with giving their labors its blessing.

THE PARAGUAYAN-BOLIVIAN crisis was the special problem of an inter-American committee of neutrals; the Danzig question was turned over to Poland; the Spanish problem, which touches the very heart of the peace problem, was handled by the London nonintervention committee. The problem of security was the concern of individual nations and of groups of nations.

Nothing more clearly demonstrates the League's weakness and loss of prestige than this set of circumstances. Even in matters which clearly and unmistakably come within the purview of the Covenant the League did not dare to act for fear that such action would either be futile or dangerous.

It is equally plain, however, that what the League finds itself at the moment unable to do, nobody else apparently is in a position to do. The Chaco problem has not been solved by its transference from Geneva to Buenos Aires. The Spanish problem continues to plague Europe despite the 14 months' efforts of the London committee. In the Far East the League's present helplessness is certainly matched by the helplessness of the signatories of the Nine-Power treaty. Despite feverish attempts by individual nations to achieve security for themselves through a rapid expansion of armaments, through diplomacy and by means of neutrality laws, every nation now feels itself more insecure than ever.

IF THE LEAGUE has failed it is because the nations have failed. Its breakdown as a peace-enforcing agency is the result and not the cause of the collapse of international law and order. For it never was and never can be any stronger than the common will of nations.

That common will continues to manifest itself in co-operative action in half a hundred nonpolitical fields. In consequence the League role's with respect to such problems continue to be constructive. But there is no similar willingness on the part of the nations to take the steps necessary to preserve the world's peace.

Thus the League is weak. It is like a ship moving about in a deep fog. On board the usual routine is maintained; the engines are kept in order; meals continue to be served; life goes on. But the ship cannot move on toward its goal until the fog lifts.

Bulldog Drummond

By William Lyon Phelps

His Creator Dies.

The death of Col. H. Cyril McNeile at Pulborough, England, on August 14, at the early age of 48, was felt by thousands of readers in England and in America as a personal loss. He created that irresistible hero of romance, Bulldog Drummond.

McNeile rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel in the war; and he had been in the regular army since 1907. He began to write short stories and novels in 1916, and created Bulldog Drummond in 1920. The next year Sir Gerald Du Maurier appeared in the play. McNeile had just finished another play, which I hope we shall see either this or next season.

• • • •

All the stories in which his redoubtable hero and jolly group of friends take part are not only fearfully and wonderfully exciting, but they are usually sidesplitting. The author knew exactly how to mix the ingredients of Mirth and Murder. Furthermore, until Nero Wolfe appeared in America, Bulldog Drummond was the greatest consumer of beer among amateur detectives. Although his daily consumption reached several gallons, it did not seem to lessen his athletic agility or to "cramp his style."

• • • •

This is the order in which you should read the series; and what a delight they are! 1. "Bulldog Drummond." 2. "The Black Gang." 3. "The Third Round." 4. "The Final Count." 5. "The Female of the Species." There are also "Temple Tower," "Bulldog Drummond Again," "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back," "Challenge," etc. The latest ones were not so good as the first five because the author began to introduce propaganda (more preparedness) and, as a rule, propaganda and other qualities don't mix well.

One interesting thing about these stories is that they stand up under repeated perusals; for generally murder stories are read only once.

Tom McCarthy

FINDING A MAN from Syracuse in Billy Martin's restaurant over in Georgetown isn't in the nature of a novelty. With a deft hand on the broiled steaks . . . and a firm one on the overdemonstrative guests . . . Billy features a variety of customers, many of them from queerer places than Syracuse. Nightly, you can find there a man who can bend bottle caps, using only two fingers. Almost as often, there's a plump little man who bears a national reputation as an authority on Chaucerian English. Phi Beta Kappas rub shoulders with one-time all-Americans; so the man from Syracuse really had competition.

TOM McCARTHY.

But he wasn't worried about the competition and, soon, half a dozen of Billy's patrons were crowded around his booth and another beer slid across the table toward him. For he knew the "Mysterious Montague!"

• • • •

"THE MYSTERIOUS MONTAGUE," he said, "why, I knew him from the time he was this high." The man pushed two listeners away, so that he would have freedom to accurately gauge his gesture.

"I remember the first time I read about him in somebody's column. It told how he'd beaten Bing Crosby in golf, using a shovel, a baseball bat and a rake. It told how he could throw a 250-pound man over a bar without even breathing hard. Do you know what I did when I read that column?"

"I called up a friend of mine," he said, "and told him that I'd bet anything 'the Mysterious Montague' guy was LaVerne Moore from Syracuse. It wasn't much of a trick, calling the turn on that, because I knew that there was only one man who could do those tricks. Besides, I had another clew. I don't think anybody's brought it out yet, but that 'Montague,' alias LaVerne, used out on the coast was one he adopted as a kid. Then, of course, he was only fooling. He used to call himself 'The Mighty Montague.'

"Looking back on it now, it seems rather funny. When we were playing ball at St. Patrick's school, or going out in the country to ski, LaVerne would do things that none of the rest of us would even attempt. Then he'd laugh and tell us that he was 'The Mighty Montague.' Never thought, in those days, that he'd make it a front-page name from Los Angeles to New York.

"I REMEMBER one winter we went out on skis to get Christmas trees. We must have been at least three miles from the town line. Looking back, I guess we were still in grammar school at 'St. Pat's,' at the time. I know we weren't very old. LaVerne chopped down two big pines and, skiing over the crust of the snow, we started back, each lugging a tree.

"I was a couple of years younger than LaVerne and, after a quarter of a mile, I gave out. I was carrying the base of the tree on one shoulder, dragging the rest of it along the ground. But I couldn't make it and had to give up.

"'Let the mighty Montague do it,' he said. And with that he picked up my tree, added it to the burden of his own and brought them both to town. That might not sound like such a feat, but remember: we were on skis and he couldn't have been much more than in his last year at grammar school.

"I've read all that stuff that came out of Hollywood, telling about how strong he is. And, believe me, I believe it. I've seen him do those same tricks. He could break the handle of a car door, twisting it with one hand. I've seen him lift an automobile off the ground while someone else slid a jack underneath.

"STRONG AS HE WAS, though, even as a kid, he never bullied anyone in our neighborhood. He was sort of a lone wolf, too. He never was really one of us. And we didn't know quite why. We used to call him 'Indian.' I'm not sure why. Maybe because he was so fast. He could outrun anyone in our block.

"I don't think he ever had the reputation of what you'd call a 'bad boy.' Quite the opposite, in some respects. But he sure was full of the devil. Sort of a local 'Huck Finn.' He'd see a teacher or a kid walk into one of the rooms at school and, if there was a key on the outside, he'd turn the lock and walk away, unconcerned as could be.

"I suppose he got blamed for a lot of things he never really did. Like the time somebody pulled a fast one on the chief of police. Chief Cadin was a big, tough Irishman, the sort of fellow you wouldn't play jokes, practical or otherwise, on. One day he left a sweater in his automobile while he played golf. Half-way home from the course he discovered what was wrong with his car . . . and, also, the remains of his sweater. It was under the hood, had been carefully wrapped around his fan belt. The chief never proved anything, but he had his suspicions.

"LAVERNE did a lot of things, though, that nobody has bothered to dig up. And they show him in a different light. There was one kid in our block who ran away from home. He was only 14. Up at Lake Placid, he ran into LaVerne, who was caddying there.

"LaVerne was 16 or 17 at that time and he took Artie under his wing. He got him a room and got him a job as a caddy. Artie told me later that LaVerne always brought him a pint of ice cream and locked him in his room every night at 8:30. Thought he was too young to be out on the streets later than that.

"When Artie's folks found him, he'd saved nearly 50 bucks out of the money he'd earned caddying. LaVerne had made him save it.

"IT MAY SOUND funny to you," the man from Syracuse said, as he moped his perspiring brow and reached for a fresh glass of beer, with the crowd edging in for another disclosure, "but I think that having a first name like 'LaVerne' is one of the reasons that Moore—or Montague—is one of the most amazing athletes in the world today.

"All us kids had names like 'Mike' or 'John' or 'Frank' or 'Bill.' With a name like LaVerne,' he had something to live down. Funny though, he always was a polite kid, just like his name. Our mothers, who didn't know anything about his deviltry, used to ask us why we couldn't be nice, polite boys, like LaVerne Moore. On top of having a name like that, he used to wear a coat with a real fur collar . . . while the rest of us were wearing lumberjacks. He had to be strong and tough.

"I don't think he was a natural athlete. I think he built himself up to offset that name. We'd go up to his house, as kids, and his mother—who is one of the nicest persons you'd ever want to meet—would send us up to the attic to find LaVerne. We'd find him. He'd be traveling back and forth the length of the attic on the cross-beams, swinging from one to the other from his hands. That was to develop his shoulder muscles.

"He was a strong youngster and I don't think, even then, that anyone had kidded him for years about his name being 'LaVerne!'"

Md. Pair Christens New Marriage Law

To Robert James Bionde, 21, of Hyattsville, and Martha Winifred Harr, 22, of Branchville, Md., yesterday had the honor of being the first couple to obtain a marriage license under the new District laws. They had filed their application last week and, after awaiting the three-day period, obtained the license.

The new fee system also went into effect with the issuance of the license. Bionde paid $2 when he applied for and obtained his application, and yesterday he was required to pay an additional 50 cents when the license was issued to him.

The Rev. Henry H. Ranck will perform the marriage ceremony Saturday at 4 p. m.

Expedition Nears Colorado 'Sky Isle'

Grand Canyon, Ariz., Sept. 15 (AP).—The Shiva Temple scientific expedition descended from Grand Canyon's north rim today on its first march toward the summit of a prehistoric "island in the sky."

Laden with scientific instruments, traps, supplies and a portable radio, the party of 15 moved slowly along a "saddle" connecting the north rim with Shiva Temple. They planned to spend tonight on Hermit Rim Shale, at the base of the towering plateau, 1,200 feet below the rim. Early tomorrow the perilous ascent will begin.

France to 'Watch' Foreign Refugees

Paris, Sept. 15 (AP).—Premier Camille Chautemps announced tonight that the government was drafting legislation to place the thousands of foreign refugees in France under rigorous police surveillance.

He gave recent "terroristic" acts as the reason for such a step by a country which traditionally has been a sanctuary for exiles of other nations.

Simultaneously police revealed the arrest near the Spanish border of "an Italian anarchist" in connection with the bombing Saturday night of the Paris headquarters of two employer's federations in which two policemen were killed.

General Motors Aides Hear Telephoned Talks

Eighty local representatives of the General Motors Corporation, including Washington dealers and unit representatives, held a luncheon meeting at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday noon. The meeting was one of 51 held simultaneously throughout the country.

Representatives heard a telephonic address from Chicago, scene of the principal luncheon of the G. M. C. Dealer Council. Speakers included Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman of the board; William S. Knudsen, president; Richard H. Grant, vice president, and four dealers members of the dealer council. A. I. Smith, local manager of the G. M. C., was chairman of the Washington luncheon.

Civil War Veteran, Aged 92, Loses Way Back to Antietam

A 92-year-old Civil War veteran in search of the Battlefield of Antietam turned up at the Travelers Aid Society at Union Station yesterday, causing quite a flurry among the women in charge. They're used to looking out for children of all ages and nonagenarians are something of a rarity.

The veteran was Thomas Barker, of Bellemore, Long Island, who was invited down to Hagerstown for the Antietam celebration. Though an accomplished traveler—he had just returned from a G. A. R. encampment in Wisconsin—he became a little confused in the station and was directed to the society's booth.

Miss Edna Schneider took charge of the case and found a Hagerstown bus for him. The problem of his immediate future solved, Barker waxed talkative, and Miss Schneider learned a lot about the Civil War while the two of them waited for the bus.

San Diego, Calif., Sept. 15 (AP).—John C. Donlevy, 69, wealthy distillery owner, whose name was known to thousands of Americans who visited Tijuana and Mexicali during the prohibition era, died here today.

150 Planes to Fly For Legionnaires

Langley Field, Va., Sept. 15 (AP).—One hundred and fifty Army planes from Langley Field will fly to New York September 20 to participate on three mass flights Monday at the national convention of the American Legion.

Langley Field will be represented by 18 light bombers and 6 "flying fortresses."

Barksdale Field at Shreveport, La., will send two squadrons of attack planes, and Mitchel Field, Long Island, will be represented by 18 Martin B-10 bombers. The contingent will be completed by a group of 18 single-seat fighting planes from Selfridge Field, near Detroit.

Georgette Bancroft to Wed.

Santa Monica, Calif., Sept. 15 (AP).—Georgette Bancroft, 20-year-old daughter of George Bancroft, screen actor, and Hial G. King, Santa Monica businessman, will be married here later this week, they said today.

Present Mayor Held Sure of Re-election Despite Primary Outcome.

By Franklyn Waltman.

New York, Sept. 15.—Irrespective of the outcome of tomorrow's mayoralty primary elections, impartial observers today were convinced that Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia will continue for four more years as Mayor of Greater New York.

There was far more confidence in this outcome than there was in the results of the primary balloting which will start in this city at 2 p. m. tomorrow. No matter what happens tomorrow, it is contended, LaGuardia cannot lose. Even if he is defeated for the Republican mayoralty nomination—and that is possible—he will still be a candidate in the November election as the nominee of the American Labor Party and the City Fusion Party.

If Senator Royal S. Copeland wins the Republican nomination for mayor and loses the Democratic nomination—which he also is seeking—the result will be two Democrats against LaGuardia in November. Such an arrangement would make certain LaGuardia's victory, it is held.

May Get New Deal Vote.

If Senator Copeland wins not only the Republican nomination but defeats Judge Jeremiah T. Mahoney for the Democratic nomination, again LaGuardia would be favored since he would get a large part of the New Deal vote that otherwise might go to Mahoney who professes to be a 100 per cent New Deal Democrat.

Indeed, this would seem to be the best setup LaGuardia could get because it would place the Roosevelt Administration on his side, embarrassing as that might be. Moreover, the New Dealers still are in the majority here by several hundred thousand at least, in the opinion of the most competent observers.

If Senator Copeland is defeated in his race for the Democratic as well as the Republican nomination—and some observers think this will be the result—LaGuardia will have a harder time in November but still it is held he will win, because in that event there will be no place for anti-New Dealers to go, except fishing on election day.

Mahoney Is Favorite.

A canvass of the New York political writers—men who have been living with this situation day by day for the last two months—reveals the virtually unanimous opinion that Mahoney will win the Democratic nomination. They are not so sure about the outcome of the Republican primary fight, but most lean to the view that LaGuardia will get that nomination by a small margin.

Some of these writers have been wrong before. But it cannot be recalled when all were wrong in forecasting the outcome of an election. The reason for their unanimity in picking Mahoney as the Democratic nominee is that he has the support of the leaders and organizations of four of the five boroughs which go to make up New York. Only the Manhattan organization—Tammany Hall—is supporting Copeland.

Indeed, in this fight, Tammany Hall is battling with its back to the wall. Tammany Hall has never lost a major Democratic primary fight. But Tammany Hall has been deteriorating in recent years—both in proportionate numerical voting strength and in intellect. Neither Jimmy Dooling nor Christopher Sullivan—the last two chieftains of the wigwam—possess the intellect or political sagacity of Charles E. Murphy.

Smith Error Cited.

Murphy, for instance, it is argued, never would have let Al Smith take Tammany Hall out on an anti-New Deal limb, as he now has done, in a city where the New Deal is so strong. President Roosevelt last year had a plurality of 1,400,000 votes in this city, even though Alf M. Landon polled more than 200,000 votes in excess of the registered Republican affiliation.

As James A. Hagerty, chief political reporter for the New York Times and an observer who has never been wrong in his New York City forecasts, says, "it seems probable that, allowing for a defection of 150,000 voters from the President because of opposition to his Supreme Court reorganization plan and other reasons—almost certainly an over-estimate—the voters in New York City are still pro-Roosevelt and pro-New Deal by more than two to one."

"On the basis of recent political statistics," Hagerty adds, "Senator Copeland's task of winning the Democratic nomination, or being elected as the Republican and anti-New Deal Democratic candidate, would seem to be difficult. Even if he should win the Republican nomination, which is exceedingly doubtful, he would lose the support of many thousands, perhaps 100,000 or more, Republican backers of Mayor LaGuardia."

On the other hand, Copeland does not appeal to a number of Park avenue or silk-stocking Republicans who detest LaGuardia because of his left-wing tendencies. They are an uncomfortable lot. Many of them will not vote tomorrow—and will go fishing in November if that contest is between LaGuardia and Copeland.

Indeed, few, aside from the left wing elements and the C. I. O. followers, seem to be very happy or enthusiastic about this situation. Tammany Hall is badly frightened. The Republicans supporting LaGuardia are gagging, just as are those supporting Copeland. The Farley-Flynn-Kelly Democrats, supporting Mahoney are apprehensive that LaGuardia has stolen their best issue from them—the New Deal.

Contrary to popular belief throughout the country, Tammany Hall's strength is only in Manhattan, the principal borough of New York, but one with now only about one-fourth of the population of the metropolis. The Hall has been able to dominate New York politics in recent years only when it has succeeded in making alliances with one or more of the other boroughs.

For the first time, because of James A. Farley, it has been unable to do that. Had Tammany Hall accepted Mahoney, one of its own district leaders, as its candidate, if it had taken the New Deal, there would be little doubt about its victory this fall. But under the influence of Al Smith it would have nothing to do with anyone pledged to the New Deal.

Tigers Last Stand.

Perhaps four years hence Tammany Hall will succeed in arriving at a working agreement with the other borough leaders. But if Copeland is beaten by Mahoney, Jim Farley and Edward J. Flynn will be the dominant leaders of the New York Democracy—and it is unlikely that they will let the Tammany Tiger again get on its feet. Moreover, the trend of population is and has been for years away from Manhattan and into the other boroughs—notably into Flynn's Bronx.

Copeland's chances in the Republican primary are much better and harder to gauge. There are only 413,000 registered Republicans in the city. Not more than 175,000 are expected to vote tomorrow. Copeland will get a large number of Republican party workers—the clubhouse vote—because they are angry at LaGuardia. Not only has the Mayor ignored them in dealing out patronage, but some time ago to their faces he denounced them as "clubhouse loafers and punks."

But on the other hand, many Republicans will support LaGuardia because he has made a good mayor, or because they fear the Tammany Tiger, or because they want to keep some solidarity in their party. As has been said, many Republicans who dislike LaGuardia, will refuse to take the alternative and will not vote.

Labor Is a Factor.

Another factor in this campaign is the strong support LaGuardia has among enrolled Democrats. The American labor party, under that emblem, last November gave President Roosevelt 238,000 votes.

Most of the members of that party—which now has 400,000 enrollees and a legal status of its own—are enrolled at the present time as Democrats. The American Labor Party—lead by Sidney Hillman, David Dubinsky and other labor leaders—is for La Guardia.

A movement was launched today to persuade the American Labor Party Democrats to vote tomorrow but to write in on the ballots La Guardia's name. What proportions this movement will attain none knows, but it is possible that La Guardia may get several hundred thousand votes in the Democratic primary, where he is not a candidate.

Tammany Hall several days ago took a sample poll in six assembly districts—four in Manhattan and two in Brooklyn. Postal cards were sent to 1,500 registered Democrats selected as a representative cross-section of those districts. Returns totalled 1,053. Of this number 274 were ineligible to vote because of changed addresses. Of the remainder, 326 favored La Guardia; 267 Copeland and 186 Mohoney.

Why Tammany Hall should make public such an amazing result is a mystery. The only reason suggested is that it wished to indicate that La Guardia was strong but that Copeland was stronger than Mahoney to beat him. But the poll had no returns from the Bronx where Mahoney probably will run three or four to one over Copeland.

The New York Post has had an outside tabulating agency take a poll of all five boroughs, along the scientific lines of sampling through getting a cross-section, which has become so popular. Only 12,000 persons were interviewed, which may be the weakness of that poll.

At all events, in that poll LaGuardia received 7,840 votes, or 65.3 per cent of the total; Copeland received 1,567, or 13.1 per cent; Mahoney, 1,380, or 11.5 per cent, and 1,213 or 10.1 per cent said they were undecided

Another straw in the wind is the Copeland meeting in Brooklyn earlier this week which was addressed by Al Smith. The one-time "Happy Warrior" in the past has jammed to overflowing Madison Square Garden. Only one-half of the seats in the much smaller Brooklyn Academy of Music—where the meeting was held—were filled when Smith arose to speak.

The Ku Klux Klan issue, injected into the campaign by Copeland, has proved to be a boomerang, as evidenced by the soft-pedaling of the topic today. Al Smith failed in his radio speech to make any reference to the Klan, as it had been forecast he would do, by persons in the Copeland camp. Undoubtedly, Copeland has become disturbed over the widespread publicity given him to the statement of Imperial Wizard Hiram Evans that the Klan had supported Copeland in his 1928 campaign.

It was an impossible issue, at all events. Observers who have been making soundings this week say that the issue may influence some votes, but they do not think the Klan issue will have any decisive effect on the outcome.

It is a difficult thing to make voters believe an Italian and Irish Catholic are sympathetic with the K. K. K.—and with Jim Farley and Henry Morgenthau in his Cabinet none thinks that about President Roosevelt.

A series of mysterious blasts threw an estimated 200 employes of the Penick & Co., drug manufacturing plant at Weehawken, N. J., into a wild panic and started a raging fire that destroyed the block-square, two-story plant. Firemen are shown fighting the flames from adjoining buildings, pulling hose lines through debris-littered streets. Several ambulance loads of injured were taken to hospitals. Doctors said most of the victims suffered from burns and head injuries.

X-Ray to Be Used To Combat Gas in Next World War

Chicago, Sept. 15 (AP).—When the next war rolls around medical scientists will carry powerful X-ray guns almost to the battlefield, a group of Omaha (Neb.) physicians said today, to prevent deaths from gas gangrene.

Speaking before the International Congress of Radiology, they declared that the progress of this disease, which has taken heavily of life in every previous war, can be stopped quickly and effectively with X-ray radiation.

Biggers Debating Bid to Census Job

By the Associated Press.

John D. Biggers, of Toledo, Ohio, president of the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co., said last night he was "still undecided" whether he would accept President Roosevelt's invitation to head the Federal census of the unemployed.

Biggers, member of Secretary Roper's business advisory council, arrived in Washington today. He will see President Roosevelt tomorrow.

'C. I. O. Speech' Cried Down by A.F.G.E. Group

Delegate Stopped When He Protests Taxation to Fight Labor Body.

By Scott Hart,
A Staff Correspondent.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 15.—They cried out on the A. F. G. E. national convention floor today and stopped what was called a C. I. O. lecture. They stopped it before the speaker had unwound his web.

The speaker, William Mollenhauer, jr., of Lodge 241, Huntingdon, Pa., a slight man, quiet voiced, with a vague mustache, large professorial eyeglasses and a resigned way of taking things, said to the writer after the meeting ended:

Objects to Fighting C. I. O.

They didn't wait for him to say that his lodge wanted a resolution calling for all labor—the C. I. O., the A. F. L., every labor man—to join in one body, in one temple of labor.

"I might have said that it would be similar to the Methodist, the Presbyterian, the Catholic, all churches, joining under one roof for God," he said.

He rose to allege that temporary employes were being neglected by the national organization; said his lodge had no objection to the increase of 1 cent per capita tax for the American Federation of Labor, but they did object to paying the increase when it was used for the purpose of fighting other labor organizatoins.

"I object to this levy because it is intended to fight the C. I. O., and I feel that instead of the fighting between the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L. there should be some kind of spirit of co-operation." That point was as near as he reached the core of his labor philosophy.

But a moment before he had said: "the C. I. O. has 3,000,000 members. What are we supposed to do, take them out and shoot them. We heard a lot of talk about condemning sit-down strikes, and I have heard other talk of direct violation of the laws by the officers of bureaus and departments, and it seems we should be even more opposed to these latter violations than we should be to violations among our own people, even though we disagree with them."

Speech Is Throttled.

"I feel that in many cases such things as the sit-down strike—while they might not have been right—were somewhat justified by the conditions these people endured."

President Stengle ruled that Mollenhauer was infringing the constitution, "Brother delegate," he cried, "stay within the constitution, and I say to you now that we pay no tax for any such purpose as you describe." Besides, he said, the delegate's time was up and from a far distance of the room, a delegate began talking of the Frankford arsenal and Mollenhauer—who is an assistant forester—took his seat

A stack of resolutions were acted on today, in advance of tomorrow when officers are to be elected and the convention ended. The bulk of these embraced employe requests and grievances, among these alleged practice of raising pay in the higher brackets, and ignoring the lower employes. They call it "building personnel from the ceiling." Interior people alleged discriminations in raises and promotions and commerce people complained of forty being construed as the final age of usefulness.

The members scrutinized their House organ, "The Government Standard," and found it not aggressive. The editorial qualities of the weekly paper were examined both by resolution and in oratory. James G. Yaden, of Washington, wanted to know why they didn't make some of the lodges more aggressive while overhauling the Standard, but this was passed off in an official declaration to make the Standard more aggressive by the first of December. No one explained why the delay until December.

The convention unanimously reaffirmed its stand against strikes and picketing by Government employes. A delegate charged that some of the conventionaires wore badges not of union make, and this really caused a mild excitement. Grant Frick, of New York, offered his World's Fair badge for inspection, and denied that Mayor LaGuardia—a good union mayor—would sponsor any but union-made badges. The convention then agreed, unanimously to buy President Stengle, a silk American Flag, union-made.

Unidentified Twin Survives Crash

End of School Service Is Threatened; Group's Budget Too Small.

Efforts to provide free hot lunches for more than 8,000 needy, District school children struck another snag yesterday as members of the Parent-Teachers Association, in a special board meeting in the National Education building, declared raising funds for the lunches was a proposition "too big for the association to even consider."

The possibility of raising funds for the lunch service was debated by the association after it was learned yesterday that WPA under a new policy cannot bear material costs of the service, which furnished approximately 1,413,201 free lunches to elementary school children last year.

Chances of raising the $103,725, estimated cost of the free lunches, are extremely slight, said Mrs. Walter B. Fry, president of the District Parent-Teachers Association.

"There are only 15,000 paid members in the association, Mrs. Fry declared, "and we operate on a budget of between $2,000 and $2,500 per year."

Cost of labor would be borne by the Federal Government, WPA officals said.

Material costs of such projects in other communities are usually advanced by the Board of Education, but as no funds were appropriated in the District bill for the coming year to cover the District's share of the program, the money must be raised from private sources.

Boschen Heads U. S. Red Cross Roll Call Again

Goal of 75,000 Workers in Government Set for the Campaign.

Maj. Gen. Fred W. Boschen, chief finance officer of the War Department, has been reappointed head of the Government unit of the Red Cross Roll Call this year, Chairman Marcy L. Sperry announced yesterday. Gen. Boschen has accepted the appointment, which was approved by President Roosevelt.

Gen. Boschen headed the same unit last year, when Government workers made the largest contribution to the District chapter's drive in its history. Approximately 65 per cent of the total number of persons enrolled in 1936 were from Government departments, according to Sperry.

"With a higher quota listed this year, I am confident that the Government group will continue to maintain this fine record," he added. The total goal this year is 75,000 members. The roll call will be held from September 16 through October 16.

Assistant chairmen of the Government committee include Col. Edwin M. Watson, military aide to the President; Col. Daniel I. Sultan, Engineer Commissioner of the District of Columbia, and E. W. Libbey, chief clerk of the Commerce Department. Assistants to Gen. Boschen are Capt. W. T. Johnson, Capt. J. W. Brinkmeyer and L. L. Boose.

Prominent among the departmental chairman, who will superintend the drive in the various Federal and District government offices, are Gen. Malin Craig, War Department; Rear Admiral Charles Conrad, Navy Department, and Wilbur Carr, Assistant Secretary of State.

Personal Tax File At All-Time High In Capital in July

More Washingtonians filed personal property tax returns last July than in any other year in District history, Deputy Assessor Charles A. Russell disclosed yesterday.

A total of 41,253 returns were made, he said, as compared with 35,000 in July, 1936.

The reason for the sudden spurt, it is believed, was the activity of the assessor's office last year in investigating income tax payments of Washingtonians at the Internal Revenue Bureau. All persons billed at that time were required to pay a penalty of 20 per cent.

'Persimmon Brigade' Musters for Reunion

Indianapolis, Sept. 15 (AP).—The Union Army's "Persimmon Brigade," so called, Charles W. Lindley, of Bloomingdale, Ind., explained, "because we ate persimmons to draw up our stomachs so we could live on Army rations," mustered its forces again today.

Only a dozen survivors—nonagenarians all—answered the call for a reunion here. The brigade was made up of the 115th, 116th, 117th and 118th Indiana volunteers.

Stricter Board Urged to Curb Death Drivers

Brown Seeks to Expand Power of Body to Cancel Permits.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Reorganization of the board of revocation and restoration of operators' permits, expanding its powers to reach the reckless driver who escapes court punishment, was proposed yesterday as the first step in Washington's new co-ordinated traffic control program.

Although a barrage of criticism was leveled at the present board during the recent safety conference between traffic authorities, prosecutors and Police Court judges, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen is apparently determined to continue the policy of suspending permits as an effective weapon against highway lawlessness.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, suggested expanding the board's authority in an effort to penalize the motorist who is involved in a serious accident, but "settles" the damage and escapes prosecution.

Called a Menace.

"We have many cases," said Maj. Brown, "where a driver admits he is wrong, but pays for the damage and the matter is settled out of court. This type of driver is a menace on our streets. He should be made to pay for his law violation and negligence by the loss of his driving privileges."

In many instances, it was pointed out, cases of this kind are "adjusted" in the corporation counsel's Police Court office and charges against the offender are dropped.

The present Board of Revocation and Restoration is composed of Assistant Traffic Director M. O. Eldridge, Assistant Corporation Counsel J. W. Lauderdale and W. H. Murphy, an official of the Department of Vehicles and Traffic.

Commissioner Hazen is studying his personnel with a view to appointing a new board, it was learned. It is expected that Eldridge will remain as chairman.

"The Revocation Board," said Hazen, "has been one of our most important traffic control units. I think it is a fine thing and should be continued."

Board Assailed.

Several officials attending Tuesday's safety meeting at the District Building assailed the board and its operations, it was reported. They contended its present methods offer but little aid to the District's traffic problem.

The board is now empowered to suspend or revoke drivers' permits for speed offenses and other major infractions. In cases of accidents where complaining witnesses refuse to press charges against a violator after damages have been paid, the board is powerless to act, it was pointed out.

It was also suggested that the board be given authority to act against a law-breaking motorist who escapes arrest, but whose tag number is obtained by a disinterested witness. In cases of this type, it was proposed, the board could summon the offender for an examination with a view toward suspending his permit.

School Safety Plan.

Plans for safeguarding Washington's 100,000 public and private school children who will return to classes Monday also were discussed yesterday at a meeting in Maj. Brown's office.

A total of 5,800 schoolboy patrolmen will be assigned to school crossings this year, it was reported. In co-operation with the American Automobile Association, the Police Department is preparing an extensive school safety program.

Yesterday's meeting was attended by Assistant Superintendent of Schools Haycock, Richard Ham, A. A. A. safety director, and all precinct inspectors.

Hollywood, Sept. 15 (AP).—A girl, weighing 7 pounds 4 ounces, was born today to the Gary Coopers. Mother and daughter were doing well, but Father Cooper was too upset to report for work today at the Goldwyn studio.

Town Is Aroused Over 'Nude Deal' Given Freshmen

Golden, Colo., Sept. 15 (AP).—The "nude deal" they assert is being dealt to freshmen hazing victims at the Colorado School of Mines brought vigorous complaint from townspeople here today.

Mrs. Robert Webber, a Parent-Teacher Association member, complained "the entire community was shocked to see six nude students on the running board of an automobile riding up and down the main street. This might be construed as fun for some people, but I cannot agree with them."

G-Men to Be Consulted On Parsons Death Note

Brookhaven, N. Y., Sept. 15 (AP).—Assistant District Attorney Lindsey Henry, of Suffolk County, announced tonight that he would confer tomorrow with Earl J. Connelley, Federal Bureau of Investigation inspector, on reports that mysterious letters had revealed the kidnap death of Mrs. Alice Parsons, missing from her nearby Long Island home since June 9.

The Washington Post

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Compared with finding a house in Washington, it seems to me our ancestors' task of building a log cabin must have been child's play . . . They merely had to chop down some trees and fit them together, meanwhile fighting off the Indians.

* * * *

But house-hunting in the Capital isn't as simple as that . . . The Indians don't bother you much, but you have to fight off other house-hunters from 48 States and 57 foreign lands, all the while protecting your flanks from real estate agents.

* * * *

The ideal Washington realty team is composed of an A-1 promiser and an ironclad vetoer; that is, a yes-man and a no-man . . . The yes-man promises to do anything you ask in repair and renovation; the no-man frowns, scribbles some figures on a piece of a paper, and shatters your day dreams with a loud No!

"—child's play for our ancestors"

You tour the city with a dozen experts on empty houses . . . They are gently sympathetic because you can't afford to pay more than twice as high a rent as you'd have to pay back home. (The rents are tailored to make an Economic Royalist sweat.) About the time you are ready to trek out to the dust bowl to find an abandoned lean-to and commute by airplane, Eureka! There's a house.

* * * *

But the agent who chopped your way to the house with a machete is merely the discoverer, the Christopher Columbus . . . You must deal with a second agent, the gentleman with the Original Listing . . . And he is in a melancholy frame of mind, and justly, because the first agent will get the lion's share of the commission.

* * * *

Then you discover that the last word rests with neither agent, but with the trustees of a bank in far-away Alaska or Maine . . . Gentlemen with no unmanly weakness for telephoning, telegraphing or even letter writing . . . You mention your troubles despairingly to your Senator . . . He mentions it to the delegate from Hawaii . . . He promises to telegraph the trustees; you feel it's just a Capital joke . . . Miracle of miracles, the trustees crash through; they'll O. K. half the repairs.

* * * *

You find yourself at last negotiating with the renovation contractor, a gentleman pessimistic from dealing with too many renters. . . . Your office phone rings all day; crisis after crisis arises about the rear bathroom, the garage door, one coat or paint or two, the book shelves, the perspiring playroom floor, the linoleum, the tint of the guest room, the medicine cabinet. You are dealing with seven different legal entities, all of them incorporated.

* * * *

Once a Senator occupied the house, once a French diplomat, and once an Army major; and they must all three have been bearded men, for there is nowhere a light for shaving. . . . Your first agent adopts a judicious kibitzer attitude, a clinician, a consultant, most annoying to the second agent. . . . Some of the repairs you asked the day you rented the house have come to be treated as old standing jokes. Ha, ha, ha!

To your alarm you discover that what Agent No. 2 really wants is to sell you the house. . . . Even at that rental there's no profit, merely glory. . . . The agents exchange dark angular glances about the improbable sales commission. . . . You prepare to turn the whole thing over to the State Department, as we charmingly call our Foreign Office.

* * * *

Your friends come to see your new home in labor; they are so shocked they almost tumble down the steep driveway. . . . They are chockful of advice. . . . The amateurs who live in hotels try to fill you, full of fight, with pep talks; they say there is a surplus of houses. . . . The grizzled pros, the veteran househunters, tell you to mount a machine gun on the front steps to keep away other house-hunters.

* * * *

Just as you ponder a petition for a cottage in Tugwelltown, your furniture arrives from Iowa. . . . With a glorious burst of speed the last brushful of paint is applied, the floors are shaved and lotioned; you need only to move out of the apartment whose owner has returned unexpectedly from her vacation, and go to a hotel for a few days; soon you will be a resident Washingtonian.

* * * *

One bathroom is still defunct; the garage door will neither quite open nor quite close; the fireplace flues are on a sitdown; the basement, only 28 feet above the Atlantic, is dampish; the lights are capricious. But you have a house; you want to open a keg of beer for the agents, decorators, plumbers, electricians; truckmen, even the trustees of the bank; they may sell the house over your head any day, but at least you have a ringside seat at the best show on earth; part of the rent may even be budgeted as amusement.

Fight Against Tuberculosis Is Half Won, Dr. Parran Declares As $2,100,000 Glenn Dale Sanitarium to Care for 700 Is Dedicated

Post Staff Photos.

America's fight against tuberculosis is half won and henceforth humanitarian aspects of the battle can be forgotten, Dr. Thomas A. Parran, surgeon general of the U. S. Public Health Service, said yesterday at dedication services for the new District sanatorium at Glenn Dale, Md.

"We can now consider the stamping out of tuberculosis as a dollar and cents proposition. Rather than being beyond capacity of the Nation, the cost of controlling the disease can be thought of as an economy," he said.

Hospitalization for the disease today can be cut in half both as to time and money cost by early discovery, Dr. Parran pointed out.

"Since the problem is whittled down to such an extent that we know where to focus, early discovery is easy and it is now time to talk about stamping out the disease entirely."

In Washington, however, the battle is less than half won and "we need years of effort to make up for years of neglect," the surgeon general declared.

Of the 662 deaths of tuberculosis in Washington last year, he said, 447 were among the colored part of the population, which shows where focusing is necessary.

"This is partly due to the particular susceptibility of the race and partly to living and working conditions."

In addition to extension of work among the colored, Dr. Parran pointed to the need for extensions of examination work among boys and girls of senior high school age, declaring them to be also a highly susceptible class.

Dr. George C. Ruhland, head of the District Health Service, presided. Exercises were held in the auditorium of the new 400-bed hospital—into which patients from the Upshur Street Hospital will be moved today.

The new building, constructed with a PWA loan at a cost of more than $2,000,000, is for adult patients. The children's unit was completed in 1934. The nurses' home, to which a new wing has been added, will serve both units. Four residences for physicians are under construction.

Altogether, they represent a cost of approximately $3,330,000 and give the District a 700-bed tuberculosis hospital of modern superiority.

Dr. J. Winthrop Peabody, superintendent of the Upshur hospital, becomes superintendent of the entire Glenn Dale Sanatorium. Dr. Daniel L. Finucane, who has been superintendent of the children's unit, becomes assistant superintendent.

Melvin C. Hazen, president of the District Commissioners, traced the history of tuberculosis work in Washington and declared the new development to be of unexcelled excellence. He praised the work of Dr. Peabody and of Col. Dan I. Sultan, Engineer Commissioner in charge of construction plans.

Representatives of various health, social service and religious groups were present and joined in an inspection tour through the building after the ceremonies. Among them were the Rev. Howard S. Wilkinson, the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, Dr. James E. Townsend, Mrs. E. R. Grant, Dr. N. P. G. Adams, Dr. Frank Jones, Dr. Thomas E. Neill, Josephine Prescott, Mrs. Louise Roberts, Dr. Charles W. White, Dr. Alexander Leonards, Dr. Frank N. Townes, Dr. A. Barklie Coulter and Dr. Melvin P. Isaminger.

Civic Report In October On D.C. Setup

King Pledges New Drive to Increase Power of Commissioners.

The citizens' committee on District government reorganization is preparing to submit its report to the Commissioners the latter part of October, E. Barrett Prettyman, chairman, said yesterday.

Prettyman's statement followed a call at the District Building by Senator King, chairman of the District Committee, and a pledge to renew reorganization proposals at the next session of Congress. Senator King conferred with the Commissioners and other District officials.

King told the District heads he will sponsor legislation to set up a municipal civil service administration, to be operated separate from the United States Civil Service Commission.

Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, had started drafting a reorganization bill before Congress adjourned, and expects to complete the work early next year.

Prettyman said a meeting of the general committee of 21 citizens will be called soon to receive reports of the seven sub-committees.

So far no reorganization plan has gone beyond a Congressional committee, and most proposals have been throttled by municipal agencies which want to remain independent of the Commissioners.

The major stumbling blocks in the path of reorganization have been the Board of Education, National Capital Parks and the Board of Public Welfare.

Senator King yesterday reiterated his opinion the Commissioners should be the sole governing body of the District.

All playground and recreational facilities of the District should be placed directly under the Commissioners, Senator King said, instead of being supervised by three agencies—National Capital Parks, the community center department of the schools and the playground department.

Giant Flag Is Found For President's Regatta

The city-wide search for a giant flag, to be used during the President's Cup Regatta celebration September 23, ended yesterday. A flag, measuring 20 by 36 feet, was donated to the committee by Arthur Copeland, 1331 Fourteenth street northwest.

The flag will be flown several hundred feet beneath the Goodyear blimp Enterprise during a fireworks display on the twenty-third. A battery of military search lights will be focused on it during the ceremonies.

Roosevelt Talk, Parade to Hail Constitution

March of 8,000 Masons to Mark Sesquicentennial; Thomas to Sing.

Washington becomes the center today and tomorrow of a Nation-wide period of reverence for the Constitution and the men who signed it 150 years ago.

President Roosevelt will take a hand in the observance by delivering a speech at the principal ceremony, to take place in the Sylvan Theater in the Washington Monument Grounds tomorrow night.

Under the personal guidance of Representative Sol Bloom, director of the Constitution Sesquicentennial, an elaborate program has been arranged for tomorrow's celebration, including colonial music arranged for the Army Band.

John Charles Thomas, the President's favorite barytone, has been selected as soloist and will share the platform with Mr. Roosevelt for the first time. The observance is scheduled for 8:30 p. m., with the President's speech to be broadcast an hour and a half later.

8,000 Masons to Parade.

At least as colorful as the celebration's main show will be the mass meeting and parade of more than 8,000 Masons of Washington and nearby communities tonight. The parade will start at 7 p. m. at Thirteenth street and New York avenue.

In Constitution and Continental Halls the Masons, who will have with them an escort of Metropolitan police in Masonic aprons, will hear a speech by Senator Borah.

Senator Borah will be preceded on the speaker's platform by Bloom and Paul B. Cromelin, grand master of Masonic lodges in the District.

A sesquicentennial observance also has been scheduled for the Jewish Community Center tonight, with Dr. Abram L. Sachar, professor of history at the University of Illinois, speaking on "Some Lessons from the American Past"

Colored Celebration.

Colored residents of the District will observe the occasion in an afternoon and evening program at 929 U street northwest. Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Mary McCloud Bethune have been invited to make speeches.

Bloom has estimated the number of celebrations throughout the country at more than 250,000. Graves of the Constitution signers will be decorated simultaneously at noon tomorrow. Two of the graves are in the Washington area. Abraham Baldwin, of Georgia, a signer, is buried in Rock Creek Cemetery, while Elbridge Gerry, delegate from Massachusetts, who refused to sign, lies in Congressional Cemetery.

Woman Army Officer Retires After 30 Years

The Army's only woman warrant officer—Olive L. Hoskins, of Pasadena, Calif.—received the personal consent of President Roosevelt today to retire from duty after 30 years of service.

She will enter the inactive list with monthly pay of $140. Miss Hoskins at present is on duty at headquarters of the Army Ninth Corps area, San Francisco.

Foundation for Mature Age Asks Work for All in D.C. Rally

125 Attend Organization Meeting in Capital, Hear Speaker Condemn 'Cruel' Prejudice of Industry in Favor of Youth.

About 125 employers and personnel directors representing as many local business and industrial establishments attended an organization meeting of the Foundation for Americans of Mature Age held last night at the Mayflower. Mrs. Agatha Ward, former director of the Department of Labor's employment center here, presided.

The principal subject for discussion was the program of the new foundation, which already is represented in seven States. Its aims are "to use every means to break down discrimination against the mature worker who is otherwise physically and mentally fit; to foster vocational training and assist in social readjustment for him or her, and to develop all possible employment opportunities for workers past the age of 35."

The group has adopted the slogan, "Let's help those of mature age earn again."

Also on last night's program was an address by Howard K. Bruce, founder of a similar organization in Baltimore. Introduced by Elwood Street, District welfare director, Bruce stressed the injustice of present prejudices against employing persons over 40.

The principal cause of the difficulty which middle-aged persons encounter in finding work, he believes, is the mass production characteristic of modern industry.

"The turnover of labor is another bugaboo," he added.

He believes, however, the prejudice against older people has gone "far beyond anything that can be supported by logic." Condemning the present situation as "peculiarly cruel and inhuman," he asserted "what is cruel and lacking in humanity can't be right. And what is not right can't, in the long run, be 'good business.'"

Many of those present filled out membership blanks at the close of the meeting.

3 Youths Seized In Theft of Auto At D. C. Funeral

Three colored youths were held in Fourth Precinct station last night for allegedly stealing a limousine from a funeral procession which was being formed in the 1300 block, First street southwest.

Police were told the automobile was taken from a line in front of a house where services were being held.

Adm. Leahy's Wife Sponsors U. S. Ship

Mrs. William D. Leahy, wife of Admiral Leahy, United States Navy, chief of naval operations, yesterday was designated by the Secretary of the Navy as sponsor for the U. S. S. Lang, which has been named in honor of Seaman John Lang, United States Navy, who served on the U. S. S. Wasp under Master Commandant Jacob Jones, in the engagement between the Wasp and His Britannic Majesty's Ship Frolic on October 18, 1812.

It also was announced by the Navy Department that two 1,600-ton destroyers will be built at the Boston Navy Yard.

Ring Once Worn By Washington's Friend Is Found

In a visit to a Washington antique shop, Charles Lee Frank, local artist, recently found a diamond memorial ring that was once worn by Mrs. Samuel Powel, whose husband, mayor of Philadelphia when the Revolutionary War started, was a friend of George Washington.

Engraved on the inside of the ring is the information it was given Mrs. Powel by her husband following the death of their infant son, in accordance with Colonial custom.

Mrs. Powel was a close friend of Mrs. John Adams, wife of another President, and Gen. Washington's diary reveals the First President took tea with the Powels at the time of the drafting of the Constitution.

Powel was the last Philadelphia mayor to serve under the Colonial charter of 1701.

Va. Court Takes Maxwell Case On Advisement

External Wounds Could Not Have Killed, Appeal Attorney Contends.

By the Associated Press.

Staunton, Va., Sept. 15.—The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals held under advisement today the second appeal of Edith Maxwell, 23-year-old former school teacher, from a Wise County Circuit Court conviction of killing her father in 1935.

"The real issue in this case is whether corpus delicti has been established," Charles Henry Smith, of Alexandria, Miss Maxwell's attorney, told the court in concluding arguments.

Smith contended external wounds on the head of Trigg Maxwell, the girl's father, could not have caused death, according to testimony of physicians at Miss Maxwell's second trial last December when she was convicted of second-degree murder and sentenced to 20 years in prison.

He declared testimony concerning an ax was improperly introduced and allowed to remain in the record three days. No weapon with which the alleged murder was committed has ever been produced, Smith said.

Miss Maxwell was convicted of first-degree murder at her intial trial and sentenced to 25 years. The Supreme Court held the evidence insufficient to support the first-degree murder verdict and ordered the second trial.

Officer's Memory Ends Murder Hunt

The trained memory of Joseph Caw, Metropolitan police finger print expert, is responsible for a colored man today being on his way to Philadelphia, facing a charge of double murder.

Police from the Ninth Precinct arrested George "Sonny" Jackson, 25, Tuesday night on a charge of stealing a car. Caw examined his fingerprints, thought he recalled having seen them before and suggested Jackson be questioned. A check-up showed the colored man was wanted by Philadelphia police, under the name Milton Clark, charged with having murdered his wife and another colored man a year ago, and then setting fire to the house.

45-Minute Chase Ends in Arrest of Alleged Hit-Run

A 45-minute chase of a hit-and-run driver, who crashed into a parked car and later struck down a pedestrian, ended early last night when the alleged driver was arrested by two policemen in a Second Precinct scout car.

The prisoner, Frank W. Haynes, 29, colored, of the 1400 block of V street northwest, was not immediately charged, pending questioning by police of both the prisoner and witnesses to the two alleged offenses. In the radio broadcast, preceding the arrest, the driver was described as intoxicated.

Police say the autoist first crashed into the car owned by Mrs. Jean M. Allen, 1301 Fifteenth street northwest, while it was parked on Third street northwest, between Randolph place and S street. Without stopping, the driver is alleged to have later struck a pedestrian, Harold G. Waters, 46, 3650 Sixteenth street northwest. Waters was treated at Garfield Hospital and discharged.

Trout Streams For Montgomery May Become Fact

Silver Spring, Md., Sept. 15 (AP).—State conservation commission officials considered today a proposal to make trout fishing possible in Montgomery County for the first time.

Final decision as to whether the commission will agree to stock county streams with game trout depended on the outcome of an inspection tour made by Frank Bentz, executive secretary of the commission, and State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte.

LeCompte and Bentz, were guests tonight at a joint meeting of the Rockville and Silver Spring chapters of the Izaak Walton League. Both chapters have informed the commission certain county streams, all tributaries of the Potomac River, are suitable habitats for trout. Commission experts hitherto have held the waters became too warm during the summer for trout to live, or dried up completely.

Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Again Convene

Hear Reports, Vote $50 for Membership Drive Defer Tax Talks.

Chairmen of committees submitted reports of their work during the summer, and Justin A. Paddleford, financial secretary, informed members fund in the treasury totaled more than $1,400.

Fred T. Devine, chairman of the membership committee, submitted names of two new members and requested a fund of $50 be appropriated to his committee for continuance of a membership drive. Authorization of the fund was voted and the applications confirmed.

J. A. Duerksen, chairman of the parks committee, reported to members the District Commissioners had been notified of the association's desire to have the Langdon playground made an all-year unit, and reported favorable action was expected.

President Weiss read a letter from Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, chairman of the Community Chest Speakers Committee, requesting that the association devote one meeting to discussion of the Chest campaign in November. The meeting was set for October 13. Discussion of the tax problem in the District was postponed.

D. C. Watchman Denied Release on Auto Charge

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Danville, Ill., Sept. 15.— Charles Talbert, watchman at the Department of Interior Building in Washington, held in jail at Williamsport, Ind., since September 5, for involuntary manslaughter after an auto crash in which three were killed, today was denied freedom by Judge John Hall on a plea to quash the indictment.

A motion for a chane of venue to another county was also overruled.

Crothers Play To Have First Showing Here

"Susan and God," Starring Gertrude Lawrence, Is New Week Feature.

Washington's first new play of the season will be John Golden's production of Rachel Crother's comedy of "Susan and God," with Gertrude Lawrence starred and Osgood Perkins in the leading male role. This will arrive at the National Theater next Monday night for an engagement of one week, with the usual matinee on Wednesday and Saturday.

Beginning on Friday of this week, Loew's Capitol Theater will celebrate its tenth anniversary with a gala bill of screen, stage and orchestral features. The chief film attraction will be Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "My Dear Miss Aldrich," a comedy-romance of newspaper life in which the principal roles are taken by Edna May Oliver, Maureen O'Sullivan, Walter Pidgeon, J. Farrell MacDonald, Paul Harvey, Janet Beecher and others of note. The stage bill will be a specially assembled variety revel, presided over by Sammy Walsh, a young master of ceremonies new to Washington. A noted harp ensemble has been engaged to assist Phil Lampkin's augmented orchestra in a birthday overture.

Madeleine Carroll, Francis Lederer and Mischa are the foremost members of the cast to be seen in Columbia Pictures' production of "It's All Yours," opening on the screen at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater tomorrow for a week's engagement. The story hinges upon an attempt to break a rich man's will. On the stage next week the Earle will present Horace Heidt and his Brigadiers Orchestra, aided in a completely rounded entertainment by ten specialty artists and instrumental and vocal groups. The bill will be augmented by a new issue of the Paramount News and Freddie Clark's house orchestra, with Audrey Sieber as mistress of ceremonies.

In "Double or Nothing," opening on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater tomorrow, the principal roles are played and sung by Bing Crosby and Martha Raye, supported by Andy Devine, William Frawley, Mary Carlisle, Samuel Hinds and numerous others. "Double or Nothing" is described as a musical farce, in which new heights of fun are said to be reached. The story concerns the adventures of four honest fortune hunters, out to double $5,000 in 30 days. The bill also will include the usual short subjects and "Events of the Day."

At the Little Theater next week, beginning Sunday, the customary house policy will be abandoned to make way for the Washington premiere of "Forever Yours," a foreign-made picture, in which Beniamino Gigli, former leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, is star. The romantic story was written especially for Gigli, and he himself chose the music introduced during the action—nine of his best operatic arias which he is said to sing in matchless voice. Joan Gardner is cast as leading woman opposite the star and Hugh Wakefield, Allan Jeayes and Charles Carson also are in the cast.

"One Hundred Men and a Girl," as it so richly deserves, is being held for a second week on the screen at RKO-Keith's, beginning tomorrow, with Deanna Durbin, the juvenile vocal prodigy, and Leopold Stokowski, world-famous conductor, heading the cast. Also in roles of importance are Alice Brady, Mischa Auer, Eugene Pallette, Jed Prouty and Adolphe Menjou, in one of his best assignments. The new "March of Time" also will be continued.

Loew's Columbia Theater will offer a repeat downtown engagement of "Broadway Melody of 1938" as its chief screen attraction for the week beginning tomorrow. In this lively musical subject, the costellar roles are assumed by Eleanor Powell and Robert Taylor.

"Lost Horizon," Frank Capra's impressive picturization of James Hilton's novel of the same name, will be held for a second week of its repeat engagement on the screen at the Metropolitan Theater. The stellar role is played by Ronald Colman, supported by Jane Wyatt, Margo, Isabel Jewell, Edward Everett Horton, John Howard, H. B. Warner and numerous others. The short subjects also will be carried over.

"Glimpses of the Heart of Paris" will be one of the outstanding features of next week's bill of short subjects at the Trans-Lux Theater beginning tomorrow. Sports subjects, a color "Rhapsody," "Scary Crows" and complete newsreel world coverage will round out the screen program.

Beginning with the usual Sunday matinee, the attraction at Jimmy Lake's Gayety Theater next week will be a new girls-and-music show, with Charles "Red" Marshall, Murray Leonard and "Happy" Hyatt in the foremost comedy roles. The feminine contingent will be headed by Edna "Hot-Cha" Dee and "Boo" La Von. A sprightly chorus will add to the speed of the bill.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

Film Version of Ward Greene's "Murder in the Deep South" Is Powerful Study of Bitter Question; Hollywood Congratulates Capitol; Conrad Nagel for Regatta Show; Variety Club Steps Out; Notes.

ONCE again Mervyn LeRoy, the youthful but richly gifted motion picture producer-director, has gone in for the dramatization of "dynamite."

Dramatic subject matter of a deeply and bitterly controversial nature is no stranger to Master LeRoy—as witness "Five Star Final" and "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang"—but in "They Won't Forget" he has ventured into the use of material that is especially inflammable. So explosive is this subject, privately screened for the drama desks yesterday afternoon in the Warner Brothers' projection room, that its unrestricted national distribution already is understood to be taboo for fear of violent consequences that might ensue in certain parts of the country.

BELL.

Adapted from Ward Greene's novel of "Murder in the Deep South," and originally entitled "The Deep South," "They Won't Forget" deals with a sensational murder trial in a definitely defined part of the United States, in which the murder of a business college student is tried purely on a basis of circumstantial evidence and sectional prejudice. It bears an unmistakable relationship to an actual case that aroused national excitement when mob rule superseded the orderly processes of legal justice and resulted in the violent death of the accused while there was still a presumptive doubt of his guilt.

Mr. LeRoy took off his gloves when he made this picture. Mincing no words and veiling no situation, however antagonistic to the letter and the spirit of the law, he evolved a film melodrama of grim and fearful power. The actual murderer of Mary Clay never is positively revealed—save as the spectator is able to draw his own conclusions as to the guilt or innocence of the numerous possible suspects—even to the minds of the vicious powers aligned on the side of the prosecution. There is revealed, nevertheless, and in broad, crimson strokes, the murderous evil that can result from the resurrection of sectional hatreds and an inflamed "public opinion." In this regard the play may be said to begin about where "Fury" left off.

Already, so I am told, congratulatory telegrams are beginning to pour in on Carter Barron and the management of Loew's Capitol Theater on the occasion of its tenth anniversary, which will be celebrated, beginning Friday, with a specially assembled screen and stage bill. Among the Hollywood celebrities who have affixed their names to wires are Gary Cooper, Miriam Hopkins, Adolphe Menjou, Joel McCrea, Samuel Goldwyn, Virginia Bruce, Woody S. Van Dyke, Joan Crawford, Jeanette MacDonald, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy, Nelson Eddy, Clark Gable, Rosalind Russell, Eleanor Powell and Director Tay Garnett.

The event will be additionally observed, in a semiprivate manner, by a dinner Division Manager Carter Barron, of Loew's, Inc., is spreading in the Presidential suite of the Willard Hotel tonight at 7 for a guest list that graciously includes the Washington critical fraternity. Knowing the punctilious completeness of the Barron and Loew hospitality, it is a matter of keenest regret that official duties on the busiest day of the week will prevent this column's being among those present. But it would be nice if they'd save me a piece of the cake!

It seems to be quite a "show" that is being rigged up for the President's Cup Regatta later in the current month. A Tuesday night telephone call, that came in too late to make yesterday's paper, outlined a costly and pretentious "bill" for the Water Gate the night of Thursday, September 23.

Conrad Nagel, distinguished stage and film actor and a pioneer star in the early days of sound and dialogue on the screen, has accepted the post of narrator for this occasion. Mr. Nagel will have plenty to narrate.

The Water Gate display will take the form of an historical pageant, which will be opened by the arrival of the regatta queen aboard a Coast Guard cutter. Then will be reproduced in fireworks the battle between the Bonhomme Richard and Serapis and the assault on Fort McHenry, with a Star-Spangled Banner finale during which the Navy blimp, Enterprise, will unfurl a huge United States flag and the largest set-piece ever erected will be lighted. This pyrotechnic masterpiece will be touched off on the Virginia shore and will be 40 feet high and 60 feet long. It will cost $1,000 and burn uninterruptedly for a period of three minutes. During this display 500 bombs will be exploded simultaneously while the U. S. Army Band plays the national anthem.

The entire cost of the regatta celebration will reach a total of $10,000.

The Variety Club of Washington, Tent No. 11, in the national organization, has decided that it is time to shake off the hot-weather lethargy, common to clubs as well as to individuals—although the Variety Club did stage that memorable fight card, featured by Freddie Steele and Charles "Hobo" Williams, during the summer—and get busy again on its winter series of luncheons at the Willard. The first of these prandial fraternal hours will be held on Monday, September 27, and is deemed so important that three "Kings for a Day," instead of the customary two, have been delegated to take charge of the proceedings. They are Sam Galanty, of Columbia Pictures; Alvin Newmyer, Washington attorney, and Tom O'Donnell, popular boniface, which is a sort of free slang translation of restaurateur. The guest of honor will be Clark Griffith, prexy of the Washington American League ball club and active civic worker, whose contributions to Variety's various humanitarian enterprises have been so great that they will be signalized by the bestowal upon him of an honorary life membership in Tent No. 11. Nice going is what I always say.

A popular motion picture fan magazine has issued the pronouncement that Madeleine Carroll, Marlene Dietrich, Anita Louise and Dolores Del Rio are the most beautiful women in Hollywood. It soon will be possible to check up on this list.

Madeleine Carroll comes to the Earle screen Friday in "It's All Yours," Frau Dietrich will be along a little later on the same screen in Ernst Lubitsch's "Angel" and Anita Louise will be seen with Bette Davis in "That Certain Woman." If you ever met Dolores Del Rio in person, you haven't forgotten her and her gorgeous coloring.

The stinger for this one is that Bette Davis has seen fit to entitle her own story of her screen career, "You Don't Have to Be Beautiful!"

"Hurry Up That 'Chow,' Mister!"

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, Sept. 15.—Settin' around (Twentieth Century Fox): Near the administration center of this most modern of studios is a huge five-story building that the average stargazing visitor would pass up without a second glance. And yet it houses the most interesting activity on the lot. Built from scratch during the past four years, the Fox property department is now a miracle of completeness and efficiency.

CANTOR.

It contains more furniture than the average big city furniture store, and every piece is as carefully constructed as a Sheraton desk. There is period furniture, "Grand Rapids" furniture, futuristic furniture—no matter what a director demands, his order can be filled on a moment's notice. There are Persian rugs, New Jersey rugs, bearskin rugs. There are drapes of every design and color. In the "hand prop" department are hundreds of rifles, revolvers, swords, spears. The jewelry department is a wonderland to delight a collector's heart. Ask for a rake, a hoe or a tractor and it will be forthcoming. Order the paraphernalia for a South Sea feast or a Hopi snake dance and you can have immediate delivery. And if, by any chance, some director is ingenious enough to file a demand for something that is not in stock, the small army of magicians who work in "props" can build it on 24 hours' notice.

Few people realize the importance of the property department in the making of pictures. Let me give you a bit of advice: Next time you see a movie, look past the actors long enough to study the background detail of each scene. Do that and I will gamble that you find a new enjoyment in theatergoing.

Chatted with Miss Jane Withers, who is starring in "Forty-five Fathers." Last time I saw her, she was downcast because her pet horse, Bingo, has been stricken from the cast of her picture. A few days ago she informed me, she was exercising Bingo at a riding academy when John Stone, the producer of her pictures, came there for his morning canter. Jane seized opportunity by its proverbial horns and put Bingo, the best-trained horse in Hollywood, through his paces. He answered questions with a shake or a toss of his head, pawed the ground to tell the number of days in the week and his age. And as a final touch Jane demanded, "Bingo, do you want to be in pictures?" Bingo nodded vigorously and Stone surrendered then and there. "It all goes to show," Jane said gravely, "that every actor needs an agent."

TOM GEE is a young man employed by the Bankers Trust. He lives on Christopher street with two friends, employed by General Electric Co. and American Telephone & Telegraph . . . Recently he read that Mrs. Roosevelt would come to New York and so he and his friends wrote to the First Lady, told her how much they admired her and invited her to have cocktails with them. They received a reply thanking them for their thoughtfulness and inviting them, in return, to Hyde Park . . . And so Sunday morning Tommy Gee and his two pals arrived at Hyde Park!

They met Mrs. Roosevelt at the Little House there and then were taken to meet the President. They joined the Presidential party which cruised down the Hudson, listened to Norman H. Davis and the other diplomats aboard discourse upon world problems, and then dined with the Presidential party . . . The youngsters were somewhat amazed throughout these proceedings to discover a group of mysterious strangers following the party everywhere. Tom turned to Mrs. Roosevelt and whispered: "Don't look now—but I think we're being followed." . . . "I know," the First Lady whispered in reply. "They're Secret Service men!"

GEORGE JESSEL, who just arrived here, discussed with Beatrice Lillie the play, "Having Wonderful Time" . . . "Those Catskill Mountain resorts must be very interesting," Miss Lillie stated. "I'd love to go to one of them" . . . "Not me," Jessel insisted. "The last time I went to one of those Catskill places I looked around at the people and, so help me God, everybody was ME!"

William B. Leeds, the Tin-plate King who lives on his yacht, the Moana, sends his ship's mate to friends bearing Rosh Ha-shanah greetings . . . Arde Bulova has contracted with the World's Fair to have all the sports and other events use Bulova watch time . . . Arthur Tell, who scored in the play, "Mulatto," will road-tour with Joan Bennett in "Stage Door" . . . Barbara Hutton made her first night-club appearance here last night at the Stork Club—where she displayed more than $100,000 in jewelry . . . Sally Rand, who last appeared at the Paradise with her Bubble Dance, still is delaying the signing of her contract to appear there during the Legion Convention week. Sally doesn't want to dance. If she goes into that Broadway cafe, it will be as a lecturer!

Last week the newspapers front-paged the auto accident in which D. P. Ingraham was injured and William A. D. Blake, son of the former Mrs. Clarence Mackay, was killed. The papers neglected to state that these two boys were part of the group which conducted the pajama sit-down strike at the Club Bali here . . . John Montague, the Phantom Golfer, visited Broadway's hot-spots last night . . . Capt. Alex Papana, who captained Rumania's bob-sled team in the Olympics, is planning an ocean hop to Budapest September 25. King Carol is backing him . . . Chicago's Chez Paree has taken options on all the French Casino acts . . . Grantland Rice will campaign for Bruce Barton, who is quitting his $50,000 advertising business to run for Congress.

The combined ball teams of George Rye and Lowell Thomas will play against the White House correspondents at Hyde Park Sunday. The three Roosevelt sons will be on the correspondents' team. John Roosevelt, the tallest of the family, is looking forward eagerly to sliding into home plate—where the opposing catcher will be New Deal Critic Westbrook Pegler.

WHEN "ROSALIE" is released by M-G-M, the name of William Anthony will appear as producer, writer of the original screen story and author of the original play. When the thrice-named McGuire was called for on the set, the answer came back: "We haven't seen him for days!" . . . The brokers' convention at Atlantic City practically was broken up the very first day when the stock market crash averaged losses of more than 7 points.

A private screening of Ernest Hemingway's picture, "The Spanish Earth," was given at the home of Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone. The couple became convinced that the present Spanish government is one duly elected by the people of Spain and that democatic sympathies therefore should be with the loyalist cause . . . "Give them an ambulance," Tone suggested . . . "I'll give half an ambulance," Joan stated . . . "And I'll give the second half—but on one condition," Tone countered . . . "What's the condition?" his wife asked . . . "On condition," Franchot replied, "that, in return, I'll give another half and you give the second half" . . . And so Mr. and Mrs. Tone presented two ambulances.

Layout Submitted; Dick Merrill Fined; Pressure for U. S. Terminal.

A new proposal for construction of a modern air terminal at College Park, Md., was submitted to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday by Col. Sidney F. Mashbir, president of the Washington Institute of Technology, an organization of former Bureau of Standards experts now engaged in aeronautical radio research.

A projected layout for the terminal, as submitted, calls for development of parellel runways in four directions, varying in length.

In support of the proposal, it was pointed out that available means of transportation to the site already exist. There are two concrete highways, one of them U. S. No. 1, leading directly to the projected terminal. The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and an electric railway also would afford rapid means of communication with the city, Col. Mashbir said.

Dick Merrill Fined.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department announced yesterday $500 fines had been levied against Henry T. (Dick) Merrill for taking off on the short cross runway in a heavy transport plane last week, and Eastern Air Lines, operator of the plane.

It was pointed out, however, Merrill and the company each have 30 days in which to appeal.

Secretary of Commerce Roper declared he believed there should be a Federally owned airport here, but drew attention to the fact no appropriations have been made available for construction.

In this opinion he was seconded by Senator Pat McCarran, of Nevada, who said that the time has come for Congress to recognize its obligation to provide the Nation's Capital with the finest airport in the world.

To Press Legislation.

Although the Bureau of Air Commerce has received an allotment of $7,000,000 for aeronautical construction work during the year, Secretary Roper said yesterday it lacks authority to use any of it for the development of an airport here.

Declaring he intended to advocate legislation at the next session of Congress to provide funds for a new terminal, Senator McCarran stated "it will not be long before aviation advances far beyond the facilities now offered by the fields in use. Transatlantic aviation will become increasingly popular and it is inevitable the Capital must be prepared properly, adequately and safely to accommodate the important new air traffic load."

Administration support for his position was seen in the announcement, made yesterday by Secretary Roper, stating President Roosevelt had asked him to appoint a committee to review air legislation and all pending bills, so that a measure may be prepared for submission to Congress which will establish a permanent United States aviation policy.

New Commissioner of Civil Service Doubts Value of Ph. D. for Operation of an Elevator

Wants to Make Merit System 'Dynamic,' Not 'Defensive.'

"I seriously doubt that a doctor of philosophy makes the best elevator operator."

So chuckled Samuel H. Ordway, jr., New York Republican, a few minutes after he had been sworn in as a commissioner of civil service yesterday.

His statement came in reference to a question about the British method of civil service. It is superior in some respects, "but not all," according to the new commissioner. Elevator operators, he continued, should be appointed on the basis of ability, rather than for their knowledge of algebra or rhetoric.

Ordway, a tall, lanky pipe smoker who looks like a college undergraduate, committed himself to reform of the merit system. He believes that "the merit system . . . has been developed on a defensive basis as a substitute for the spoils system, instead of on a dynamic basis tended to create effective personnel."

The greatest weakness of the present system, the 37-year-old attorney believes, is that "it has no sufficiently broad competitive promotion system . . . I am anxious to see a system developed here in which all qualified persons, regardless of background or wealth, shall have equal opportunities to compete for entrance in the service, and then, on the basis of ability, to compete again for higher and higher posts."

Samuel H. Ordway, jr., yesterday took the oath of office as a member of the Civil Service Commission. He is being sworn in by Carson H. Hathaway, personnel officer.

Commissioner Ordway added that "it is not inconceivable" that even Cabinet members some day may be drawn from civil service lists.

Kitzmiller Dead; Government Editor

A native of Millersburg, Ohio, Mr. Kitzmiller had been in Government service 37 years. He came to Washington in 1899 to enter the Government Printing Office as copy reader. Later he was employed with the United States Tariff Commission, until entering the publication work of the Federal Reserve Board 18 years ago.

He was active in the Ohio Society here, and was a member of the Typographical Union and Masons.

He leaves his widow, Mrs Anna Kitzmiller, a brother and three sisters.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 4 p. m. in Hines funeral home, 2801 Fourteenth street northwest. Burial will be in Millersburg

300 Enlisted Men to Get Training as Navy Fliers

Four classes, totaling 300 enlisted men, will be assembled at the naval air station, Pensacola, Fla., for flight training during the spring of 1938, the Navy Department announced yesterday.

Commanding officers of all naval vessels, officials said, have been instructed to recommend for flight training all men who will not be over 30 years of age on July 1, 1939, and who meet the necessary requirements. To be eligible, enlisted men must have at least four years "obligated" service remaining from the date of completion of the course.

Susan S. Dooley Dies; Mother of a D. C. Priest

Funeral services for Susan Slavin Dooley, who died Sunday in Lowell, Mass., will be held today at 9 a. m. She was the mother of the Rev. Eugene A. Dooley, O. M. I., of the Oblate Fathers College at Catholic University.

Also surviving are her husband, Jeremiah J. Dooley; three daughters, May, Gertrude and Agnes Dooley, and another son, William E. Dooley, all of Lowell Mass.

Mrs. Deviny Rites Set for Tomorrow

Requiem mass for Mrs. Mary E. Deviny, 87, resident of Washington for nearly 70 years, who died Tuesday at her residence, 1332 Maryland avenue northeast, will be offered at 9 a. m. tomorrow at Holy Name Catholic Church, Eleventh and I streets northeast. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Born in Ireland, Mrs. Deviny was the widow of Edward Deviny, former president of the Washington Retail Grocers Association, who died ten years ago. She leaves a stepson, John L. Deviny, former assistant director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Overdose Effect Critical.

Wallace King, 26, of the 1600 block of Connecticut avenue northwest, was near death in Emergency Hospital last night from the effects of an overdose of sleeping medicine. Police said the man took 50 tablets of the potion shortly after he arrived here from Raleigh, N. C.

Rev. Kyle Booth Expires in Peoria

Prominent in Washington church work for several years the Rev. Mr. Booth left Washington in 1931 to become pastor of the First Congregational Church in Peoria, which he headed until his death.

While pastor of the Ingram Memmrial Church, he also served as president of the Washington Association of Congregational Ministers, president of the Washington Congregational Club, dean of the Young People's Congregational work and delegate to the National Council of Congregational Churches from the Middle Atlantic Conference.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Helen S. Booth, and two daughters, Helen Elaine and Virginia Kyle Booth, of Peoria, and a brother and sister, both of Ohio.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow in Peoria and East Palestine, Ohio, with burial in Vienna, Ohio.

Watts Run Flood Control Campaign Opens in N. E.

A campaign to get Congress to appropriate money for a flood control system on Watts Run was begun yesterday by the Northeast Boundary Citizens Association at a meeting at the Tabor Presbyterian Church.

Several committees were appointed. The members pledged themselves to carry on a campaign until relief for householders living in the path of the large stream is obtained.

Ship Exchange Urges Revision Of Marine Law

3 Bids Opened for New Liner; Lowest Price Is $17,500,000.

Doggedly defying increasing obstacles that have arisen in its undertaking to build up a vast merchant marine for the United States, the Government's Maritime Commission yesterday opened bids on a new super-liner to replace the giant Leviathan in the North Atlantic trade and serve, in effect, as a flagship for the to-be-created fleet of passenger and cargo ships.

Its action was taken as the Maritime Exchange, an organization of shipping interests in New York, was declaring that the merchant marine act of 1936 will not succeed in bringing about a type of merchant marine contemplated. It proposed numerous amendments to the act.

Three bids were submitted on the proposed liner, forecast to be "the safest vessel afloat," the lowest fixed price being $17,500,000, in the proposal of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co. The same concern offered an adjusted price of $15,750,000, under which it would be compensated for increased labor and material costs.

Specifications Complete.

The New York Shipbuilding Corporation bid a fixed price or $21,308,010 and an adjusted price of $19,491,000, while the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation bid $21,947,000 as a fixed price and $20,705,000 on an adjustment basis.

Commission specifications and design call for a twin-screw combination mail, passenger and cargo liner, 723 feet long, with a speed of about 22 knots, a beam of 92 feet and a displacement of 34,000 tons. The ship will have accommodations for about 1,200 passengers and a crew of about 630, and be built of fire-resisting materials throughout. It will be a companion ship to the S. S. Manhattan and Washington but will be slightly larger than those North Atlantic liners.

The Maritime Exchange's communication to the commission, including a detailed analysis of the merchant marine act, said:

Parly Called Difficult.

"After careful study of the 1936 act we have reached the conclusion that expenditures of the public monies have been so safeguarded and hedged around with such restrictive conditions as in practical effect, although it could hardly have been so intended, to prevent privately owned and operated American vessels from obtaining any possible advantage whatever ever foreign operators or even to be on a parity with the foreign operator. * * *

"There are few (companies), if any, in the strong financial position requisite to plan a long-range building program or to adequately compete with the great foreign steamship-operating companies with large financial resources. * * *

"The shipping act of 1936 contains many provisions which, if not amended, will make the accurate establishment of the construction and operating differentials practically impossible of determination.

U. S. Experts Fail To Save Windows

Attempts of Bureau of Standards experts yesterday to remove acid stains from windows of the Hecht Co., one of 16 downtown stores whose windows were sprayed with destructive hydrofluoric acid Tuesday, proved a failure.

The experts attempted to remove the stains with buffers, but the acid had eaten too deeply. Officials at the Hecht Co. estimated that installation of new windows will cost approximately $3,600.

Bernard W. Thompson, chief of detectives, has estimated the total damage to store windows at $35,000.

NLRB Inquiry To Be Extended To Steel Union

'Facts' of S. W. O. C. Will Be Asked in Weirton Labor Case.

By the Associated Press.

Steubenville, Ohio, Sept. 15.—The National Labor Relations Board will extend its inquiry on the Weirton steel case into the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, a board attorney said today.

Allen Heald, member of the board's legal staff pressing charges of unfair labor practices against the steel company of Weirton, W. Va., said witnesses would be called to testify "concerning facts of the S. W. O. C."

"Boss" Laughed, Witness Says.

Affiliation Fight Deferred.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 15 (AP).—Selecting Birmingham for their 1938 convention city, delegates to the International Typographical Union appeared today planning to sidestep a direct decision on A. F. L.-C. I. O. affiliation. Action on whether the printers' union would remain in the American Federation of Labor or go over to the Committee on Industrial Organization probably will be deferred until next year's convention, leaders said.

Floyd Williams Will Be Buried In D. C. Today

Burial services for Floyd Williams, 2608 Thirty-sixth street northnorthwest, who died Tuesday in Harrisonburg, Va., will be held at 2 p. m. today in Rock Creek Cemetery. The Rev. Albert Evans, of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, will conduct the services.

A resident of Washington for more than 20 years, and former chief of the administrative division of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, Mr. Williams for the past three years had been president and general manager of radio station WSVA at Harrisonburg.

At one time, Mr. Williams was employed in the office of the late Vice President Curtis, and he assisted in the Hoover-Curtis campaign. He also served as clerk of the Senate Rules Committee for five years.

Miss Moffett Dies

Miss Susan Moffatt, 67, resident of Washington for 17 years, died yesterday at her home, 600 Maryland avenue northeast, after a long illness.

A native of Savannah, Ga., Miss Moffatt had made her home here with a brother, Edwin Moffatt. Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Ann Moffatt Pelot, Washington, and Mrs. John Nicholas Dieter, Savannah.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. today at the Church of the Ascension, Twelfth street and Massachusetts avenue northwest. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

State Exchange Of Felons Urged On Governors

Allred Denies System of Paroles Has Failed; Flood Plan Blocked.

By the Associated Press.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 15.—Co-operation between State governments in the control of paroled prisoners was urged at the annual "Governors' Conference" today by Gov. James V. Allred of Texas.

He told 20 chief executives attending the conference there is need, he said, for an "exchange of prisoners" under which the parole administration of the State would keep watch and control over men turned over to it by another State. The parole system has not broken down, he said, despite the fact public opinion has revolted as a result of crimes being committed by "felons with a parole in one hand and a smoking pistol in the other."

The Governors discussed the need for State co-operation with the Federal Government on flood-control projects. All were agreed co-operation was necessary, but Gov. George D. Aiken of Vermont was opposed to the Federal Government "taking away the natural resources of States" without consent of the State governments.

"From the beginning we have paid our debts and done without the things we could not honestly afford," Aiken said.

"Now it is proposed by those high in authority to take from Vermont, without her consent, the means and rights by which her people have supported themselves for over a century and a half. What Vermont wants is the right to handle purely local affairs in our own way."

Tomorrow the Governors will go to Washington and have luncheon with President Roosevelt. At the close of their meeting today they adopted a resolution calling for another meeting of all Governors soon to discuss "conflicting taxation."

Ohio Sleuth Gets Gang Killing Clew

Wheeling, W. Va., Sept. 15 (AP).—Edward Schrechtor, special investigator in the Ohio attorney general's office, returned to Youngstown tonight, asserting he had "a good idea" who killed Roy (Happy) Marino, of Youngstown, and Mike Russell, of Wheeling.

Assistant Attorney General George Hurley, of Ohio, previously had asserted Marino had been "taken for a ride." Russell fell in a fusilade of bullets in front of his Wheeling apartment last August 25. Marino's nude and bullet-riddled body was found in a ditch near York, Ohio, last week.

Youngstown authorities were tracing the movements of a black sedan which they believed may be involved in the gangland-style killing of Marino.

Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Charges Error in Taxes

By the Associated Press.

Douglas Fairbanks, jr., told the Board of Tax Appeals Tuesday the Internal Revenue Bureau miscalculated his 1933 income taxes.

He said the bureau erroneously included in his gross income money which he and Joan Crawford received as community earnings before their divorce. The bureau is trying to collect $9,927 from Fairbanks and he is fighting the assessment.

Judson Spofford to Be Buried Near Capital He Helped Save

Last Rites Tomorrow for Veteran of Union Defense Against Early.

Judson Spofford, of the Tenth Vermont Volunteers, returns in death tomorrow to a final resting place near the city he and a grim little band of Union soldiers fought to defend against the invasion of Jubal Early 73 years ago.

The 97-year-old Civil War veteran, the last survivor of the small band who staved off at Monocacy the advancing forces of Jubal Early's Southerners until Washington could throw up a hasty but successful defense, will arrive here early tomorrow, and will be buried later in the day, with full military honors, at Arlington.

Spofford, who died at Boise, Idaho, Tuesday night, in a veterans' hospital he built with his own money, came to Washington with the G. A. R. a year ago.

His avowed purpose in making this long trip was to stand on the steps of the Treasury and have his picture taken—on the building which was scheduled to be evacuated had not Spofford and his comrades delayed the Confederates at Monocacy.

He was well known in Washington, both at the Veterans Administration and among railway men, since he was for years chief engineer for the Southern Railway after the war.

While working as a railroad man he saved enough money to build a small hospital at Boise when his working days were over. A few years ago, he deeded this hospital to the Government. The Government enlarged it and presented him with one of the largest rooms for his lifetime.

Besides Monocacy, Spofford also fought at Gettysburg, in the Wilderness campaign, at Spotsylvania and in the siege of Richmond.

Maritime Board Sends Aides to Newport News

By the Associated Press.

The Maritime Commission disclosed Tuesday a limited number of commission supervisors of its contemplated maritime construction program will have offices in the enlarged Newport News, Va., postoffice building.

An allotment of $225,000 was made available last week from the new public building construction fund to extend and remodel the Newport News postoffice. The main quarters of the commission in the Newport News area will not be moved from the army base, the commission said. Six or eight supervisors will be located in the enlarged postoffice building.

P. U. C. Studying Carfare Increase

The Public Utilities Commission is still deliberating on the application of the Capital Transit Co. for an increase in fare to four tokens for 35 cents, Chairman Riley Elgen said yesterday.

It is generally expected the commission will reject the proposal of William McK. Clayton, of the Federation of Citizens Associations, for a 5-cent fare trial.

Relatives Fight Bequest.

Land Division Lifted By Mexican President

Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, Sept. 15 (AP).—Reports received here today from Cajeme, in the rich Yaqui Valley farm belt said a committee representing President Cardenas was en route there to investigate division of the acreage among agrarians.

The reports said also that President Cardenas had wired Cajeme officials that protests of American landowners against seizure of their lands would have to be met by Gov. Roman Yocupocio of Sonora.

C. I. O. Called Red Tool.

Cincinnati, Sept. 15 (AP).—Lewis G. Hines, Philadelphia, organization director for the American Federation of Labor, told delegates to the International Metal Polishers' convention Tuesday that the Committee for Industrial Organization is "almost completely" controlled by the Communist Party.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Once, several years ago, one of my closest friends made this remark to me when discussing mutual friends who were having marital difficulties: "Well, if your Bob or my Jack starts that kind of life we will know the end of the world has come." Now, for more than three years, I have had that to face—the end of my world.

* * * *

He who for 16 years was a model of loving faithfulness has turned from me to other women, saying he can no longer have fun with me. He spends many evenings with men friends in beer parlors, drinking, dancing, necking and petting with the class of women to be found there. He says he is doing nothing to be ashamed of; nothing morally wrong; nothing that hurts me; only having a little fun.

* * * *

However, there had to be the woman to attract and lead him to this kind of life. Why, oh, why do there have to be young, attractive, predatory women? We were happy before he met her. We had our troubles, of course; the usual number of quarrels; but now he wants to get away from me as much as possible and is never loving and affectionate with me, though he is toward the children. I am sure his great infatuation for this first woman has passed, though he still sees her; but I fear there is now someone else, as he is more and more secretive with me and where I once believed him implicity, now I doubt everything he says.

* * * *

Perhaps I am partly to blame for this state of affairs. Probably I have nagged, questioned and accused him when the wise thing to have done would have been to keep silent. But it's done and now I want help in changing the situation. Tell me, Miss Haworth, what would you do if you were nearly 40, a wife for 19 years, a mother of several children, still pretty and young looking, still adored your husband as I do mine (in spite of the wounds he has inflicted), and he had turned from you as mine has done?

* * * *

Sometimes I feel the children and I are all he really cares about; yet other times the pain of this situation is nearly unbearable. What can I do to win him back? I tried the "sauce for the goose" method but it was no good. I become bored and disgusted with such a curative. Please help me in whatever way you can.

BROKEN-HEARTED WIFE.

The Thing to Do.

DEAR B. H. W.: The end of the world hasn't come for you, though it well may be that one phase, one chapter, of your life is finished; namely, that chapter in which you enjoyed, without thought of the morrow, your husband's wholehearted love. Crying over spilt milk, grouping bitterly for what you have lost, isn't going to help you. Two other things may. One thing to do, the first thing—in order to find where you stand; what your chances are of recovering some semblance of that lost happiness—is to try to re-establish, on another foundation, some social comradeship with your husband.

* * * *

Scolding, nagging, quizzing, accusing, aren't going to help. Take the higher, braver, more tolerant approach. See if you can't talk yourself back into some harmony with him. Set the stage carefully. Get yourself up so that you are looking your youngest, prettiest and sweetest; and suit your approach to your appearance. Some evening, prepare all his favorite dishes for dinner; be your social best during the evening, and after dinner ask him with gentle courtesy if you may have a confidential talk with him.

* * * *

He'll probably be wary; stony faced. But don't let that scare you off. Have his favorite highball ready, since he likes to relax over a drink; see that cigars or cigarettes (whichever he prefers) and an ash tray are at hand, and then make your appeal. Ask him if he won't give you a chance to be his best girl for one more trial period; if, instead of seeking "fun" outside the home away from you, he wouldn't be willing, as a worthwhile experiment, to seek it outside the home with you for a time. Tell him you've learned your lesson; that you realize whining is worse than useless in times of crisis; and that all you ask now is a gambler's chance to work for happiness. Tell him your happiness is with him, wherever he is and whatever he is doing; that you love him today as much, perhaps more, than ever before; that you look back now with considerable remorse at your own conduct during the past three years; but that what's past is past for both of you and from now on you propose to make the very best of what the day and the morrow brings.

* * * *

You might wind up your appeal something like this: "Bob, I'm asking you to give me a month, two months, whichever you say, out of your life, during which let's both pretend that there never has been, never could be, anyone else but me for you. I want you to take me out, make love to me, just as you used to do. I'll go dining, dancing, drinking, anything you suggest. Let's do it in a spirit of make-believe; it won't be make-believe for me; I'll enjoy every minute of it; but make-believe for you, and let's see where it brings us in the end. If, at the end of two months, or a month, even, you still can't 'find any fun' with me, I'll take my licking like a good sport. I hope, and you won't hear any squawking from me about your comings and goings in future. How about it? Is it a go? Remember, I'm asking you to pretend I'm your very best girl; that you're terribly interested; that you're engaged in rushing me off my feet!"

* * * *

If your husband has any spark of a sense of humor; any drop of sporting blood (and you might tell him so); if there are any lurking embers of romantic love in his attachment for you (although don't say this), I believe he will accept your proposition, and it may be the first step toward a renewal of your old-time happy relationship. And if he accepts, you'll have to play your role like a consummate actress. There can be no deep sighs, pensive silences, unreadable glances, when he is around.

* * * *

If your husband rejects the proposition as ridiculous; or if he accepts it and still it fails to turn the tide against those "young, attractive, predatory" other women, you have only one recourse. That is to pull yourself together and go on without his sweetheart love. If you hope to preserve your own personality as one interesting, stimulating and worthwhile, and your marriage from the shoals of divorce, you must achieve that serenity, that poise and balance, which comes with compensatory interests in life.

* * * *

Your greatest consolation should be the fact that he has never suggested divorce; that your rivals have been play girls in general rather than one woman in particular; and that there are still times when you sense the fact that he is really interested only in yourself and the children. Since their social security and yours would be seriously jeopardized by a broken home, you must so conduct yourself that you do not drive him into the arms of some husband-seeking, unscrupulous other woman. M. H.

"Unit Plan" Kitchen Created by Uncle Sam

Beat the egg yolks well. Add the orange and lemon juice, sugar and grated orange rind. Sift the flour, salt and soda and fold in. Add the beaten egg whites. Pour into paper cases and bake in a moderate oven for 35 minutes at 325 degrees F. When cold, cover with orange icing.

Jade Green for Evening.

A favorite gown in this color is designed for formal wear and fashioned from chiffon. Shoulder-looped scarfs, that hang to the hemline, adorn either side. They may be worn over the head, as a kerchief, allowed to hang, or wrapped about the waistline forming a wide girdle. The gown has a circular skirt that clings tight to the hips, then flares out widely. It is 25 yards about the hem.

'Kitchen of Future' Discovered In Model Houses in Greenbelt

By Jean Green.
The Post Food Editor.

THE MODEL KITCHEN of the future—that Utopian place where all drudgery will be eliminted—has long captured the imagination of all persons interested in cookery. So it was with eagerness that I visited the Greenbelt Model Housing Community to discover what the Government is doing to make things easier for the woman who must do her own work.

JEAN GREEN.

In approaching these modernistic houses with their almost startling color schemes, I was interested in learning how this daring use of color would be reflected in the kitchen. But at first glance the kitchens all seemed entirely conventional with black and beige decoration. However, I found many new developments along the lines of health preservation time saving and planning.

The kitchens were planned with definite types of families in mind, and were designated as A, B and C. In each of these, the plans were organized along the unit line. There was the unit for cooking, one for food preparation and one for dishwashing.

"White Collar" Unit.

The first kitchen visited was the TYPE A, designed for the "white collar" families. I don't believe that even the most elaborate file system in the office could compare with the system here. There were drawers for stew pans, paring knives, baking dishes, and kitchen linens. Above and on either side of the sink were enameled metal cabinets for storing china and glassware, and all of the dozens of things that the well ordered kitchen should have. At one end was a full length compartment in the cabinet unit for the vacuum cleaner. Outside the door was a cabinet for the mops, the brooms, and perhaps the garden tools. At the opposite end of the kitchen was a small closet that my mother would call the pantry, but what was here called the storage closet with shelves for fruit and emergency supplies. It was also wired so that it could at a more prosperous day be changed into a lavatory.

The system of shelves invaded even the door of the refrigerator. Here were small shelves for fruits, larger ones for the milk bottles, besides the ordinary series of shelves inside the box.

The compact two in one arrangement of equipment was extended even to the sink. The wooden drain concealed a deep compartment for storing what I was told was "light laundry," that could be washed without aid of the electric washer.

Large Windows.

Above the sink were huge windows that flooded the kitchen with light. They were in panels and operated by a crank system opening out rather than up and down. The copper screens were on the inside but to make window washing easy, the screens simply unscrewed.

Another convenient thing I couldn't overlook was the way in which the light sockets were grouped about the kitchen. They were in all work spots where a particular type of electric equipment would be needed.

As to health features. First, there was the matter of proper lighting. No eye strain could be possible. In kitchens in which the sink was not underneath huge windows, wall lights were used or panels of indirect light underneath the top cabinet shelf. There was also an indirect ceiling light.

The kitchen was designed for cleanliness. The floors were composition material, the walls painted with washable paint, the cabinets and stove of enamel. There were no crevices under the equipment for lurking germs. The equipment was at a comfortable height. There were no spaces under things that would need an extra bend in cleaning. Metal baseboards about 4 inches high were used under the cabinets as a platform for them. These were painted black, the same color as the composition floor. The stove was a three burner electric with the oven and broiler under the burners. The refrigerator also rested on a four-inch base the same shade of black as the floors.

The same sort of practical planning was used in the other kitchen. For the bachelor girl, kitchen (type B) the kitchen in pullman size formed one side of the living room. The sink was banked on one side by an electric stove and on the other by the refrigerator. Above were cabinets that reached to the ceiling.

In the experimental house, the kitchen (type C) was designed for the farm mother who would have much canning and cooking to do. In this kitchen were chains of cabinets. One was near the stove, another near the sink, and the third convenient to the electric refrigerator.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, Sept. 15.

TAXI-HORNS tooted throughout our five boroughs last Monday morn, and our 1,225,000 tots toddled, cursing, off to public school. Yes, we have that many dependent on the dear little town for everything from the alphabet to solid geometry, and you must mit it is quite a mess of kids.

To instruct and admonish this raft of hopefuls, no less than 37,500 harassed teachers are needed, and some of the local youth are undoubtedly handsful, thanks to the refining and ennobling influences of the city streets. And in spite of all we can do, we just can't keep up with the supply of new and modern buildings to house them. Although four new schools opened on Monday, the town is still shy a great many.

For this reason, most of the academies on Manhattan Island are depressing-looking joints. They are Big Red Schoolhouses, built of vintage brick and resembling the sort of workhouse long since demolished as too grim for prisoners. There's nothing romantic about a New York school at all, at all. They haven't the meaningful names of the alma maters we knew as children, but are labeled "P. S. 146" and so on as the case may be. In short, they are numbered like prisoners, and can you imagine a child getting sentimentally steamed up about "Dear old Public School 88." Oddly enough, thousands do, and this town is sprinkled with alumnae associations made up of old New Yorkers.

But to those of us who toddled off to book-learning along the tree-shaded streets of smaller cities, New York public schools are pretty dismal propositions, and our hearts go out to the asphalt-bound kids!

It is pretty generally admitted, by experts, that "the best chorus girl in New York" is Mildred Webb, now teaching the other girls who will perform in "The Show Is On" when that tune show goes on its tour this fall. That's how good Mildred is—she's a professor now, as well as an ace!

* * * *

Constance Cummings, lovely girl of stage and screen, is living just across the street from me in dear old Murray Hill, and I'm having a hard time keeping my spouse away from her door, just in hopes of seeing her come out for a saunter.

* * * *

Warren Pershing, the general's son, opened his season as one of our town's leading dancing beaux by appearing at the Stork Club the other night. And on the subject of beaux, next Wednesday, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, horseman and bachelor, reaches the advanced age of 25 and comes into the second slice of the Vanderbilt boodle left by his father. This is expected to drive the single young ladies of the Nation still further frantic. The lines form at the left and right, girls.

Wielding Hammer Advocated to Teach Control to Children

New York (AP).—Hammer and nails and a chunk of wood—those make fine toys, even for a youngster of 2½, says Elsie Stange, New York nursery school teacher.

Wielding a hammer is fine for teaching control and concentration, Miss Stange reports. But, she warns, children must be supervised at this sort of play until they get the hang of it.

"Children often are ambidextrous when they're small," Miss Stange says. "Their games tend to develop the arm muscles equally. But small muscles, like those in the fingers, develop last. When it comes to finger manipulation a child can't be agile with either hand."

Claire Tilden Dress Pattern

ARE YOU a fashion-wise "business girl," or a gay young Miss that dashes off to school of a morning? Whichever you are, you're sure to want this radiant little peplum frock in your wardrobe, and (good news!), the most inexperienced "Junior Miss" will find Pattern 419 so easy to make that she'll have her smart, new style-winner finished in a jiffy. Outstanding fashion-features of this Claire Tilden triumph are its becoming pointed waistline (flatters your figure, no end!), puffed sleeves trmmed with crisp cuffs, and a jaunty peplum, which may be omitted, if desired. Ideal in challis, crepe, or taffeta. Detailed sewing guide accompanies this pattern.

Pattern 419 is cut in misses' sizes 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards 39-inch fabric.

Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (preferably coins) for this pattern. Write clearly size, name, address and style number.

Today's HEALTH TALK

Foods for Diabetics.

To a certain extent the success of a treatment for diabetes depends on how much money the patient has. The privileged diabetic is sent to a hospital where his case is studied for a week or more, and the exact diet is calculated. He is taught to examine his own urine for sugar, and to weigh his own diet. If insulin is needed he is taught to give it to himself. He goes home and if he is intelligent and has enough will power to stay on his diet he improves. If he doesn't improve, he goes back to the doctor to find out what is the matter.

But the underprivileged diabetic must be taken care of, and doctors and hospital agencies all over the country are waking up to the means of doing this efficiently. It is recognized as the function of the general practitioner. The diabetic's diet can be worked out in the doctor's office, or in the Out Patient clinic and in the home.

In the office or clinic he is weighed and the severity of his case estimated. He is taught how to weigh foods, calculate a diet and examine his own urine for sugar.

Then to teach him to prepare his food. Diet lists are depressing things, but they are necessary; the simpler they are, the better.

For a long time it is better for any diabetic to give up the following articles of food entirely: Sugar, bread, potatoes, corn, rice, milk, candy, ice cream, pies, puddings, soft beverages (such as ginger ale, coca-cola), apples, pears, grapes, bananas, plums and grape juice.

But there are lots of dishes left—green vegetables, fruits, eggs, bacon, meat, fish, butter, cream, cheese, salads and salad dressings, cereals, soup. Bread is the worst problem for most, but there is always gluten bread or other diabetic bread.

The tendency now is to allow higher carbohydrate diets. This does not mean any amount, but higher than they used to be.

So to encourage you, a diabetic menu can be made thus:

Dinner—Same as lunch. Add salad.

YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!

By Ida Jean Kain.

THE DESSERT course is the primrose path to embonpoint. Topping off the meal with 450 carbohydrate calories is a swift and certain way of adding to your weight.

The dessert habit grows on you. After a few weeks at that summer hotel where the pastry cook tempted you to forget that there are 100 calories per inch of pie, you lack the proper respect for carbonydrate calories.

Desserts cannot add to your weight, of course, unless they are in excess of your calorie needs. Coming at the end of the meal, desserts are almost invariably in excess of your requirements—you should stop at the salad course. If you can stop with the salad, you've got your weight licked. So, in the fall figure program, the last thing on your menu is the first thing to go—no more pie!

On a strict reducing diet, the dessert margin shrinks. You cannot have a rich dessert and a balanced menu on 1,000 calories. However, you can have fruit. Of course, you may not look forward with much anticipation to dinner with a climax in apple sauce, but you'll get used to it . . . and like it!

On 1,200 calories to 1,400 calories, you may have 350 calories for dessert at least every other day, and you will still lose your one to two pounds a week. Any complaints? But to do this you must keep an exact check on your calories.

On an average, you should count pie at 100 calories per inch of circumference, custards about 150 calories per half cup, and plain cake at 100 calories per one and three-fourths inch cube. Here are the exact calories for your favorite desserts:

Gunthers Entertained Before Leaving Capital

New Minister to Rumania and Wife to Call on Mrs. Cordell Hull and Be Guests of Honor at 2 Dinners; Grotrians Are Feted.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

With their departure from the Capital scheduled for next Monday, the new Minister to Rumania, Franklin Mott Gunther, and Mrs. Gunther are so busy putting the finishing touches on packing and getting their Georgetown house ready to rent they are sidestepping most social invitations.

This afternoon, however, they will call on Mrs. Cordell Hull, who has had a series of small, informal parties for departing diplomats and other Capital visitors all summer. This evening they will be guests of honor at a dinner given by the Charge d'Affaires of the Rumanian Legation, Mircea Victor Babes and Mme. Babes. Also on their social calendar this week-end is a dinner Saturday evening, with Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins as hostess.

HOPE R. MILLER.

Since they arrived in Washington two weeks ago, after having spent most of the summer abroad, the Gunthers have plunged into a constant round of hailing and farewelling. Both have many friends in the Capital, and their home—which, incidentally, is the house in which Admiral Decatur's widow once lived—has been the scene of many brilliant gatherings in past years.

According to present plans the Minister and Mrs. Gunther will leave Washington on Monday, and a week from today will sail on the Washington for Europe. In the 22 years in which Mr. Gunther was in diplomatic service, he held posts in Japan, France, Spain, Brazil, Sweden, England, Holland, Italy and Egypt, but this is the first time he has had an appointment to Bucharest. He was American Minister to Egypt when he resigned from service in 1930 to devote his time to financial and economic research. The same year he was made president of the American Institute for Iranian Art and Archeology, a position he held until he received his new appointment.

Mrs. Gunther was Miss Louisa Bronson Hunnewell, of Wellesley, Mass. Her sister is Mrs. Ray Atherton, wife of the former Counselor of the American Embassy in London who recently was named Minister to Bulgaria. Another of Mrs. Gunther's sisters, Mrs. John Lawrence, lives in Boston and is well known in Washington, having visited here frequently.

Parliament Member Visiting Here

Lord Herbert Brent Grotrian, accompanied by Lady Grotrian and their daughter, Miss Joizelle Grotrian, are being entertained widely during their visit in the Capital. They arrived in the United States last week from Canada.

Miss Desiree Grotrian, another daughter, stopped in New York to visit friends when the other members of the family came on to Washington to see Lady Grotrian's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Barclay Adams. Yesterday Miss Grotrian joined her parents and sister at the Shoreham.

Among parties given for the Grotrians was a supper Sunday evening, with Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Lewis Heiskell as hosts at Kildare, their home at Oxon Hill, Md. Today Lady Grotrian will entertain at a luncheon at the Shoreham for Mrs. Heiskell and the latter's mother, Mrs. Lucian Whiting Powell, and for Mrs. Lucian Fitzhugh Powell, who is Lady Grotrian's niece and Mrs. Heiskell's sister-in-law.

Lord Grotrian, a lawyer and newspaper director, and his family will remain in Washington several days before sailing for London.

To Celebrate Siamese Ruler's Birthday

Back from a summer's vacation at Osterville, Cape Code, the Siamese Minister and Mme. Rajamaitri are now deep in plans for a reception Monday afternoon "in celebration of His Majesty King Ananda Mahidol." The Siamese Legation, with its broad, red-carpeted stairway and handsome furnishings, is a bit of Bangkok in the Capital, and parties given there always attract a representative number of officials, diplomats and "cave dwellers."

Accompanying the Rajamaitris back to Washington on Monday was the legation's Third Secretary, Luang Dithaker Bhakdi, who spent three months with them at Cape Cod. The other secretary, Snga Nilkamhaeng, has been here all summer.

Enjoying Extended Vacation in Santa Fe

Hessler Studio.

Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, wife of the former Secretary of War, who plans to spend Indian summer in Santa Fe, N. Mex., will return to "Belmont," the Hurley estate near Leesburg, Va., about October 15. Her daughters, Patricia and Ruth Wilson will be in Washington on September 30 to attend opening classes at Miss Madeira's School. Mr. Hurley is already in town.

About the Town

With Dudley Harmon

A LOT OF people feel that the social season doesn't REALLY get under way until Mrs. James F. (Mommie) Curtis installs herself in Washington for the winter. This sizable contingent will be interested to know that she is returning next week from her home at Rosslyn, Long Island, and that the 1925 F street club will be opened for the season on Friday, October 1.

DUDLEY HARMON.

The F street club and Mrs. Curtis mean practically one and the same thing, as this meeting place was once her home. When taxes and depression made her afraid she'd have to put it on the auction block, all her friends gathered round and begged her not to give up the place where they'd had such good times. Hence the tradition of gayety which Mrs. Curtis had established there was continued when it became a club.

The shutters at 1925 F have been removed and the capable chatelaine, Miss Mary Cummings, is already back in residence. Last year Mrs. Curtis lived at the club and let her other F street home (yes, she now owns two) to Representative Joseph Martin, of Massachusetts, and some of his colleagues. So far she hasn't yet decided what to do about the living situation this year.

YESTERDAY was moving day for several hundred Washingtonians, including the Francis Garvins (she's the former Hope Jackson). They are now installed in a house at 18 Blackstone drive, Westmoreland Hills, near the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Kerkam. You may recall that Bessie Gill Kerkam was a bridesmaid at the Garvin wedding last June.

Mr. and Mrs. Garvin are in Washington so the former can finish a law course here. Robert Jackson, father of the bride, is in Europe with his other daughter, Mrs. W. Forbes Morgan.

WE HOPE our public is not tiring of so many chronicles of changes of residence, but here is still another in which it should be interested. Olin Dows has returned from New York and has leased an apartment at 3230 N street in Georgetown. He will use it as a studio as soon as they stop putting finishing touches to this building, which, like so many others in that section, has to go through the throes of being remodeled.

A well-known artist, Mr. Dows has selected plain white wall paper for his new living room so that his collection of pictures will show up to the best. He is the son of Mrs. Tracy Dows, prominent Washingtonian who when last heard from was making her way around the world. Her son went with her as far as Egypt, where he has a sister who is married to a Scandinavian diplomat.

ANOTHER Polish citizen with an unpronounceable name has arrived in our midst. He is Col. Andredej Chraniez, newly appointed Military Attache at the Embassy, and is staying at the Wardman Park. He will be joined later by his wife and two little Chraniez.

American friends of Polish Ambassador Jerzy Potocki call him just "George," so it is likely that Andredej will be simplified to plain "Andrew."

After a summer of adventures with personally planting and harvesting her garden at "Little Cedars," her new home in Westport, Conn., Mrs. John Allan Dougherty is returning to Washington September 27. She will stay only long enough to move her belongings from her former home on Kalorama road to a new apartment she has leased at the corner of California and Connecticut. Then she will be off again for Connecticut to remain until very late in the fall.

Frank Mileses Touring Canada

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Miles, whose wedding on Tuesday was an important event of the fall season, are on a motor trip through Maine and Canada. On their return they will reside at 1315 Peabody street.

Mrs. Miles, the former Miss Rose M. Lepley, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew G. Lepley, of Washington, and Mr. Miles is the son of Mrs. Agnes Miles. Their wedding took place at 10 o'clock in the morning in the Shrine of the Blessed Sacrament in Chevy Chase, the Rev. Thomas Smyth officiating.

Miss Betty M. Lepley served as her sister's maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Edna Eckendahl, Mrs. Garald Gessner and Mrs. Llewellyn Chaney. James Townsend, cousin of the bride, was best man and the ushers were George Miles and Joseph Miles, the bridegroom's brothers, and Ettore Ginnetti.

Mr. Lepley gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of ivory satin and her tulle veil was held in place by a coronet of the same material. She carried bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor wore a gown of gold slipper satin and a matching turban with a face-length veil. Her flowers were talisman roses. The bridesmaids were gowned in wine-colored satin frocks, turbans similar to that of the maid of honor, and carried yellow souvenir roses.

Miss Edith Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin S. Long, and Robert H. Berman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Berman, of Des Moines, Iowa, will be married today in the first Methodist Episcopal Church in Chevy Chase, Md. Mrs. Edna Southworth will be Miss Long's matron of honor and Raymond Merriman will act as best man. The couple will live at 3520 Connecticut avenue on return from a short wedding trip.

Diplomat Returns.

Francisco Tudela, a delegate of the Peruvian Boundary Commission has reopened his apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel and will be joined by Mrs. Tudela and his children in a day or two.

Kayser Gives Lecture Here On Basic Law

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

"The Constitution is not an epitaph, but an active document of the life of a people," declared Dr. Elmer L. Kayser, of George Washington University, addressing the Soroptimist Club yesterday at its opening luncheon at the Willard. The program was in observance of the Sesquicentennial. "It is a tribute not only to the ideals and character of the men who wrote and signed it but also to the citizenry of the United States that those ideals have been maintained for 150 years," he said.

The Constitution was in itself an act of revolution, said Dr. Kayser. "People don't put things in writing unless they're through with what has been and want something new. In the very beginning it was amplified by the Bill of Rights; it was amended by the Civil War and has been continually expanded and amended. It is not a crystallized document. The only part which will never need to be changed is the preamble which states the ultimate objective: A more perfect Union and within that Union, to establish justice—promote the general welfare—and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity."

"Respect for liberal government and ability to carry it on is not something to which people are exposed, and which they 'take' like smallpox. Constitutionalism cannot persist where there is no tradition of constitutionalism. The fact that it has survived the political and sectional differences and economic stress which have arisen in this country through the years is a tribute to the American people, who cherish the ideals which the preamble sets forth."

Dr. Kayser warned against letting the ideals embodied in such a document make it an idol before which men bow down. In the infancy of an ideal, men fight for it; in its maturity, it bears fruit in progress, but, in its senility, it is likely to become an idol blindly served, he said, by those who lose sight of its original intent. Dr. Kayser, who is dean of the student body and professor of modern history at George Washington University, is also the author of several books and is well known as a lecturer.

Miss Daisy Reed, president of the club, opened the meeting, and Mrs. Edna Knight Gasch, chairman of the program, introduced the speaker. She also presented Miss Charlotte LaFond, one of the club members, who sang "Our Own United States," accompanied by Miss Jewell Downs. Miss Bessie Fisher, club pianist, played for the singing of "America" and "The Star-Spangled Banner" with which the program opened and closed.

Miss Martha Service, of Philadelphia, executive secretary of the Soroptimist Clubs, was a guest and announced next June as the date of the biennial national convention, which will be held in Atlantic City. Other guests included Mrs. Ella S. Knight, mother of Mrs. Gasch, who is founder and honorary president of the Sunshine and Community Society; Mrs. Mae Bowman, president of the Alexandria Soroptimist Club, and Mrs. Beulah Cockley, Miss Frances Smith and Mrs. Hazel Van Middlesworth, other Alexandria members; Miss Maryolive Schmeltz, of the Venture Club, and Miss Edith Reinhardt, of the Baltimore Club.

Mrs. Edgar T. Brown, chairman of the social committee, announced plans for the dinner to be given at Olney Inn next Wednesday night, which will be the next regular meeting of the club.

Mrs. Young, Leader in Taking Art to the Public, Will Address University Women Here Monday

MRS. ARRIGO M. YOUNG.

Mrs. Arrigo M. Young, director of education for the Seattle Art Museum—who has figuratively moved the mountain to Mahomet in taking art to the people of her State—is including Washington on her itinerary in a survey of the museums of the country. She is the guest during her stay of Mrs. Clyde Hadley, at the Westchester, and on Monday afternoon, will address the Washington branch of the American Association of University Women at its weekly tea.

The Cleveland Museum, with a large staff and adequate funds for such work, is carrying on an outstanding project in art education, says Mrs. Young. Elsewhere she hears over and over, the same complaint which led to her work in Seattle: "People of the community don't take advantage of the facilities of the museum; clubs and teachers don't avail themselves of the information and assistance the staff is ready to give."

Eight years ago she became a member of the staff of the Seattle Museum, which launched, under her direction, a plan for taking art to the people. She began by reaching club groups and schools within the city and in towns nearby; now she covers the entire State. In places where people did not know the difference between an oil and a water color, they now talk with authority on modern artists and the old masters. Wherever she goes to address a club, taking either some of the pictures from the museum, slides or motion pictures to illustrate her talk, she makes arrangements for the school children to have the advantage of seeing the pictures and hearing about them also. The result has been a steady increase in the use of the educational service of the museum and in the number of visitors to the institution.

The schools make constant use of the museum which, incidentally, has one of the finest collections of Oriental art and what is conceded to be the finest collection of jade in the world. Children who have been there during the week with their teachers, often bring their parents on Sundays to point out things they have seen. Throughout the State, there is an awakened interest in the study of art, especially in the metal crafts and in weaving. The processes used in various kinds of art work are shown in many of the motion pictures Mrs. Young takes with her.

She also shows movies of places of beauty and historic interest. This year in view of the celebration of the Sesquicentennial of the Constitution and the need for giving the foreign-born residents of the State of Washington an appreciation of the ideals and background of the United States, she expects to stress historical subjects. Yesterday she visited Mount Vernon to take pictures there and, after leaving the Capital, will go to Williamsburg. She took movies in Boston also.

Her trip has taken her to Portland, Oreg., San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego, Kansas City, St. Louis, Detroit, Cleveland, Boston, New York, Philadelphia and, on her way back, she will visit Pittsburgh, Toledo, Minneapolis and Chicago.

"Most of the world's finest art is right here in America," said Mrs. Young, "and American artists are doing by far the best work today; there should be greater art appreciation here than in any other country of the world."

Mrs. Young finds a growing regional character in the work of today's artists. Those in California, are painting California scenes and doing an entirely different type of thing from the artists in Vermont, or in the South or North. Each group is interpreting its own environment and the collective work of these men and women will record a graphic and accurate history of the times, she believes.

Mrs. Young will speak Monday at the A. A. U. W. on "Oriental Art," with which she has been familiar since childhood. She was born in India. Her mother was the daughter of Scotch missionaries and her father a British engineer, and both went through the mutiny of 1857. She was sent to America to matriculate at the University of Michigan and after her college course, taught in northern Michigan, in Kentucky and later was married and moved to Seattle.

Daughters Of America Initiate 25

Class Ceremony Marks Opening Session of D. C. Conclave.

A class initiation of 25 candidates was held last night at the opening session of the annual convention of the D. C. State Council, Daughters of America, in the Mayflower Hotel. Independent Council's drill team, with Harry Buell, acting captain, and the degree staff, headed by Mrs. Nellie Dean, councilor, conducted the initiation in the Italian Garden.

State Councilor Mrs. Josephine Herbert is presiding at the convention session, which will continue today and tomorrow, and Mrs. Elizabeth Sewell, of New Rochelle, N. Y., president of the national benefit department, is one of the national officers present. Mrs. Mildred Rock is chairman of the convention committee.

This evening there will be a good-fellowship banquet at 6:45, followed by the annual ball at 9 o'clock. Election of State officers will take place tomorrow, with installation in the evening conductedby Mrs. Ella Stone, national deputy.

Mrs. Viola Henley, of Esther Council, heads the list of candidates and is unopposed for the office of State councilor. Other unopposed candidates are Mrs. Edna Gaipher, of Barbara Frietchie Council, for associate State councilor; Mrs. Ruth Warren, of Pride of Washington Council, vice councilor; Mrs. Edna Hayward, of Mount Vernon Council, associate vice councilor; Mrs. Josephine Herbert, of Burnett Council, junior past councilor; Miss Ovellia Ridgeway, of Old Glory Council, associate junior past councilor; Mrs. Marie Stephenson, of Triumph Council, conductor; Miss Laura Milburn, of Unity Council, warden, and Charles H. Miller, of Liberty Council, secretary.

MME. CANTACUZENE, president of the League of Republican Women, today goes to New York, where she will attend the Constitution Day meeting of the Women's National Republican Council, of which she is a member, and the pageant being sponsored at town hall tomorrow evening. The pageant is being given under the Braman Fund for the defense of the Constitution.

Mme. Cantacuzene, who was in Maine during the latter part of the summer, has been in the Capital for only a few days this week, but will return on Saturday. The fall season for the League of Republican Women opens with a meeting at the Mayflower Monday, October 4, at 2 p. m., preceded by a board meeting at the new clubhouse at 11 o'clock.

Marion E. Martin, chairman of the women's division of the National Republican Committee, who was here yesterday, will go to New York to meet with the members of the council tomorrow. Miss Martin is completing her second term in the State Senate in Maine and is a resident of Bangor.

BEATRICE CLEPHANE and Judge Ellen K. Raedy leave Saturday of next week for Kansas City, Mo., where they will attend the annual convention of the American Bar Association. They probably will be the only women lawyers from Washington there, although Mary Connelly, Grace Kanode and Mary Agnes Brown are considering going if they can arrange their work so it is possible.

They were all at a meeting of members of the District of Columbia Bar Association at the Mayflower yesterday afternoon at which delegates and other members who expect to attend, discussed plans for the trip.

Miss Clephane, head of the Legal Aid Bureau here, will lead a round table on the subject of legal aid at the meeting of the section for local bar association activities the afternoon of Wednesday, September 29. Judge Raedy will attend meetings of the judicial section.

Both will be guests at the luncheon of Kappa Beta Pi, to be given on September 30 and that of George Washington University Alumni Association. They will stop in Chicago on their return and there will be guests of honor at a dinner being arranged by the Chicago and Evanston alumnae chapters of Zeta Tau Alpha at the sorority house on the campus of Northwestern University.

Collegiate Fame No Factor With Pros.

By Shirley Povich.

It is a great leveler, this professional football. Tonight at Griffith Stadium, guys whose college clippings would fill a brewmeister's vat will be stationed side by side with fellows whose fame did not begin until they joined up with the pros.

An all-American rating is no guarantee of a regular job with the pros, and a glimpse at the Giants' line-up seems to indicate that it is, indeed, a drawback. Because the only full-fledged all-American among the 30-odd players on the New York squad, which is backed by more wealth than any other Eastern club, is big Ad Widseth, who only lately joined the pros from Minnesota.

POVICH.

Emporia College, Davis-Elkins, Hardin Simmons, Oklahoma Baptist, Providence and Simpson—these are a few of the smaller colleges from which the Giants, with the most complete scouting staff in the professional league, have culled their talents. And did you ever hear of Phillips University, of Enid, Okla.? Well, that's where Coach Steve Owen learned his football.

And it's not because these lads from the tall-grass schools come cheaply that they over-run the pro league. Time was when it required tempting cash bonuses to lure the big-shot college stars, but no longer. The fellow who plays the best football gets the most pay and his clippings make no more impression on a pro coach than a load of caviar fired point-blank.

* * * *

Coach Ray Flaherty, of the Redskins, has his own explanation for the influx of unheralded college performers into pro football and their surprising habit of making good, either alongside, or to the exclusion of the big-shot stars who came from the big-shot colleges.

* * * *

"Give me the lad who is a standout with a small-college team—particularly a backfield man," Flaherty was saying, "and I'll show you a fellow who probably has what it takes to make good with the pros. Because that fellow had to be rugged and sturdy and a swell football player. He didn't have a raft of good blockers clearing the way for him and any time he tore off a gain he was usually on his own.

* * * *

"Surround that kind of a guy with some blockers. Give him a team with some precision and a point to its attack. Let him operate behind that kind of an offense and you've got yourself a ball player. Hell, Shirley Temple could run the ball behind the blocking of some of those big college teams."

But, paradoxically, Flaherty finds himself endowed with more than one team's share of former All-Americans—Baugh, of T. C. U.; Pinckert, of Southern California; Riley Smith and Dixie Howell, of Alabama, and Wayne Millner, of Notre Dame. But that is the fault of the Redskins' owner, George Marshall, who loves the glamor of names and has made extra effort to equip his Redskins with an attractive line-up.

* * * *

Which is not saying that All-American fame is any drawback to success with the Pros—it is simply no guarantee. As I was saying, the Giants with a potent check-book at their command, have made no obvious effort to round up the All-Americans, what with Widseth being their only player of that ilk. There isn't a guy in the Giants' starting backfield—Leemans (G. W. U.), Danowski (Fordham), Dale Burnett (Emporia) and Les Corzine (Davis-Elkins), who was even close to All-American fame, but the Giants seem content.

* * * *

And the two most dangerous men in the Redskins' backfield, with Baugh's rating still in abeyance, are a couple of fellows who went through college without causing any stir among the All-American criticis. Cliff Battles and Don Irwin are the guys and Flaherty would hesitate to trade either one of 'em off before he trades Baugh.

* * *

This Irwin has been the most-ignored man on the Redskins' club during the three-week training siege in Washington, but Flaherty is thinking that for whatever the Redskins accomplish this year they will be beholden to the 196-pounder who came to the club late in the season from the outlaw American League.

Irwin learned his football at Colgate under the wily Andy Kerr and Colgate football, with its deception and razzle-dazzle, is the nearest thing to professional football. Irwin slipped into the Redskins' line-up like a born pro and his appearance with the team late in the season was followed by an almost magical transformation that saw the Redskins win three of their last four games and ascend to the top of the Eastern division.

* * * *

At Griffith Stadium tonight the eyes of the customers may be on Sammy Baugh, but the Giants will be directing their gaze, for the most part, at an underpublicized fullback named Donald Irwin. They've met him before, to their great chagrin.

R. I. Board Declines to Drop Action

Lieut. Gov. Jordan Says Turfman Told Him of $10,000 to Quinn.

By the Associated Press.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 15. Testimony that Walter E. O'Hara, of the Narragansett Race Track, told him he had "a number of prominent men" on his pay roll came today from Lieut. Gov. Raymond E. Jordan, as the State Racing Commission flatly refused to dismiss its charges against the racing association.

Jordan also said O'Hara, publisher of the Providence Star-Tribune, told him in a telephone conversation that $10,000 of his money had gone indirectly to Gov. Robert E. Quinn.

Denial of a dismissal motion by track counsel was announced at a brief evening session which followed a tumultuous afternoon adjournment.

"O'Hara told me he had a number of prominent men on his pay roll," Jordan testified, "and that P. H. Quinn got $20,000 and that Bob Quinn got half of it."

Called to order at 6:18 p. m., the evening session brought from Commission Chairman Francis J. Kiernan the ruling dismissing a motion that charges be dismissed as a whole.

Raymond J. McMahon, counsel for the Narragansett Racing Commission, which had been called upon to "show cause" why its license should not be revoked, sought a dismissal of the commission's eight charges.

At the outset the commissioner refused to grant a motion by track counsel that Kiernan disqualify himself from sitting on the hearing because he had "publicly expressed bias."

Over the objections of track counsel, a copy of the Providence Star-Tribune of September 8 was admitted as evidence. It was that edition in which O'Hara answered the race commission's charges and denounced Gov. Robert E. Quinn, who later obtained a warrant against O'Hara, charging criminal libel.

Jordan, testifying on his telephone conversation with O'Hara, said the turfman-publisher had called several State officials "thief" and had called him (Jordan) "wild and blasphemous" names.

Of the first, which alleged "unlawful" use of money held on uncashed pari-mutuel tickets, McMahon said that at no time did that money go out of the association's possession.

Of the charge which alleged the commission refused to permit an audit of its books, McMahon said that the sergeant of Pawtucket police (who allegedly refused the auditors admittance) was not an officer of the track, and that testimony showed the association had offered its utmost co-operation.

The counsel said the testimony on the charge referring to the association's alleged refusal to admit a secretary of the racing division to the track, was so "palpably weak" he had not even bothered to cross-examine witnesses.

Redskins and Giants Clash Before 25,000

By Shirley Povich.

Professional football comes to the Capital tonight under the lights at Griffith Stadium, where Washington's newly-adopted Redskins will take the field as the 7-to-5 favorite to beat the New York Giants.

Along about 8:30 p. m., the chosen kicker of the Redskins or Giants will slam a hefty toe into the ball and it will be the kick-off of Washington's plunge into the National Professional Football League.

In the stands will be 25,000 customers, more or less, depending on the weather, which last night was forecast as fair and cooler. It will be the first defense by the Redskins of the Eastern division championship won by George Marshall's team in the league last year.

All-Americans will be a dime a dozen in the opening lineups announced last night by Coach Ray Flaherty of the Redskins and Coach Steve Owen of the Giants, but checking the forages of two Giant backs who failed of that distinction will be the chief task of the Redskins.

Not All-Americans.

Tuffy Leemans and Ed Danowski are the guys. No All-American fame fell to this pair as collegians but they have been a devastating duo in the Giants' backfield—the curly-haired Belgian boy from George Washington U. and the dark-browed Danowski from Fordham.

Tonight Tuffy Leemans returns to the scene of his former triumphs as a full-fledged star of the professional league and acknowledged to be the most dangerous running back on the field, what with Cliff Battles gracing the bench for the Redskins.

Battles, victim of an infected foot that will keep him out of the Washington line-up until next week, was the Redskins' most potent back during last year's triumphant campaign, but tonight Coach Ray Flaherty comes up with a new star—Slingin' Sammy Baugh.

It is the presence of Slingin' Sam from Texas, operating behind the league's greatest defensive line, that has helped to establish the Redskins as the favorite to beat the Giants in the league opener. No secret does Coach Ray Flaherty make of his reliance on Baugh's forward passing to lift the Redskins to victory over the Giants.

Smith and Pinckert.

With Baugh in the 'Redskins' starting backfield will be two other All-Americans — Alabama's Riley Smith and Southern California's Ernie Pinckert—but the bulk of the Redskins' running game will devolve upon the talented Don Irwin, who won no All-American honors at Colgate but who has proven the work horse of the Redskins' backfield.

But pitted against Baugh will be a forward-passing star who, unlike the Texas Christian graduate, has already established his forward-passing fame in the Professional League. Baugh has his reputation to make, but the Giants' Ed Danowski already is accredited as the man who for the past three years has a better percentage of completed forward passes than any other pitcher in the pro league.

The Giants will unveil, too, the most famed tackle to perform last year on college gridirons—Ed Widseth, former Minnesota behemoth who has battered his way into the Giants' opening lineup two weeks after joining the club.

But Widseth this evening will be banging away at no college kid. In the Redskin's line opposite him at tackle will be the 255-pound Turk Edwards who on three successive plays against the Giants last year made the kick-off tackle, battered down a forward pass and blocked a punt.

Kickoff at 8:30 P. M.

Wipe Out Griffs' 3 to 1 Margin With 5 Singles in Final Frame

Detroit Errors Assist Locals in Scoring Two Runs.

By Walter Haight.

The Tigers pulled the old April Fool pocketbook trick on the Nats yesterday afternoon. For eight innings the Detroits dangled victory out in front of them and just as the home boys were about to pick it up, they jerked it back and pounded five solid singles off Wes Ferrell to take a 4-3 decision. A photo finish on the ball game probably would show nine Nats ducking. It was that kind of a rally. Slam, bang base-hits—hits wired for sound from the moment they left bats.

It was a tough ball game for Ferrell and the Nats to lose. They had such a nice day for it and then the scoreboard showed the Yankees splitting a double-header. So, instead of gaining in the pennant race, the final out found Washington 27½ games behind the leaders.

Manager Bucky Harris did not start any freshmen. He decided to rely solely on the line-up that has battled its way into sixth place. The absence of rookies made it appear that the Nats coveted this particular game.

In fact, for the most part of the action it appeared that the Tigers had caught the spirit of the thing. They lined up behind Pitcher Elden Auker like eight Benedict Arnolds. They turned in all sorts of bad baseball, despite the fact that it was not until the sixth inning that they succeeded in giving the Nats runs. Although he was charged with only a single error, the chief offender was Goose Goslin, who essayed to be a first baseman in the absence of Hank Greenberg, who was observing the Hebrew holiday, and Rudy York, who is nursing an injured finger.

When the last Nat was out, Acting Manager Del Baker, of the Tigers, sent a cablegram to Mickey Cochrane, who is in Europe. It read, "Don't include Goslin in your 1938 infield plans." Goslin's first basing was reminiscent of his first day in the Washington outfield, when he spent the afternoon ice-skating.

Another former Nat tried to keep Washington in the ball game. Bolton presented our side with one run by throwing the ball into centerfield. However, not even Goslin, nor Bolton, nor Walker, who dropped an easy fly, could succeed in giving away the decision.

While the Nats simply refused to be made a present of runs in the early innings, the Tigers accepted one, the gift of Buddy Myer. Owen grounded out to start the second inning innocently enough, but Rogell awoke some of the night-shift printers by singling to center, and they were still rubbing there eyes when Bolton walked. Auker then fanned.

With the scoreboard showing two strikes, two balls and two outs and with two on, it was also "too bad," for on the next pitch Myer fumbled White's easy grounder long enough to allow Rogell to score.

Only a vertical white mark against the black of the board at the time, that run gathered importance until it began to take on the appearance of the Washington Monument as Auker outwitted his support and Ferrell held the Tigers safe.

The Nats took command in the sixth. Stone singled and went to third on Kuhel's basehit. Myer then grounded to Rogell who tossed to Gehringer to retire Kuhel, but the latter's throw was too late to double Myer at first. Stone scored on the play. Myer then stole second and kept right on to third when Bolton's throw went into center field. Myer scored a moment later on Simmon's long fly to right.

The Nats' other run came in the eighth, but it took two generous moves on the part of the Tigers to produce it. Stone again started the proceedings with a single. Kuhel sent a bunt along the first-base line and the ball seemed about to roll foul, when Goslin grabbed it and made a futile attempt to tag the runner. Myer than forced Kuhel at second and Simmons appeared complimented when he was purposely passed, filling the bases. Rick Ferrell sent a fly ball to Walker in left field that seemed to be engraved with the word, "out." Walker dropped it, however, and Stone dashed in from third.

With the customers turning their heads as they filed toward the exits, the Tigers began their winning barrage in the ninth. Owen singled sharply to center and Rogell followed suit. Just to be different, Bolton singled to right. At this point, the Rudy York, of home run fame, was ordered to bat for Auker. York succeeded in disturbing only the atmosphere, for he took three nothing swings.

But White proved productive. He smashed one to right and Owen and Rogell scampered over the plate. Foxx added what proved to be the winning run when he crashed a basehit to center, sending Lasbs, who was running for Bolton, across.

Baker sent York to first base in place of Goslin and Poffenberger to the mound in the Nats' half of the ninth. Almada walked to give the local fans hope. He advanced on a pair of infield outs, but was left when Stone ended the game with a sharp grounder to the pitcher.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STAROGAN, $7.80, $4.20, $2.80; FAIR DEAL, $5.90, $3.50; PRIMER, $2.60.

STAROGAN moved up gradually on the inside during the opening quarter mile to supplant PRIMER from the lead, was rated along under slight restraint and was clear at the finish. FAIR DEAL, restrained early, came with a rush on the outside in the stretch run. PRIMER, quickest to begin, fought it out willingly with the winner, but was not good enough and just lost the place in the concluding stride.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:57. Off 3:01⅘. Winner, M. Fator's ch. g. (5), by Gonfalon—Gnome Girl. Trained by B. Blume. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 1:11 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GALON BOY, $5.90, $3.20, $2.50; WISE KING, $3.40, $2.80; SIR MICHAEL, $3.30.

GALON BOY was prominent from the outset, permitted WISE KING to move to the front midway of the turn, but responding gamely to urging when straightening out in the move to the front nearing the finish, outlasted WISE KING.

DAILY DOUBLE, STAROGAN AND GALON BOY, PAID $23.90.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:28. Off 3:36. Winner, Mrs. Floyd West's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TARPING, $5.50, $3.90, $2.90; WINTER SPORT, $10.40, $5.50; SLAVONIA, $3.50.

TARPING drew clear in the first quarter mile, was steadied along in front, met determined opposition from WINTER SPORT and held him safe to the end. WINTER SPORT steadied along within striking distance of the pace made his effort when straightening out in the stretch, closed willingly, but was not good enough.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,500. The Weyworth Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:02. Off 4:11. Winner, Mrs. Louise Palladino's ch. g. (6), by Bubbling Over—Samorthae. Trained by M. V. Hartley. Value to winner, $1,125; second, $225; third, $110; fourth, $40. Time, 1:11 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUBBLESOME, $42.00, $17.90, $7.70; BACHELOR DINNER, $4.40, $2.90; CAMPILLO, $3.40.

BUBBLESOME was rated along back of the pace for the first half mile, responded willingly to pressure when straightening out in the stretch, wore down CAMPILLO for lead in last strides and had enough left to stave off BACHELOR DINNER.

FIFTH RACE—

McCarthy's 75 Is Next, Burnett Out

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

In a brilliant return to form after a year's competitive layoff, Roger S. Peacock, Congressional, once more proved to be the class of the District amateur golfers yesterday as his even par 70 won the medal honors by a 5-stroke margin in the city championship.

Playing in a tournament, he won twice before, in '33 and '35, been medalist twice and runner-up four times. "Si" was back on the game that has carried him to countless laurels in local tournaments, and his round marks him as a heavy favorite to win the crown, for the third time.

Five birdies dotted his card, 10 pars, while he was over par on 3 holes. The bogey holes were the results of a few mistakes around the green and two shots, on 15 and 16, that hit on the greens, but bounded over.

Martin F. McCarthy, one of the two host club qualifyers, was out in 39 and back in 36 for a 75 and second to Peacock. Billy Shea, Middle Atlantic champion, and southpaw Tommy Bones were next at 76 with a trio tied at 77, Parker Nolan, Billy Dettweiler and Buddy Sharkey.

Steward Out.

Eighty ones made the first flight after a dusk playoff when Luther Steward was eliminated on the second hole by Ralph Gibson, three putting from the edge of the green. Ray Fleming, with a par four, and Harry Pitt, Bernie Dennell and Gene Pittman with bogey fives made the grade on the first hole, Steward and Gibson taking sixes.

The chief casualties among the top flight players who failed to make the championship bracket were Volney Burnett and Harvey Johnson. Burnett, first player around the course, was straight off the tee but placed his second shots in difficult positions and was troubled with an erring putter in scoring 84. Johnson, star of the practice rounds, required 86 strokes to play his home course.

Peacock started with a pair of inauspicious pars and went one over on the third hole by three-putting. A 15 foot putt for a deuce brought him back to par on the fourth and he was down in regulation five on the long fifth.

Roger shared the first of three consecutive treys on the sixth hole via a 10-foot birdie putt, placed his approach within inches of the hole on the seventh, and scored a par three on the eighth. Needing par for a 33 he was over on the ninth, chipping past the pin and missing the putt.

Back in Par.

Again on the back nine he started with two pars and went two under by chipping dead on the twelfth. Par on thirteen followed, but he missed par on the next three holes although his second shot hit on the green each time. A 4-foot birdie putt on 17 brought him back to par, he was on and down in two on the final for his par round.

A majority of the field was troubled with the first nine. Both Shea and Bones were out in 40 but rallied with 36's on the second. Nolan was back in 36 with an eagle on the twelfth hole.

Playing together, Levi Yoder and Claude Rippy were safely in with 78's, including several three putt greens. Yoder meets Peacock in a first round match that looms as the best of the morning round. Other potential final round matches paired by the luck of the draw in the initial round include Harry Pitt vs. Claude Rippy and Gene Pittman vs. Billy Dettweiler. First round pairings and starting times.

G.W. High Appoints Football Coach

Tyler, a former Emory and Henry College back, was named to tutor the 115-pound team, first in the school's history, by Head Coach Maurice Given. About 35 candidates reported to Tyler last week for the first practice.

Templeton's Riders Lose To Westbury

Whitney Quartet Goes Into Finals of Big Polo Event.

By the Associated Press.

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 15.—C. V. Whitney's old Westbury team galloped into the final of the National Open polo championship on Hitchcock field this afternoon, swamping Templeton, 19 to 5, in one of the worst routs in the history of the event. With Stewart Iglehart, the ten-goal player, and Cecil Smith, the nine-goal Texan, old Westbury, with Michael Phipps in the front and C. V. Whitney at back, had teamwork, speed, hitting power and a passing game which the disorganized Templeton side found impregnable.

The heavy Templeton riders could not match the speed of their opponents and while they played well individually, the guest side showed lack of preparation and had not organized team play.

Old Westbury was a galloping unit, and in all the 19 goals scored two or more of the players had a part. There were fine passing combinations with Iglehart to Smith to Phipps and another Whitney to Smith to Iglehart.

The line-up:

Committee Sets Regatta Race Times

Distinguished Group to Handle Events This Week-End.

By Daniel F. Craig.

The President's Cup Regatta committee has announced the time schedule and courses for the sailing events, which will see 200 of the country's best small-boat skippers vieing for honors off Hains Point Saturday and Sunday.

A distinguished race committee, which reads like the Who's Who of yachting, will be aboard the Coast Guard cutter anchored on the course.

Heading the list is Herbert L. Stone, editor of "Yachting," and others are William F. Crosby, editor of "Rudder" and designer of the popular Snipe one-design Class; Rear Admiral C. R. T. Lowndes, Capt. Archer M. R. Allen, United States Navy; Dr. John Eiman, president of the Comet Class Racing Association, and from the ranks of local yachtsmen have been recruited Adrian Sizer, race committee chairman of the Potomac River Sailing Association; Paul G. Tomalin, handicapper and recorder and R. P. DuMont, assistant handicapper and timer.

First away Saturday afternoon will be the 20-foot open class boats, a majority of which hail from West River, near Galesville, Md., and are skippered by Washingtonians.

The 20-foot chine bottom class gets away at 1:35, with fleets starting at five-minute intervals until 2:30, when the Folbots, the last of 13 classes and a recent addition to the sailing events start.

Among the record number of out-of-town entries hailing from as far South as Florida and as far North as Long Island Sound, will be sailing canoes from New Orleans, 16-foot snipes and comet fleets from along the Atlantic seaboard, 18-footers from Norfolk and the Eastern Shore, West River albatrosses and Washington large class of comets, trim sloop-rigged 16-footers.

Major Brown Elected Fight Body Governor

Special Dispatch to The Post.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Sept. 15.—Maj. Ernest W. Brown, chairman of D. C. Boxing Commission, was re-elected to the board of governors of the National Boxing Association here today.

Maj. Harvey L. Miller was elected vice-president of the association and was also reappointed chairman of the championship ratings committee. The ratings will again be released each quarter from the Nation's Capital. Other members of the ratings committee are Joseph. F. Maloney, New Jersey; John J. Ahearn, Minnesota; Charles F. Reynolds, Rhode Island; Edward Bohn, Colorado; Sam L. Murbarger, Indiana; Daniel Kelly, Massachusetts; James Blake, Virginia.

A resolution condemning the practice of Promoter Mike Jacobs "in tying up" leading boxers contrary to the best interests of boxing throughout the world was introduced by the D. C. commission and unanimously adopted as was also the D. C. commission recommending the repeal of the act of Congress which makes illegal the interstate transportaton of boxing films.

Only the fact that Montreal was tentatively promised the 1938 convention took the convention away from Washington D. C. It is definitely understood however, that the 1939 convention goes to the District of Columbia.

The convention generally recognized that the District commission and the District promoters are leading the way out not only in an injured boxers relief fund but in many other practical and advanced features. The District commission is generally recognized as the livest and most up to date group in the national body which organization allotted national officers and representatives accordingly Commissioners Kenneth N. Parkinson and Claude W. Owen presented the District's various resolutions forcefully and intelligently resulting in 100 per cent adoption of all D. C. resolutions.

Hoyas Show Improvement In Scrimmage

Williamsburg, Va., Sept. 15.—Georgetown's gridmen shifted their scene of operations to this historic Old Dominion township today, and engaged William and Mary's forces in an hour's supervised scrimmage with gratifying results. The same results were not so gratifying to the Royalists' coaches, however.

For the best part of the hour Georgetown shoved the host club around the field like piano movers hoisting a baby grand. Bill Valliquette, Joe Urbanski, Tony Barabas, Tom Keating and Elmer Moulin looked good on the offense, but hero of the defensive play was Joe Franks, erstwhile halfback, who has been shifted to guard. Franks spent most of his time in William and Mary's backfield and stamped himself as a definite candidate for a regular berth.

Otis Bunch and Jack Phillips were outstanding in William and Mary's backfield, while McGowan was tops in the line.

Hoagland, who is a bit of all right in "Botchy's" book because of his brawling, business-like play, was a tower of strength in the freshman line—defensively—last season, and apparently has lost none of his cunning in this respect. But today he gave a flash of offensive brilliance that won Koch's eye and enhanced his chances of making at least a No. 1 reserve position.

Practice at Catholic University might well have been conducted in Trainer George Lentz's cozy hospital room yesterday, for George had most of the players under his ministrations. Because of the large amount of injuries, none of which are serious, Bergman has drastically curtailed body work, limiting drills to fundamentals and signal practice.

The Cardinals' homecoming day committee has shifted the annual homecoming game to Thanksgiving Day, when South Carolina's Gamecock's will be the visiting attraction at Brookland. Detroit, scheduled to appear here October 16, originally was booked for the annual get-together.

Double Margin Gives Boost To Corn Prices

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—With very little buying or selling necessary to move prices rapidly, corn today scored 2¾ and 4 cents maximum advance for September and October contracts. Tonight the board of trade clearing house put a brake on further speculation in September corn, the method chosen being announcement that margins required on September transactions hereafter would be doubled.

Nervous traders short of supplies of corn to fill current obligations bid the corn market up sharply today, influenced by trade reports of an impending "natural corner"—that is a lack of grain immediately available to deliver as bargained for. The day's total dealings in corn, however, were of comparatively small volume, and more than a week yet remains for adjustment of unsettled September accounts, about 15,000,000 bushels. Top prices reached for corn were not maintained, late setbacks being largely due to profit-taking and to down turns of wheat values.

At the close, corn was varying from ⅜ lower to 2¾ cents higher compared with yesterday's finish, September 1.05½@1.05¾, October 73¼, December 63¼@63⅜, May 64¾, with wheat ⅜@⅞ down, September1.02⅞@1.03, December 1.04¼@1.04½, May 1.06¼@1.06½, oats unchanged to ¼ off, December 30¼, and rye unchanged to ¼ advance, December 77¾. Provisions results were unchanged to 25 cents dearer.

Cotton Rallies; Foreign Buying

New York, Sept. 15 (AP).—The advance in cotton was extended further today as hedging became less active and foreign demand continued. December advanced from 8.87 to 8.95 and closed at 8.90 with final quotations 8 to 15 points net higher.

The market opened 8 to 14 points higher in response to steadier Liverpool cables and on trade and foreign buying which found a scarcity of sellers. As the rally extended to $1.00 a bale over yesterday's early low for October contracts, demand tapered off and scattered liquidation appeared. A little more hedging developed toward the close and locals also sold.

Stock Values Drop 13 Billion In Four Weeks

Building Shares Lead Decline With Fall of 29.9 Per Cent.

New York, Sept. 15.—On the basis of Frazier Jelke & Co.'s compilation of the actual market appraisal of 100 representative issues, it may be estimated that the quoted value of all the stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange has declined approximately $13,200,000,000 since August 14.

The 100 stocks, which for the past nine months have accounted for an average of 41 2-3 per cent of the total value of the list, dropped 21.5 per cent from the highs of August 14 to the lows of September 13. Using the Jelke figures as a basis, the entire list apparently was appraised at around $48,219,668,000 on September 13 compared with $61,618,953,000 on August 14. Last month's depreciation in the 100 stocks was nearly as large as the actual total market value of these issues on June 30, 1932.

The market value of the 100 representative common stocks in the Jelke index at the lows of September 13 was $20,088,314,000 compared with $25,587,136,000 at the highs of August 14. This is a decline of $5,498,822,000, or 21.5 per cent, in a month. As compared with a month ago, at Monday's lows the building shares were down 29.9 per cent; the railroad equipments had declined 29.4 per cent; the rails, 26.9 per cent; the steels, 25.7 per cent; the electrical manufacturing issues, 23.5 per cent; the utilities, 21.3 per cent; the motors, 21.0 per cent; the mines, 20.6 per cent; the retail issues, 20.0 per cent; the oils, 20.1 per cent; the miscellaneous industrials, 18.3 per cent; the chemicals, 17.6 per cent, and the foods, 10.8 per cent.

On a dollar basis, the largest shrinkage was in ten oil stocks, which lost $1,013,918,000; seven motors dropped $705,258,000; 15 rails depreciated $593,804,000; seven mines lost $571,699,000, and five electrical equipment issues slipped $544,409,000.

A. T. & T. July Net Less Than Year Ago

New York, Sept. 15 (AP).—American Telephone & Telegraph Co. reported today net operating income for July of $1,259,799 compared with $1,779,243 in the same month last year.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, Sept. 15 (AP).—(U. S. Dept. Agr.)—The few sales reported in the wool market today were small in value and were for immediate need. Prices on such transactions were steady to only slightly below last week's quotations.

The situation regarding fall prospects in the market was unsettled. Buyers made no commitments in anticipation of future needs. All factors looked to the goods market to give some indication of fall business volume and prices.

The Market

A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Improve After Weak Opening; Trading Less Active; U. S. Bonds Higher.

New York, Sept. 15.—If inflation was responsible for the further recovery in stock prices it did not catch on particularly in commodities. Cotton was a few points higher most of the time, but wheat declined. December futures closed ¾ of a cent lower at 104¼ cents a bushel. Government bonds were firm and the dollar advanced against francs and sterling. Stocks opened with declines in the majority of dealings, but recovered to show advances on the day in a much reduced trading volume, the smallest of more than a week.

Although the usual signals were given by Steel and Chrysler, in opening at lower prices, the market was strongest in the oil and utility sections. Elsewhere short covering seemed to be as much of an influence as anything else. Among the spectacular gainers were Minneapolis Honeywell, Union Carbide and International Silver preferred, rising 4 and 5 points. American Telephone rose another 3 points, as did Coca-Cola, Hercules Powder, Bohn Brass and Superheater. In the 2-point climbing division were Case, Business Machines, Santa Fe, Allied Chemical, Midland Steel, National Supply and Consolidated Edison.

Rail Wage Increase.

A sour note was struck by Western Union, suffering from suspended dividend. Illinois Central Leased Lines dropped 8 points. American Metals softened. Trading in rails did not reflect much the late rumor that the roads had agreed to grant to unions a 6 cents an hour increase, equivalent to about 9 per cent. That would be less than half that demanded but would nevertheless mean a mighty heavy burden for many of the weak lines and would cut into revenues sharply everywhere.

Fairly good buying took place in International Nickel. General Electric recovered well. The London market closed lower than ours and the early sales here reflected the absorption of offerings from there, but when the adjustments were made the tone strengthened. Prices also were unsettled in Paris and Amsterdam on the fresh weakness of the franc.

Wall Street professionals veered to the bullish side, for the time being at least. They assumed that in due course the effect of the gold desterilization would be to lift expectations of a further advance along the inflationary line by the money managers, and that it was logical to buy stocks for a change. Anyhow, the halt given to the rapid slide in stock prices has given stock owners a chance to catch their breath and to look round at the position. Whether the rally will play out when the short covering is done or whether it will go a good deal further on the basis of good business is a question bound to guarantee at least the ordinary amount of buying and selling.

Preparedness.

The Government is following its classical pattern for the New Deal. When things look a bit hasty, it says something or does something in the direction of deflation; when prices begin to go sour and the folks show alarm, the inflationary scenery is quickly put on the stage and the deflationary props shoved into the wings. The way is being prepared for something new this winter. The silver bonus payments will cease at the end of the year, unless extended. Presumably President Roosevelt either will stop the domestic bonus or lower it, if he thinks the stock and bond markets will do better or can stand it; otherwise, he might continue or even increase it. The chance will be a good one for doing something real for the taxpayers, for sound finance and economic sense.

Midweek trade news was about a standoff. Railroad freight car loadings for last week were reported down, because of the holiday, but although there was a gain over the same week of last year, it was negligible. The president of one of the large Northwestern railroad systems noted a good deal of grain to be moved, but thought the traffic would come late and be offset in part by a decline in building. It begins to look as though, except for seasonal changes, railroad traffic had about reached a dead level.

Cattle Prices Reach Highest in 17 Years

Chicago, Sept. 15 (AP).—The price of cattle soared to $19.10 per hundredweight today, the highest in 17 years. A load of choice grain-fed steers brought the top, which was 20 cents above the previous high. In January, 1920, the cattle market top here was $19.25. Early in 1919 cattle sold up to $21.50, which stands as an all-time peak. Scarcity of choice grain-fed cattle was given as the reason for the advance.

Steel Orders Rising.

The steel industry, as described by the Iron Age, is improving in new orders this month compared with August, but shipments continue to exceed new business. The trade expects a slowly rising trend in new business and a decline in the operating rate until the two are more nearly in balance, and claims the sharp break in steel company securities was not justified by the state of business.

Whatever may be the doubts on the score of building construction, of railroad traffic, of steel orders or of motor car sales, some can be found in the best industrial centers of Washington. Secretary of Commerce Roper did what he could to take away the bad taste of the past week's break in stocks. He also thought he ought to say something to reassure people who might think the President's warning on shipping and order to United States owned ships not to carry munitions to China might mean a cut in our export business.

Realistic at Last.

The Secretary's theme was that he thinks "a very important forward surge" will take place in business in the next few weeks. That would fit in nicely with everyone's desire, but not all will agree with him, or with the other Administration "spokesmen" that the fall in prices was due not at all to our odd economic and monetary policies but entirely to war scares. Stepping down from the political soapbox and putting his feet on the ground, the Secretary did say that labor troubles have played some part in the decline and that businessmen "do not know what is ahead." Amen.

Caution.

The rally of the last two days has done much to bring uplift into the brokerage houses, but while sentiment is much more cheerful than it was, some maintain a bearish view. "For the time being and until some more acceptable substitute has been discovered," says the Harris, Upham & Co. market letter, "it seems to us sensible to stick to the notion that the breakdown in industrials 7 points under the June bottom proves something and that this something is a bear market which may not be an extremely lengthening proposition, but is none the less running true to pattern." "Rallies will be limited," says Shields & Co. "A slump as indicated by the recent action of the stock market is by no means in prospect. It is our opinion that the recent action of the market has been largely unjustified."—McClave & Co. "On Friday President Roosevelt is going to give a radio address to the Nation. Investors might well await its delivery before making any new commitments."—Rhoades & Co.

Cost of Living Advances 4% Over Year Ago

All Major Groups Except Food Were Higher in August.

New York, Sept. 15.—The cost of living of wage earners in the United States in August, 1937, was slightly, 0.1 per cent higher than in July, according to the monthly survey of the National Industrial Conference Board. All major groups except food advanced in cost. Living costs in August of this year were 4 per cent higher than a year ago, and 24.1 per cent higher than in their low point in 1933, but still 12 per cent lower than in August, 1929.

Food prices declined 0.5 per cent from July to August, bringing them to a level 1.7 per cent above that of August, 1936, and 42.9 per cent above that of the spring of 1933. In August, 1937, they were still 20.9 below the August, 1929, level.

Rents continued upward, rising 0.8 per cent from July to August. Rents are now 10.7 per cent higher than in August, 1936, and 40 per cent higher than in January, 1934, their low point, but only 4.6 per cent lower than in August, 1929.

Clothing prices increased 1.2 per cent from July to August. In August, 1937, they were 6.3 per cent higher than in August, 1936, 28.2 per cent higher than in April, 1933, their low point, but 21.8 per cent lower than in August, 1929.

Coal prices rose seasonably, 0.5 per cent from July to August. They were in August, 1937, 0.4 per cent lower than in August, 1936, and 7.6 lower than in August, 1929.

The cost of sundries rose slightly, 0.1 per cent, from July to August, bringing it to a level 2.6 per cent above that of August, 1936, and 7.5 per cent above the low point of 1933, and only 2.1 per cent below the level of August, 1929.

The purchasing value of the dollar was 112.4 cents in August, 1937, as compared with 112.5 cents in July, 1937, 116.8 cents in August, 1936, and 100 cents in 1923.

Bank of America Increases Dividend

San Francisco, Sept. 15.—Directors of the Bank of America N. T. and S. A. at a meeting here today raised the regular annual dividend rate from $2 to $2.40 a share by declaring a semiannual dividend of $1.20 a share, one-half of which is payable on September 30 and one-half on December 31 to stockholders of record September 15 and December 15, respectively.

Commenting of othe board's action, A. P. Giannini, chairman, said: "Because of our continuing satisfactory experience in normal operating results and because of the generally promising outlook for California business, we feel that we should pass on to our stockholders a larger portion of Bank of America's profits."

Deere Stock Dividend.

Moline, Ill., Sept. 15 (AP).—Directors of Deere & Co. today voted a common-stock dividend at the rate of two shares for each share outstanding. This stock will be issued October 30 to stockholders of record October 2. Directors also declared a dividend of $1 a share on the common stock, payable October 20 to stockholders of record October 2.

Sears, Roebuck Sales Set New High Marks

Chicago, Sept. 15 (AP).—Sears, Roebuck & Co., reported today sales for last two weeks of August and the first two weeks of September showed improvement over the previous four weeks period. Sales for the eighth period of the company's fiscal year, August 14 to September 10, totaled $39,937,242, a new record for the period and 7.8 per cent better than sales a year ago. Seventh period sales this year totaled $36,266,551.

For the first eight periods, January 30 to September 10, sales totaled $331,585,878, an increase of 15 per cent compared with a year ago, and also a new company record.

Rail Revenues Above Year Ago

Preliminary reports from 91 Class I railroads, representing 78.8 per cent of total operating revenues, made public yesterday by the Association of American Railroads, show that those railroads, in August, 1937, had estimated operating revenues of $279,793,028 compared with $276,180,210 in the same month of 1936 and $366,827,476 in the same month of 1930. Operating revenues of those roads in August, 1937, were 1.3 per cent above those for August, 1936, but 23.7 per cent below August, 1930.

Freight revenues of the 91 Class I railroads in August, 1937, were $223,584,572 compared with $222,387,326 in August, 1936, and $278,704,948 in August, 1930. Freight revenues in August, 1937, were five-tenths of one per cent above the same month of 1936, but 19.8 per cent below the same month in 1930.

Passenger revenues in August, 1937, totaled $33,308,974 compared with $31,401,914 in August, 1936, and $55,143,857 in August, 1930. For August, 1937, they were 6.1 per cent above the same month of 1936, but 39.6 per cent below the same month in 1930.

French Francs Fall to 3.37¾, Ten-Year Low

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Sept. 15.—A heavy selling wave today toppled the French franc to its lowest depth in more than a decade. It closed at 3.37¾ cents in terms of the dollar. The government currency stabilization fund has abandoned attempts to bolster it for the time being, and some believe, it may go eventually to 30.00 to the dollar.

The plunge marked a new level in the steady devaluation march of the franc which Premier Raymond Poincaire stabilized in 1928 at 25.51 to the dollar, or 3.91 cents, after a period of severe financial unrest.

The currency stabilization fund periodically has bought in to boost the franc, but today, after losing heavily in gold and foreign exchange, in a previous attempt to check the fall, dropped out of the market again and left the floating franc virtually free to find its own level. The franc closed yesterday at 28.04 to the dollar and 138.80 to the pound.

N. Y. State to Allot $100,000,000 Notes

New York, Sept. 15 (AP).—State Comptroller Morris S. Tremaine announced today he would allot by night letter tonight to approximately 85 banks and bond houses $100,000,000 in State short-term notes.

Of the amount $50,000,000 will mature March 16 next year and will bear interest at .70 per cent annually. The balance will mature April 18, 1938, and will carry .75 per cent interest.

Bob Burns Says—

I remember when my Cousin Labe started writin' the society column in the Van Buren Press-Argus back home. Hugh Park told him to be very careful because somebody might sue. He says, "Always use the terms 'rumored, alleged, etc.'"

Right after that, Cousin Labe wrote an article in the society column that said "it is rumored that a card party was given at Aunt Bee's home to a number of reputed ladies. It is alleged that sandwiches were served. Aunt Bee claims to be the wife of Uncle Unie, local farmer."

GOLLY—A SWIMMIN' POOL, TOO—WAS THIS A Y.M.C.A. ONCE?

JOE PALOOKA Look out, Knobby—You're on the spot, Sunday. By Ham Fisher

SOMETHING'LL HAVE TO BE DONE ABOUT GERALD—TELLING SUCH UNTRUTHS
UNTRUTHS?!
HE NEVER TELLS UNTRUTHS—
—IT'S ONLY HIS HIGHLY DEVELOPED IMAGINATION!

APPLE MARY AND DENNIE There's trouble ahead for Apple Mary, Sunday. By Martha Orr

JOE AND ONE OF THE PILOTS HAVE SET OFF THRU VIRGIN FOREST IN SEARCH OF A RANCH HOUSE OR SOME MEANS OF COMMUNICATION.
IT SEEMS I CAN'T, MY BATTERIES ARE TOO LOW.
I'M SCARED MR. WALSH I MEAN I ACTUALLY AM.
YA KNOW I KINDA LIKE IT. I ALWAYS WAS A OUTDOORS GUY. THERE'S SOMETHIN' A POET SAID ABOUT TH' "FOREST PRIME-WEEVIL."
DO YOU LIKE POETRY? I'M CRAZY ABOUT IT-----I MEAN I LIKE, "TWINKLE TWINKLE LITTLE STAR"----IT MAKES ME SAD.

BENNY Well, That Didn't Work. By J. Carver Pusey

IF WE HURRY, GRAN'MA, WE CAN CATCH 'EM.
GOSH, WE GOTTA RESCUE PEGGY FROM HER MEAN OLE UNCLE—
SHE WENT WITH HIM OF HER OWN FREE WILL, DENNIE, SO THAT LET'S US OUT.
WHAT?? SA-AY—I THINK YOU'RE SCARED OF HIM—
SCARED OF THAT PALE PINK PIE PLANT? NOT ME.
SHURE—HE'S GOT YUH BLUFFED—I'M SPRISED.
IS THAT SO? I'LL SHOW YOU WHO'S BLUFFING.
HEY
HELLO BENNY!
